What You Should Carry in Your Car

As Insurance Against Unnecessary Delays From Tire Mishaps

It is remarkable that many motorists who would not think of taking a trip without their tool kits, will undertake country tours of considerable length without an adequate supply of the articles necessary to fix up punctures and blow-outs in their tires.

It has been said, with justification that tire trouble usually "comes in bunches." A car may run for several thousand miles without the tires causing a moment's delay. Then when trouble does start, it frequently happens that three or four punctures or blow-outs will occur on the same day. This is more than a mere superstition and is probably due to the fact that in the majority of cases all four tires on any particular car have covered about the same mileage. Consequently, wear and tear is liable to produce the inevitable result at about the same time on one tire as it does on another.

So, when an inflated tire on a spare rim is an excellent precaution, experience has taught many men that a spare tire is a remedy which will alleviate only one puncture or blowout. If a second blow-out occurs on the same trip the motorist is, in the words of Frank Tinney, "sunk," unless he has with him the things necessary to repair that gaping hole in his casing. Even a spare tube is useless in the case of a blow-out unless the casing is first repaired.

Undoubtedly this lack of preparedness on the part of many car owners, is due to forgetfulness. A man will, with the best intention in the world, forget to buy the few inexpensive articles which he should always carry in his car as insurance against unnecessary delays and inconvenience from tire mishaps.

Quebec-to-Montreal Road Is a Picturesque Route

With the completion of the last link in the road from Quebec to Montreal there is opened to tourists one of the most picturesque routes on this continent. To get the French atmosphere one does not need to tour abroad because on this trip, and then to Jackman, Maine, there will be found surroundings decidedly different from the usual, including the usual roadside shrines ranging from a plain wooden cross to glass inclosed and wonderfully decorated statues.

Some idea of the growing appreciation of touring in that area can be had when it is stated that more than 700 cars from the United States visited Quebec last season. A large increase for 1917 is certain with the completion of the road south to Jackman, now scheduled for next summer.

You belong as much to your friends as they belong to you.

MANY AUTOS BEING USED

36,000,000,000 FOR THE YEAR IS THE TOTAL ESTIMATE OF TRADE AUTHORITIES.

To the oft-asserted complaint by railroad men that their passenger traffic revenues are suffering because of the use of automobiles for travelling, instead of trains, comes the backing of a careful statistical summary.

Automobile trade authorities agree that the opening of 1917 saw no less than 3,000,000 passenger automobiles in use. The same authorities put the average annual mileage per car at 6,000 miles as a minimum. Neither of these figures appear to be at all inflated. On that basis the motor car mileage for the year would be 18,000,000,000. If the average load for all trips is three passengers, the passenger mileage by motor for 1917 will be 54,000,000,000. The traffic of the railroads now amounts to about 35,000,000,000 of passenger mileage annually.

If the average motor car load be put as low as two passengers, the accomplishment of the year's motors would be still 36,000,000,000, a trifle more than that of the railroads. It is probable that two passengers is too low for the average motor load.

For two or three years railroadmen have recognized a relative decline in passenger traffic and earnings, despite the fact that this business does not ordinarily fluctuate as widely as freight traffic between good and bad commercial periods. The automobile has frequently been cited as a factor, but until recently its importance in this regard has nowhere been fully recognized. The enormous increase in motor output since the middle of 1915 is now beginning to reveal its logical consequences for other modes of travel.

Gas at 86 Cents.

Gasoline reached its maximum price in Venezuela last month, namely, 86 1-2 cents a gallon in 10-gallon lots or 88.85 for a 10-gallon case.

The normal price for gasoline is 50 to 60 cents per gallon. All gasoline is imported from the United States. The present high price is due to the fact that the supply is getting low, and to shipping conditions.

An extension lamp should be part of the equipment of every car. Get a socket and fasten it to some convenient part of the dash and tap your leads at some convenient part of the circuit—usually the fire box. The long cord enables you to reach any part of the car. Get the same kind of lamp and socket as is used on your car, either single wire or double wire. Then if the cord will not reach to the back of the car you can use the socket in the tail lamp.

Among convenient accessory offerings is the folding rubber basin in a leather case. There is room in the case for a flat cake of soap and a neatly folded towel, and the basin holds fully three pints of water.

HOW TO INCREASE MILEAGE BY USING LESS GASOLINE

Racing the Engine—Oil in the Crank Case—Misuse of the Brake—Waste of the Missing Cylinder—Adjusting the Carburetor

There are several ways by which the experienced motorist gets more miles to the gallon of gasoline, and the man who is just buying a motor truck or an automobile may well spend some time in studying the ways by which his gasoline bill may be kept down. A car in the hands of one man will average twenty miles to the gallon, while the same machine run by another man will average only twelve, over the same roads and under exactly the same conditions.

1. Don't race your engine. By racing an engine is meant speeding it up when it is idle or preparatory to engaging the clutch. Of course, it is necessary to increase the speed of your engine slightly in starting, but it is absolutely unnecessary to speed it up until it sounds like a rising tornado. Some operators speed up the engine before starting—"limbering her up," they call it—until it is running fast enough to make fifty or sixty miles an hour on the road.

The carburetor has a small reservoir that holds about an eighth of a pint of gasoline in reserve, in orders that the engine may have a sufficient quantity at all times; when the engine's speed is increased abnormally this reserve supply of gasoline is sucked from the carburetor.

Aside from the gasoline waste, moreover, the practice is a bad one, for an engine running at high speed will soon shake itself to pieces, materially decreasing its length of service and increasing the repair bills.

2. Don't use your brakes unless you have to. When I drive a car I want the throttle adjusted so that I can stop the engine almost instantly if I want to. When your car's throttle is adjusted in this way you can coast down a hill without using gasoline, without throwing your car out of gear, and without using your brakes unless the hill is unusually steep. The compression of the engine acts as a brake to the car.

The way most throttles are adjusted all the gasoline cannot be cut off, and in going down a hill the brakes have to be used to counteract the gasoline that is still being fed.

The same rule applies to starting and stopping. Some drivers keep the car's speed up to twenty or more miles an hour until it is within a few yards of where they want to stop, and then use the brakes abruptly to counteract the energy of the gasoline. The gasoline should be cut off in time for the car to stop of its own accord, almost where you want it, without applying the brakes at all.

3. Have your carburetor adjusted properly. This will not usually give the driver of a new car much trouble, for carburetors are adjusted before cars are sent from the factory. Sometimes, however, they get out of adjustment. If the smoke comes from the exhaust pipe of your engine the mixture is too rich—that is, the carburetor is furnishing too much gasoline in proportion to the air used. Black smoke must not be confused with blue smoke, however, for they have altogether different meanings. Blue smoke means that there is an excess of lubricating oil in the crank case of the engine. When the mixture is too lean the car will respond weakly, and the engine will finally go dead with a hissing noise.

4. Tolerate no missing cylinders. When a cylinder fails to function properly it is still sucking away at the carburetor, inhaling and exhaling the gas mixture whether it burns it or not. This much gasoline is wasted and the other cylinders have to be fed proportionately more to pull their increased load, which is doubly increased by having to overcome the compression of the inactive cylinder. The cause of such missing nine times out of ten is the spark plug, especially when a high-tension magneto is used. When a low-tension magneto with vibrators and coils is used, the blame for missing is usually divided between the spark plug and vibrators. The remedy is to replace faulty spark plugs or to adjust the vibrators.

5. Keep the car well oiled. This will reduce the friction of the working parts and therefore reduce the amount of gasoline necessary to operate it. Special care should be given to the bevel gears and the differential in the rear-axle housing, also to the roller bearings of the rear axle and the bearings of the front wheels. Also keep an adequate supply of oil in the crank case.

Plans to Mobilize 25,000 New York State Automobiles for War Work

Frank M. Baucus, president of the New York State Automobile Association, is making plans for the mobilization of 25,000 automobiles to be used for military purposes in the event they are needed.

"I have submitted my plan to Governor Whitman," he said, "and the matter has been referred to the Adjutant General for co-operation in working out the details. There are 115 automobile clubs affiliated with the State Association, and I have sent a letter to the officers of each club asking them to ascertain how many members and owners will volunteer the use of their machines, and to send to me as soon as possible a list of them. Copy of these lists will be placed on file with the Adjutant General, with the name of the officer of each club who is to be notified in the event of the mobilization of the machines. From the responses already received I feel assured that 25,000 cars will be made available in case of a sudden call for their use." The plan is patterned after the one perfected by the Ontario Motor League immediately after Great Britain's declaration of war.

CANADIAN BOYS LEAVE FOR FRANCE

Seeing a Draft off for France—Officers and Men who are Separated Feel Parting Keenly

A Canadian officer in England writes:—The faint sound of a bugle forces itself on the drowsy consciousness. Reveille is at five this morning. A draft is leaving for France.

Here and there a late-comer is struggling with the traps of his equipment. N.C.O.'s move quickly about with nominal rolls in their hands, checking up the men and urging on the tardy.

The C.O. and the adjutant emerge from the orderly-room and pass down the line on a final inspection. "Everybody got their rations?" Haversacks are slapped in witness.

"Now—answer to your names!" calls the adjutant. The roll is read for the last time and the responses come back in cheery tones—louder than is necessary in most cases, for all are in high spirits. The long-desired moment has come; the climax of many long months of training is reached at last. Another draft from England is ready for France!

The Great Adventure

Officers not "proceeding" with the draft have shaken hands with their men—these men whose training for the Great Adventure they have superintended day after day for many a long week, whose misdeeds it has been their duty to punish, whose grievances it has been their privilege to right, whose every peculiarity is known to them as a father knows the foibles of his children. Now they are going forth "into the world." Other officers will have charge of them. Ties of a peculiar nature, forged during long months of work together, are being severed. It is somehow a solemn moment. The C.O. calls the party to attention. "Party will move to the right in fours! Form—fours! Right! By the left—qui-i-ck march!" They're off to the brigade assembly ground to join the quotas from other battalions.

Army Leaves Nothing to Chance

Here the other drafts are drawn up and a staff officer is making a rapid inspection, while the records officers see that papers and documents are in order.

At last, just as the first pink fingers of dawn are stealing across the grey eastern sky, the "conducting officer" calls the whole draft to attention. Those who are not "proceeding," but are merely on hand to say good-bye, fall back. The band picks up its instruments, the bandmaster stands with arms raised and eye on the conducting officer, ready for the word of command.

And now they are off indeed, to the strains of a martial air, across the parade ground and on to the long white road that leads to the station and the waiting troop train.

When to Lubricate

People who ride their bicycles in all kinds of weather ought, if they desire to obtain the best running results, to give the matter of lubrication fairly constant attention! In fine weather a bicycle only wants oiling about every 300 miles, with the exception of the chain, which should always be kept moist with lubricant. But when one does "mixed" riding, and takes a fair quantity of mud aboard, then the oil can should be more lavishly and frequently used, especially on the hubs, bracket, and pedal bearings, which very quickly stiffen under caked mud.

Italy, Spain, and Turkey are the only countries in Europe which do not pay their M.P.'s.

WHAT TO DO SHOULD YOUR CAR STOP RUNNING

Above all, remove nothing from the engine except as directed in test rules.

1. Gasoline—Is tank full? Are pipes clean? Is carburetor clean? If carburetor needs adjusting do it, otherwise leave it alone. Does manifold leak?

2. Compression—To test: Open all petcocks except the one on cylinder to be tested; crank engine, noticing how strong the compression is in each cylinder.

3. Ignition.—A—Test for a spark by taking the wire off any plug; hold wire about ¼ of an inch from plug; crank engine with switch on. Spark should jump to plug.

B—Are the batteries run down? Does the vibrator (if any) buzz? Is timer clean? Do timer points make good contact?

C—Are any wires loose, burned, wet, broken or short-circuited? Are spark plugs clean and are points 1-50 of an inch apart?

D—Does magneto armature revolve? Is safety spark gap clean? Are interrupter points clean and adjusted right? Do all brushes make good contact? Is distributor clean? Is distributor rotor loose, broken, or making poor contact?

C—Check magneto wires as per "C."

Note—Loose wires and terminals and neglected batteries, also dirty gasoline, causes much trouble.

Note—To keep a gas engine running cooling and lubrication are needed.

Rules of Road For Spring Touring

Rules for the road once more stand out in interest with the approach of the touring season. The set which follows has been prepared for distribution by the Chicago Motor Club:

Be Master of Your Car at All Times.

When approaching another automobile at night, coming from the opposite direction, slow down and turn down or turn out your glaring headlights.

Use caution when driving off of the main road into the grass. Bad culverts or loose sand and dirt will cause an accident.

Don't attempt to turn out of ruts while under speed.

Remember at the bottom of each hill you will usually find a culvert, some good and some bad; don't take a chance.

Be considerate at all times. Other users of the road have equal rights with you.

Freshly oiled roads are dangerous—drive slowly.

When approaching a fractious horse, stop your car, kill your motor, get out and offer to assist in leading the horse by.

Never under any circumstances drive fast approaching or passing a school.

Upon signal from another driver approaching from the rear, pull over to the extreme right and allow him to pass. The law compels you; courtesy demands it of you.

Spasmodic spurts of speed are dangerous. Hold the speed of your car steady around twenty miles an hour and you will get there more quickly, safely, pleasantly, and at less expense.

Speed means serious and fatal accidents, increased tire and repair expense, nervous prostration, loss of appetite, loss of money, time, and pleasant disposition.

In case of accidents get the name of every witness and immediately draw a diagram of the position of the car with reference to all surrounding objects as well as the curb lines. This information might save you annoyance, time and money later on.

GO SLOW— Passing schools, children, vehicles, around corners, approaching crossings.

STOP—When in doubt—at railroad crossings, behind street cars taking on or discharging passengers. Better to cause a delay than an accident.

Drive moderately on strange roads—you never can tell.

Always safety first.

MOTOR STYLE TIPS

Silk waterproof Russian blouses in old pink or blue, having white collars, cuffs and sashes, are new and convenient for touring use. The coats are attractive in appearance, but are quite as warm as any of the other proofed materials.

Chatelaine pockets and belts are travelling conveniences women have always appreciated, but as fashion retired them from popularity in leather they are now made of linen, or any suit material. The belt is narrow and has a metal buckle and slide.

While there are a number of models in motoring corsets to be had, the short ones having the woven wire stays instead of whalebones are very much more comfortable. The wire bone is so woven as to give with each movement of the figure, and it does not rust, break or get out of shape.

Brief cases made of heavy canvas, with five pockets, are used to carry magazines and papers in. They are trimmed with leather.

A leather wall brush pocket, to be hung in the shelter of the porch, holds a clothes brush at one side, a hat brush at the other and in the centre a long-handled shoe duster.

Scotch shawl capes make excellent extra wraps. The capes are cut from the double-plaid shawls in such a way that the fringe serves as a trimming around the bottom, up the fronts and around the collar. The capes are cut in military fashion.

Willow baskets having four aluminum trays for fruit are a great convenience, saving valuable room in the luncheon hamper.

A mandarin hat made of soft yellow hemp straw and a Chinese embroidered band has a long silk tassel hanging from the centre of the crown over the left side. It is a good little touring hat, and looks pretty with a light silk dust coat made in mandarin model.

RAILWAYS MAKE CANADA

Transportation Makes For Victory and Prosperity After the War

What appears to be new light upon the policies back of the construction of railways in Canada, is furnished in a paragraph in the annual report of the Canadian Northern Railway. This paragraph deals with the handling of some 132,000,000 bushels of grain destined chiefly for the feeding of the allies overseas, and runs: "Inasmuch as many of the security-holders invested their funds in the company's undertakings, believing that the heart of the Empire would some day need to draw heavily upon the wheatfields of the Canadian West, it is with pride that the directors present these figures, illustrating the extent to which the prairies have been opened up. There were probably few who thought that the crucial necessity would come so soon."

Twenty years ago a new epoch commenced in Canada, and also apparently in the mother country. In the "Tight Little Isles" across the Atlantic, earnest minds were occupied with the problem of feeding the people of Britain, a problem that would be a very sober fact in the event of that country being involved in hostilities with any European power of the first class. The policy seems to have been arrived at then, to rely upon the power of the British navy to keep the seas open for the passage of cargo vessels, and also to rely upon the opening up of vast areas of wheat lands in suitable localities overseas, in order that an adequate supply of food products be produced to fill the holds of the ships for the people of Great Britain for all time to come.

As the prospects of peace become brighter, the expectation that there will be a movement from abroad to the fertile lands of Western Canada greater than anything the country has yet experienced, is growing into a fixed belief on the part of Canadians generally. Should it develop, this potential development—made possible solely because the railways have furnished a net work of lines serving the lands which will be developed by the incoming tide of humanity—will add enormously to the new business of the industries in Ontario and Quebec, and new armies of workmen will be engaged upon the task of supplying the needs of the Western people.

ATHLETE WAS VERY COOL

The Colonel Must Have Had a Good Laugh

A good story of West Sandling Camp, Kent, England, concerned Corp. Tommy Daly of the 180th Sportsmen's Battalion. It was a typical Daly story about Toronto's well known boxer, lacrosse, baseball and hockey trainer. It seems Daly got into an argument with some other soldiers, with the result that he was paraded before Col. Buell, the officer commanding the 3rd Reserve Battalion at West Sandling Camp, which absorbed the Sportsmen.

The day Tommy was brought before the Colonel a 180th sergeant was on duty. Battalion orderly room was sounded by the buglers. Teddy Picton, the boxer, and Joe Stansfield, fixed the sergeant to let them out as escort to Daly. Daly almost had a fit when Picton and Stansfield stepped alongside of him. Daly tried to talk to them but never a word would they say. They never looked right or left.

"I guess the colonel will about lock the door on me and throw the key away," ventured the contrite Daly, but never a word said Picton and Co. When the evidence was all in Col. Buell said to Tommy: "Well, what am I going to do with you?" "Well I'm satisfied to let the matter drop if you are," was the surprising reply of the humorous Tommy and those present nearly dropped on the floor.

GEN. BYNG HAS BRAINS

Said to Know Every Battlefield in the World

Byng is described as a soldier with brains, who takes his work with the greatest seriousness. He is said to have studied every battlefield in the world, and to know Clausewitz by heart. In his character, friends say, runs a queer dash of the mystic. Like most British officers, he knows not physical fear. He has never been wounded, though he has had both the heel of his boot and the top of his helmet shot off. It is said that he assisted Colonel Henderson to write his "Life of Stonewall Jackson," often described as the greatest military biography in existence. Byng is the thirteenth child and seventh son of the Earl of Strafford. His family have loomed large in English history, though one ancestor, Admiral Byng, was shot during the Seven Years' War "as an example to others," according to Voltaire.

BUREAU OF MINES DIVIDES GASOLINES INTO 3 CLASSES

In specifications prepared to guide the Federal Government in the purchase of gasoline the Bureau of Mines has made a report of interest to that great body of gasoline buyers, the motorists. For motor use the bureau classifies gasoline into three kinds, high grade for aeroplanes, middle grade for automobiles two years and older, and third grade for up-to-date automobile engines, which have a greater efficiency in handling the heavier oils.

"At the present time," says the report, "several grades of gasoline are sold, these generally being classified according to their specific gravity, though the distinctive quality is that of volatility. The gasoline with low boiling range, sells for the highest price. Heavier grades are cheaper, and if properly used they are capable of developing more power per unit than are the lighter gasolines.

THREE CLASSIFICATIONS

"The Bureau of Mines has considered it advisable to divide gasoline into three classes. The high-grade gasoline is to be used for special purposes, such as for aeroplanes and so on, and should include products of the type now sold in the eastern market as of 70 degrees Baume or over. The middle-grade is to be used for motor cars of a design of, say, two years ago, and is represented by the type of gasoline now sold in the eastern market, which ranges from 65 to 70 degrees Baume. The third grade, represented by the gasolines now sold in the eastern market as around 60 per cent. Baume gravity, is used satisfactorily in up-to-date motor car engines. It is realized that the motor car engine has been improved so that it can use a heavier grade of fuel than was possible a few years ago.

"There were at present on the market types of gasolines produced by several general refining methods. These may be classified as follows:

STRAIGHT, BLENDED, CRACKED

"1. 'Straight' refinery gasoline.
"2. Blended casinghead gasoline.
"3. Cracked and blended gasoline.
"4. Cracked and blended gasoline.

"'Straight' refinery gasolines are produced by methods which vary somewhat in different parts of the country, but are in general, similar. Crude oil is distilled in a fire still and a cut made when the gravity of the product reaches some predetermined mark. The so-called crude naptha or benzine is acid refined and then steam-distilled. In some cases several products of different ranges of volatility are produced; in others the steam distillation simply effects a separation from from less volatile bottoms which go into the burning oil stock.

"'Straight' refinery gasolines are characterized by low content of unsaturated and aromatic hydrocarbons and by a distillation range which is free from marked irregularities.

"Casinghead gasoline is a product which has come on the market during the last few years, and is produced from 'wet' natural gas by processes of compression or absorption. 'Straight' casinghead gasoline is too volatile for general use and before being put on the market is blended with a sufficient proportion of heavy naptha to produce a mixture which is both safe for use and moderately cheap. Blended casinghead gasolines are generally characterized by a volatility range showing considerable percentages of constituents boiling at both low and high temperature, but a deficiency of intermediate products. In some cases, however, the blending is done in such a manner that it is difficult to detect the natural gas gasoline. This is when it is used in moderately small proportion to lighten and to make volatile gasoline which has a boiling range approximately the same as that satisfactory for motor purposes.

THE BLENDING PROCESS.

"As far as chemical properties are concerned, casinghead gasoline seems to be identical with the 'straight' refinery product. The characteristic properties are, therefore, wholly due to the details of blending.

"One of the important factors in the present gasoline market is the production of cracked or synthetic gasolines. These are being marketed in enormous quantities, largely, if not altogether, in the form of blends with 'straight' refinery and casinghead gasoline.

"Cracked gasoline are similar in physical properties to 'straight' refinery products but are different chemically in that they contain varying percentages of unsaturated and aromatic constituents. It has been demonstrated that these constituents do not decrease the value of a gasoline if they are not present in too great proportion. It is still an open question whether motor fuel containing very high percentages of unsaturated compounds can be utilized in the same way as the 'straight' refinery products.

"Attention is also called to the fact that refineries are to-day marketing gasoline containing considerable percentages of unsaturated compound and these products are being satisfactorily used by the public."

At The Motor Show

BY H. W. KIPP.

My wife said to me: "Go, buy us a car,
I'm tired of the street cars and walking's too slow;
We've travelled through life together so far,
And the joys of an auto we never did know."

So, I answered friend wife: "What car will I get?
There's nothing of autos that I really know."
She winked at me and said, "I will bet
You can make up your mind at the big motor show."

Forthwith to the auto show I repaired;
The cars all aglitter with polish and shine,
Glistened and glimmered until I despaired
Of being able to say, "That one for mine."

I asked a good fellow, "How much for this bird?"
He chewed on his gum and shifted his cud—
"Of twelve thousand dollars, I ask just a third,"
Twelve thousand stars, and I fell with a thud.

I was grabbed by the coat, and held by the neck,
Dizzy and dazed, and waving my hand.
Another slick gent with a diamond, by Heck!
Says: "Come, let me show you an Overland."

Then a good fellow, who pitied my plight,
And realized what a hole I was in,
Fixed on me an eye that was bright,
And murmured, "Can't I sell you a McLaughlin?"

"Not so sudden," says I to this well-wishing sport.
"There are others around that look good to me.
There's the Chevrolet, Willys, the Dodge and Gray-Dort,
The Studebaker, Grant and huskey Packard."

I came to a place where they sold motobikes:
The Indian was the name it was called;
It was red, and it sure did look business like—
With a motor like that one could never be stalled.

The question arose: a six or a four,
An eight or electric, or velvety twelve,
In my poor misty brain I sure had to delve.

I am usually sober, and have a clear brain;
And head work, I thought, was always my forte,
But where my "bean" was there was only a pain,
So I reached for my hip and took a good snort.

That Cadillac sure was a classy to see,
The Grant and the Chalmers, the Mitchell as well;
Then turning around I saw a Maxwell.

This brought me back to earth with a thud;
The price was a serious item you know.
The Chevrolet, Saxon, the Metz, and the "Stud,"
And way over there I saw a Briscoe.

My brain was a halo of gear shifts and springs,
Heat treated, full floating, gold plated chassis;
Timken rear axles and "do funny" things;
I was groggy and felt I had ball-bearing knees.

My condition was critical and plain to the eye,
When sudden to me through the crowd there bored,
With a beam in his eye, said a smart-looking guy,
"Come on, here you are! let me give you a FORD."

HOW TO SECURE MAXIMUM "SPARKING" EFFICIENCY

Expert Describes Means Whereby Faults in a Motor Car's Ignition System Can be Diagnosed and Cured—How Common Electrical Leaks May Escape All the Closest Scrutiny.

"Motors are a good deal like men. Very many of them, when everything is wide open and they are hitting it up at top speed, give excellent performance, but spit and sputter and kick a bit when compelled to travel at a slower pace," says H. C. Brokaw, principal of West Side Y.M.C.A. automobile school, New York City.

"This is not moralising, but the natural deduction from the complaints which are coming to our school. A great many drivers want to know why it is they cannot throttle down the engine; they say it will run well at medium or high speed, but skips at the lower speeds.

"Where magneto ignition is used this often may be overcome by adjusting the interrupter points for a little wider gap. That makes the interrupter points open a little earlier and causes the spark to occur when the magneto armature is in a more favourable position, and the spark therefore has more kick in it.

"The interrupter points usually are adjustable for normal running speed, or a little higher than medium speed. Increasing the number of revolutions per minute of the armature causes a distortion of the magnetic field which tends to follow the armature. This distortion is not so great at low speeds. To overcome the distortion, which in, effect twists the field around so that the points do not open at the period of greatest potency, we must change the time when the points open and cause the spark; therefore, to get the best spark it is necessary to have the points open earlier. Widening the gap between the points accomplishes this.

"If the engine misses at high speed we close the points a little to make the opening come later, and when in better armature position, the action being just the reverse of that in foregoing paragraph.

Widening the gap of the spark plug also will help to overcome skipping at low speeds. At low speeds a full charge of gas is not drawn in, and compression is low and temperature low, in consequence, and the mixture is not so near the self-ignition point when the spark occurs as it is at higher speeds. Therefore a better spark is needed to ignite it. By widening the gap in the plugs the secondary current is held back until it acquires high enough potentiality to jump the greater gap; so that when it does an exceptionally powerful spark is obtained.

WIDENING THE GAP.

"This may be demonstrated with the use of a vibrating coil. Set one of the cylinders on top of compression ready to ignite. Turn on the current and while the vibrator will buzz the spark inside the cylinder is not strong enough to ignite the charge. Now detach the spark plug wire and hold it close to the outer plug terminal and turn on the current. The extra gap will increase the strength of the spark in that cylinder and it will ignite the charge, starting the engine. This has led to the use, in some instances, of outside spark-gap attachments.

"Widening the gap, and getting a longer spark is not what ignites the charge. It is simply that the greater gap causes the current to build up to a higher pressure, or voltage, before it will jump the gap, so that when it does it is of greater intensity.

"There are several other things about sparkling not generally understood by the novice. The general opinion is that the greater insulating surface of a plug there is inside the cylinder the less likelihood there is of short circuiting and consequently the more certain will be the spark occurrence. This is only partly true. It is true so far as short circuiting is concerned, but where the surface is too great and soot or carbon is deposited upon the insulator surface the carbon acts as a condenser and absorbs the secondary current. The effect is that it will not build up a sufficiently high voltage to jump the gap. Very heavy insulation on the secondary wires absorbs current in the same way.

CRACK IN PORCELAIN

"The fact that the spark jumps across the points of the plug when it is in the open air does not necessarily mean that it jumps when the points are under compression in running condition. If a current which will cause a spark to jump a half-inch in the open air will cause it to jump only a gap of 1-32 inch in normal running compression. Failure to appreciate this often results in a man thinking his ignition is all right when there may be a crack in the insulation so small that it scarcely can be seen with the naked eye when cleaning the plug, or there may be a porous spot in the porcelain either of which would leak current under compression. Many manufacturers test out the porcelains to see if they leak, using a spark gap of 3-4 inch under a very high voltage.

"If there is cardon on the porcelain the current will travel through this under high compression very often, because there is less resistance offered by the carbon than by the spark plug. If short circuits the plug and there is no ignition. Yet when the same plug is removed and tested in the open air there will be a good spark. The resistance of the gap in the open air would be less than the resistance offered by a path through the carbon coating.

"If on testing a plug in this way there seems to be a good spark, yet the cylinder will not fire, clean the plug thoroughly and try it out in the cylinder. If it still does not fire try a plug which you know is all right and see if it fires. If it does you may know that the old plug leaks current somehow and probably needs a new porcelain. It is a common error with motorists when cleaning a spark plug to polish up the points and call it a job. What is really required is to remove all of the carbon, which is a fair conductor of electricity, from the porcelain or mica and get it back into the insulator class again.

"The condition which allow the adjustment of the interrupter points to accommodate certain speeds in magnetic ignition do not arise when battery ignition is used. Battery interrupter points usually are adjusted for an opening of 1-64 inch and the gap at the spark plug points must be greater usually than when magneto ignition is used, because the spark given by battery systems is naturally of less volume than that given by the magneto. Therefore, the gap must be greater to intensify the current, as described.

"The condenser is another point of possible trouble. The condenser increases the volume of the spark about twenty-five times. We often find that a weak spark may be caused by a partial breaking down of the condenser.

A New Definition Of an Automobile

Automobiles are popeyed, mechanical quadrupeds found in almost all parts of the world. They are of various sizes, shapes and colors, and feed on oils and gasoline. Some of them live to be 50 years old.

They are naturally nocturnal in their habits, seeming to delight in tearing over the country by night, and leaving a lot of mortuary matter in their wake. The eyes of the automobiles are so bright that when they look upon a person at night he is absolutely blinded. They seem to enjoy the annoyance they are able to inflict upon people in this way but a monkeywrench or two piloted into their face generally breaks them of this nasty habit.

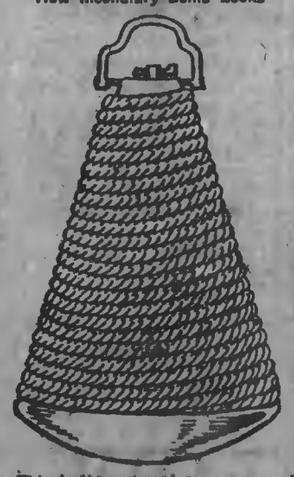
The speed of an automobile is unknown. Lovers of racing have paid enormous sums for well-bred cars and driven them at what they thought sure would prove to be a world's record. Then another car would shin by the first one and make it feel like a hearse in a funeral procession. No, the speed possibilities of the automobile are not known. But next to gossip it is said to be the fastest thing on earth.

INSTANCES OF HEROISM

Artillery Officer's Splendid Courage Under Fire

A War Correspondent writes: I wrote of the splendid work of the British gunners, that great orchestra of destruction whose symphonies continue day and night, and which plays in such harmonious anonymity that it is hard to pick out the part of any single performer. But in this battle there occurred an incident well worthy of special record. The day before the attack an artillery officer made his way out to a point where he could observe the state of the German wire, and found that in one important place it was not being destroyed by our artillery bombardment. The weather was too thick for aeroplane observation, so he crawled out with a telephone and line and lay in a shell-hole in front of the German lines, and there remained surrounded by bursting shells controlling and directing the fire of his battery. As a result of this magnificent act of coolness and courage the attacking party found the wire entanglements gone when they advanced. I give this instance not because it is unique but because it is typical.

How Incendiary Bomb Looks



This is the outward appearance of the bomb used by Germans to set fire to undefended towns. These bombs readily fire buildings owing to the fierce flames and the molten metal generated by the chemicals used. They are dropped from aeroplanes and Zeppelins.

Italian Fleet's Record

An Italian official report states that during twelve months the Italian fleet had transported 200,000 men, 200,000 tons of material, several thousand horses, guns, and vehicles from Italy to the Balkans, having lost less than 1 per cent. by submarine attacks.

Gasoline Famine in England Explained

Shortage of Oil Cans is Now Complained of on the Other Side

In explanation of the gasoline famine in England, the government has stated that it is not due to any diminution of the world's supply, but because the navy department has requisitioned so many tank steamers for its own purposes, and because neutral countries do not care to send their tankers into the dangerous waters of Europe. In connection with this matter there is now complaint of a lack of cans for the distribution of motor fuel; and this is largely explained by the fact that gasoline cans have been found to serve a hundred useful purposes in the trenches, and consequently they never come back. Moreover it is strongly hinted that many Englishmen at home have hidden away innumerable cans of gasoline in contravention of the recent act limiting the use of motor fuel.

DO YOU KNOW THAT---

The Chariot of Fire mentioned in the Bible was not a twelve-cylinder?

Stones gathered from the coast of Nova Scotia are seldom used to fill pneumatic tires on modern touring cars?

Residents in prohibition states don't often fill their gasoline tanks with rum?

Women who drive their own cars do so because they want to, and because they generally know how?

Drivers who run over a dog seldom return with the intention of trying to run over the dog's wife?

Joseph's coat of many colours is being imitated in motor togs?

Motor cars run by gasoline, but Villa doesn't?

There isn't any sense in all this stuff, and that there isn't intended to be any?

Icelanders Buying Autos From America

Iceland is investing a little cash in automobiles.

In a single week of January nearly $3,000 worth of automobiles and parts were shipped there.

The entire area of Iceland is but 40,000 square miles, or about equal to the State of Kentucky, and a large proportion is absolutely roadless. Yet its population of 87,000 took from the United States in the fiscal year 1916 over $250,000 worth of merchandise, against $75,000 the year before the beginning of the war.

For the single month of August the total was $45,000, against but $4,000 in the same month two years ago. Ordinarily it takes most of its imports of about $1,500,000 from Denmark.

LITTLE NATIONS SHARE

Lloyd George's Tribute to Our Smaller Allies

"If I were to pass a criticism upon the Allies," said Mr. Lloyd George at Cardiff. "I should say that while they are fighting for little nations they never fully recognised and realised their value and their potential strength. They have never realised quite the value of Belgium, of Serbia, of Montenegro, of Bulgaria, of Greece, of Romania. When the times comes to write the story of this conflict it will be found that the cardinal blunder of the Allies was not to understand the power, the potential power, of the little nations."

"The Imperial tide is high, and yet, while the tide is high and still will get higher, it will never submerge the joy of the little nation in its past, in its present, and in the future which it sees through the vista. A small nation is like a little stream. It does not cease to have a separate existence even when its waters merge into the great river. It runs along the same valley and the same watershed, and if it ceased to flow and to gather the waters of its own glen the great river would shrink. The great river would lose part of its impetus. That river is now in flood. The storm of righteous anger against a colossal enemy has swept over the land and the river is full and overflowing its banks. But I thank God that now there are cataracts from the mountains of Wales to swell the torrent of angry waters that will sweep away for ever the oppression that has menaced several generations."

MAROONED 200 YEARS

Soldiers Sent to Island and Forgotten By Government

In 1665, eight Dutch soldiers were sent by the Netherlands East India Company to the little island of Kisaa, sixteen miles off the most easterly point of Timor, according to J. Macmillan Brown. A fort was built and they were told to watch the Portuguese. The company forgot about this lonely outpost, and Sergt. Kaffyn and his men realized that there were in fact marooned. They had their wives with them, a guiding principle of the Dutch East India Company. They set to work to build houses and cultivate the land.

The descendants of these eight couples still remain. They have been wonderfully progressive in the two and a half centuries the sixteen have risen to three hundred, and they are a sturdy race with no signs of any evil effects from interbreeding. They still keep their blood pure and still have big families and many have fair European faces and complexions and many children have light hair and blue eyes. These people had to work and work hard, and the consequence is that after 250 years in this tropical island despite intermarriage they are still prolific, and still keep their North European characteristics.

THE PERFECT SOLDIER

Not the Man With the Big Chest and Smart Salute

An officer writes: There is a general idea that the perfect soldier is the man with the big chest and the smart salute, the man who can shoot well, use a bayonet to advantage, and drill like an automaton on the barrack square. And this, like most general ideas, is absurdly incomplete, for the perfect soldier is much more than a man who knows his drill.

To start with, he must be an engineer. His trench is full of water—he must devise some method of emptying it; he must pave it with branches, bricks, tins, and sandbags; he must drive in stakes and run a little drain along at the side; he must, if possible, direct all superfluous water over towards the Boche. He must learn to dig at night in No Man's Land without nearly "braining" his immediate neighbor at each stroke of his pick; he must know that skill is needed to use a spade, that sandbags must be placed like the bricks of a house if his parapet is to have any stability at all; he must be able to build a complete city of dug-outs in the course of a few days; and he must master the art of putting up a pit-prop and of revetting the side of a trench. He is not only an engineer—he is also a porter of no little skill, for he must learn how to carry two sheets of corrugated iron in a howling gale, and, from time to time, he will probably find himself faced with the necessity of bringing two boxes of ammunition over a mile up to the trenches. He is a cook who can boil tea without "stewing" it and produce a Welsh rarebit that is not black and tough like shoe-leather. He is a diplomatist and a tactician; he can see like a cat in the dark; he can march for miles over rough cobble-stones; and he oils and cleans his rifle, when he comes in wet and tired, before he thinks of drying his clothes or cooking his supper.

SPARTAN LONDONERS

John Ward, Plain Labor M.P., Hero of Tyndareus

It was not a Mayfair aristocrat, a blue-blooded officer of the Coldstream Guards, the King's Hussars or the Black Watch, who will go down in the annals of the British army as the hero of the Tyndareus, but plain John Ward, Labor leader, up from the people. Nor was it a black regiment that stood at attention and faced death on the deck of the sinking transport. John Ward's fellow heroes were the volunteers of the Middlesex battalion, Londoners, Cockneys, all sorts and conditions of hand to mouth toilers, some of them waifs and strays, and perhaps human derelicts with nothing specially to live for in the old days. But discipline had transformed the least worthy into men, love of country and pride in the regiment inspired all of them; they were responsive to sympathetic leadership, and they stood firm, Spartan-like, with a heart for any fate, when Colonel John Ward made the appeal to them that will be historic.

HERE LIVING IS CHEAP.

PETROGRAD, April 24. — While prices of foodstuffs have soared in Petrograd and Moscow to undreamed-of heights, figures obtained from towns in Eastern Siberia, where immense quantities of foodstuffs have been lying unused for months, show that prices in these out-of-the-way centres were never so low.

In some Siberian market towns the best meat can be obtained for about 3 cents a pound. Butter is 20 cents a pound, eggs are 9 cents a dozen, and wheat fetches about 1 cent a pound.

A NEW DRUG WORTH $1,000,000

Will Pick Up a Run-down, Weak, Nervous System in 5 to 10 Days

This new drug is a combination of iron and phosphorus, discovered by a Toronto chemist, who is making a fortune out of it. Doctors, hospitals and the public are using it with wonderful success. The iron combines with the phosphorus, forming a new drug called Bonised Phosphorus with iron. Doctor Mainprize says that just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with iron is taken the iron is almost immediately taken up by the blood, while the phosphorus is absorbed by the nerves. He also says he can take a person who is all run-down, tired, nervous, weak, and build their system up to normal strength in 5 to 10 days, by giving one to three of these tablets after meals and no tonic. It has of late been discovered that 90 per cent. of all ailments susceptible to the human race can be traced to impurities in the blood and weak, broken-down nerves. To quit the taking of all sorts of laxatives and poisonous tablets, which only ruin your system, go to the root of all this trouble and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves and your digestion by taking this new drug, Bonised Phosphorus with iron as dispensed by one druggist in each city. ON THE ROYAL MENU.

A great Empire administrator and an audacious explorer, Sir Harry Johnstone, has many a time found himself in a tight corner, be it either in the wilds of South America or in the vast jungles of Central Africa.

Once he had the grim experience of being captured by a cannibal king, who genially informed his guest that he was to form the piece de resistance of the royal menu that evening.

"Eat me if you like," was Sir Harry's calm reply. "But if you do, the Great White Ruler will send his soldiers and you and your wives and your people will all be killed."

This made the king waver, and after a consultation with his court, he decided to forego the meal. But it was not enough for the captive. "You must send me down the river in your best barge," he announced, "till my white brothers meet me." And so great an impression had his haughty manner created that this was no sooner said than it was done.

WHEAT STEAMERS SAIL.

CHICAGO., April 24.—Grain men today professed to see an early relief from the rail freight congestion by the opening of lake navigation.

More than a dozen steamers left here yesterday for Buffalo, carrying nearly five million bushels of grain, and before the end of the week, it is said, somewhere in the neighbourhood of 17,000,000 bushels will be on its way down the lakes.

With this first big shipment out of the way, grain dealers said about 24,000,000 bushels of wheat, corn and oats still will remain in elevators here. The principal part of this, it is said, will be sent out by water as soon as ships are available.

"The Battle Line is Held at Home as Well as in Europe"

The Need for Food Production—A Message to All Workers on Land From Premier Lloyd George—Every Idle Day Lengthens The Struggle and Makes Defeat More Possible

WORLD'S AVAILABLE FOOD STOCKS

I. Lloyd George, in a letter addressed "To all workers on land," says: "The line which the British Empire holds against the Germans is held "at home as well as abroad. If it breaks at any point it breaks everywhere. "In the face of the enemy the seamen of our Royal naval and mercantile "marine and the soldiers gathered from every part of our Empire hold our "line firstly. You workers on land must hold your part of our line as "strongly. Every full day's labour you do helps to shorten the struggle and "brings us nearer victory. Every idle day, all loitering, lengthens the strug-"gle and makes defeat more possible. Therefore,, in the nation's honour, "heed! Acquit yourselves like men, and as workers on land do your duty with "all your strength!"

2. David Lubin, American representative to the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, reports officially to Washington that in October last the "nstitute estimated the world's available food stocks would last until August, when the 1917 crops would come into the market. The stock-taking of March 31 shows a deficit of 130,000,000 bushels of Wheat, Oats, Barley and Corn, and though Great Britain and her Allies will pull through another five months, it is beyond question that, unless a greater acreage is put to crop in 1917 than in 1916, there will be world hunger before the 1918 crop is harvested.

As a result of the extraordinary condition revealed by David Lubin, President Wilson immediately appointed Herbert C. Hoover, Chairman of the Belgian Relief Committee, as Food Comptroller for the United States, and began a propaganda for greater production.

3. Under date of April 10th, Ogden Armour stated that unless the United States wishes to walk deliberately into a catastrophe the best brains of the country, under Government supervision, must immediately devise means of increasing and conserving our food supplies. Armour advocated a federal guarantee to the farmers of $1.50 a bushel for wheat, Government supervision of fertiliser prices to bring greater yields, strict economy in all households, and the cultivation of every available acre. The food shortage, he said, is world-wide. European production is cut in half, the Argentine Republic has suffered droughts. America must wake up!

FAILURE OF WHEAT CROP.

4. The failure of the wheat crop in the Argentine Republic, which is ordinarily a great wheat-export nation, has resulted in an embargo being placed upon the export of wheat from that country.

5. American fall wheat is reported to be 65% below normal crop. Even with favourable weather, the crop is likely to be the smallest in the last thirty-five years.

6. Reports from Ontario on the condition of fall wheat are decidedly discouraging.

7. The land under cultivation in Ontario in 1916 was 365,000 acres less than in 1915.

8. There is an average of not more than one man per hundred acres on the farms of Ontario at the present time, and the forecast for 1917 is that the cultivated acreage for 1917 will be greatly less than that of 1916.

9. Bread has gone to 24c. per four-pound loaf in England, for the first time since the Crimean War.

10. Lord Davenport, British Food Comptroller, proposes taking authority to search the houses of Great Britain to prevent food hoarding.

11. One ton of foodstuffs grown in Canada is worth, to the Allies, two tons grown in the Argentine or India and four tons grown in Australia; ocean tonnage has decreased alarmingly and one steamer can carry as much from Halifax to Liverpool as two steamers from the Argentine or India, or four steamers from Australia. For this reason, a double duty is imposed on Canada to produce.

12. To explain this food shortage, and to emphasise the duty to produce, it should be borne in mind that at least sixty million men and women have been withdrawn from the ordinary walks of life to prosecute the war, either as combatants or as munition workers, etc.

A BOY'S BEST HOUR.

The show in the barn, a delightful rendition,
By stars all bespangled, all famous and great;
The price is three pins for a single admission,
No crooked ones taken, each one must be straight.
There's Sandow, the Strong Man, he weighs sixty seven,
He's billed to break chains by expanding his chest.
His muscles are big for a chap of eleven—
He stands on his head and eats candy with zest.

An aerial artist, a fearless gymnastic,
"Red" Duggan his name, does some tricks with great ease
On the bar horisontal gyrating fantastic,
He skins the old cat on the broomstick trapeze.
And there's the great juggler who spins as he wishes
Some crockery—Mick will get it in the neck
When Mrs. McGinnes goes hunting for dishes,
And finds that her soup plates are mixed in the wreck.

The orchestra strikes up a prelude inviting—
A mouth organ, snare drum, jews-harp and fife,
If that's not enough add the giggles delighting:
So see the best circus of all of your life.
Reserved seat, it costs you five pins for the pleasure
Of sitting in front on a big bale of hay.
Are babies admitted? One pin is the measure
Of letting them join in the frolicsome play.

Oh, heyday of life! Ah, how swift you go fleeting
Adown the old channels aglow with the gleams
Of days that were sunshine; and now you come greeting
Again with the rapture of boyhood's sweet dreams,
Then roll away years that are shadowed with sadness!
To-day we recall all that was frolicsome, gay—
The barn show, the best show in glow of youth's gladness
Comes back from the past as life's great circus day.

Slav Workers Meet Soldiers In Conference

Congress Decides That The War Will be Carried on Until the Huns Are Crushed—Private Soldier is Elected Vice-President

PETROGRAD, April 25. —The congress of the delegates from the armies on the western (Russian) front opened at Minsk Saturday and is attended by more than 1,200 representatives of the soldiers and officers and the workers engaged in national defence work. M. Rodsianko, President of the Duma, and Minister of War Guchkoff were present.

The congress was opened by M. Posener, president of the council of workmen's and soldiers delegates at Minsk who said that the congress symbolized the close union between the military and civilian elements of the new Russia and the perfect agreement between those at the front and those behind the battle lines M. Posener was elected president of the conference and a private soldier named Sorokoletoff, vice-president. The latter on mounting the tribune in his field uniform and armed with a rifle, was received with a storm of applause.

M. Rodsianko in an address said that he was glad to be able to say that no return to the past was possible. Such, he said, was the settled determination of the Russian people.

"Do not forget," the President of the Duma declared, "that great liberty entails great obligations towards the country. Do not forget that the country is in danger. I know now that the western front is indestructible in its fighting power and I will joyfully tell this to the people behind the lines."

Swear to Do It.

Deputy Roditcheff, Governor-General of Finland urged all the armies to unite into one force to conquer the enemy not only of Russia but of the liberty of peoples. Roditcheff concluded by crying:

"We believe you are going to drive the enemy out of Russia."

The assembly responded by shouting: "We swear it."

Colonel Rampont, a French officer who fought at Verdun, then mounted the tribune and said:

"Do not forget soldiers that you have in front of you the armies of the Kaiser. Therefore, if you wish to consolidate liberty be brave and obedient fighters and pay less attention to politics and more attention to military duty. Remember the French revolution when the army had nothing to do with politics."

A major of the British army called on the soldiers to love liberty and to die for it if necessary.

General Gurko, Commander on the western front, in an address said that if the soldiers did not make a great effort to save their young liberty the latter would perish. He concluded by saying that Germany must be defeated for the German Emperor was the guilty author of the Japanese, Balkan and Tripolitan wars, as he was of this war.

"An end," he said, "must be made of German militarism, which is an eternal menace to the peace of the world."

Appeal to Workmen.

Prince Lvoff, Russian Premier, and A. J. Guchkoff, Minister of War and Marine, have addressed an appeal to the workmen engaged in work for the army, in which they declare:

"The final days decisive of Russia's trial are at hand and you can either render us happy and free forever or deprive us of national honour and throw us back into our former slavery. Now if ever we are working out our own happiness, and the liberty we won is in our own hands."

The council of workmen's and soldiers' delegates has decided to proclaim a holiday throughout Russia early in May, when workmen's demonstrations on an unprecedented scale are expected to take place. In order not to lose a single working day in wartime, however, the workmen are to work on Sunday, April 29 instead of on May day.

Official Story Of The Sinking of Two British Hospital Ships

Prussian Prisoners on Board Made Mad Rush For the Life Boats—No Warning Given Either Vessel—Huns Fought With Wounded Men in Boats—Both Ships Had an Escort—Germans Published an Abusive Protest

MUST CARRY GERMAN WOUNDED

LONDON, April 25.—The British hospital ships Donegal and Lanfranc, with many wounded aboard have been torpedoed without warning. They were sunk on April 17. Of those on the Donegal 29 wounded men and 12 of the crew are missing. The Lanfranc carried German wounded as well as British. Of those aboard 19 British and 15 Germans are believed to have perished.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Andrew Bonar Law, announced on April 19 in the House of Commons that there had been further losses of British hospital ships, which would be published soon. The Secretary of the Admiralty issued the following statement:

EDWIN ROBERT ROGERS

The passing of Edwin Robert Rogers is that of no ordinary man. His varied experience in the affairs of life gave him a mature judgment of people and in all matters with which he had to deal in after life. The high esteem in which he was held by all classes of people with whom he came in contact betokened the whole-souled nature of the man.

He was born at the old family homestead in the then Village of Ashburnham which is now Ward Five of this city about fifty-seven years ago. His father was Robert David Rogers and his mother was Elizabeth Birdsall. Of a family of twelve, only two brothers now remain, Richard B. Rogers of Peterborough, and Alfred B. Rogers of Calgary.

He was educated in the schools of this city and at Trinity College School, Port Hope. He left the city at an early age and went to Uxbridge, where he soon became Manager of the hardware store and foundry of W. B. Stewart. Leaving Uxbridge, he was engaged with dry-good and hardware merchants in Toronto for a few years. In the year 1882 he went to Winnipeg and engaged with the well-known hardware firm of J. H. A. Ashdown and Company. It was not long before he reached the highest position with this firm, and having gained a good insight into the business and needs of the country which, at that time was so rapidly developing, he decided to start a hardware business in Calgary, which together with a partner established the largest hardware business west of Winnipeg. A good opportunity offered and he sold out his share of the business to his partner. He was then appointed Clerk of the Supreme Court of the District now known as the Province of Alberta, which position he held for about ten years. The esteem in which he was held was voiced in an address which was presented to him on his retirement from the position of Clerk of the Court, which was signed by every member of the Bar at Calgary, which was as follows:

"On the occasion of your retirement from the office of Clerk of the Court for this District, which you have honourably and efficiently filled for a period now approaching ten years, we, the undersigned members of the Calgary Bar, desire to express our sincere regret that your connection with the profession is about to be severed.

"The assistance you have afforded us, also your unfailing courtesy in the discharge of your official duties, has been greatly appreciated by us, and will not be readily forgotten.

"We ask you to accept this expression of the high esteem and regard in which we hold you, and trust that in your future life you may attain that prosperity and happiness that you so well merit."

During this time the City of Calgary was fast becoming an important centre and Mr. Rogers took an active interest in all matters pertaining to the welfare of the city. Among other developments was the formation of the Fire Department of which he was the first volunteer chief. The development of the city in time required a paid brigade and Mr. Rogers retired from active work of the brigade. When he decided to leave Calgary, the following address was presented to him:

"The members of the Calgary Fire Brigade, learning of your intended departure from the city, and realizing that your doing so will mean the loss of a good friend desire in some way to convey their best wishes to you, and also to express their appreciation of your numberless efforts in their behalf during the many years of your connection officially and otherwise with their organization.

"It would be useless to attempt to recognize your services as they deserve, or to properly eulogise the friendship and practical sympathy which you have always given the Brigade, but we would ask your acceptance of this purse as slight evidence of the fact that we have for years looked to you as the father of our organization."

After leaving Calgary he came East to Toronto Junction, where he again started in the hardware business and was appointed President of the Retail Merchants' Association of Toronto. After six years he sold out his hardware business and was appointed inspector of Prisons and Public Charities for the Province of Ontario. His previous experiences in business were just the training required for such a position. He had to purchase everything necessary for all the public institutions, and when it is considered that the inmates of these institutions number up in the thousands it may be seen that this was a work of some magnitude.

His thorough grasp of the duties of his office and his kindly sympathetic nature, together with a strict sense of duty, made him an ideal officer to fill such an onerous position. His untiring efforts to fulfill the duties of his office and also his efforts to hold the position for one of his subordinates while the official was incapacitated for a year, gradually began to tell on his health, and at last he was forced to take a rest, which he had scarcely done for the whole term of his office, but it was too late as his health was undermined and for the last year or more he has suffered the ill effects of over work.

He was twice married. His first wife was Lottie M. Clark of Winnipeg, by whom he had two children, Miss Bessie Rogers of Estevan, Sask., and the late Captain Alan Rogers of the "King George's Own Pioneers" of India, who was killed in action August, 1915, at the charge of Sulva Bay, at the Dardanelles. His second wife was Emily M. Pellatt of Toronto, by whom he has one daughter, Miss Rita Rogers, who is at home.

Mr. Rogers was fond of all kinds of sports and was well known as a cricketer. He always took a great interest in Church work and was appointed Lay Reader at St. John's Church, West Toronto, and at St. Michael's and All Angels' Church, Toronto.

He was an active Free Mason, and one of his papers on Masonry was of such merit that a special copy of it was prepared by Victoria Lodge and was presented to the then Prince of Wales (later King Edward) who was Grand Master of all Masons. In acknowledging the receipt of this paper the Prince of Wales' Secretary was instructed to say how highly pleased the Prince was with the paper and sent him a large autograph photograph of himself in the regalia of Grand Master.

Like other members of the family he served his time in the 57th Battalion.

After a service at the house to be held by the Masons, the body will be taken to St. John's Church, West Toronto, where a service will be held at 8 o'clock. After the body will be brought to Peterborough, on the midnight train. The Funeral will be from St. Luke's Church, at half-past 2 on Tuesday.

The Masons and Orangemen of West Toronto will attend the service in St. John's Church, West Toronto, Monday evening, and a deputation from Victoria Masonic Lodge will accompany the body to the grave.

TWO MENTAL PROCESSES

Sharp Distinction Between Ear-Minds and Eye-Minds.

In the psychology of pedagogy it has been recognized for some time that there are two distinct types of mental processes. There are "ear" minds and "eye" minds. In a great many instances, undoubtedly, there is something of a combination of the two, but even then one of the two is likely to be dominant. In almost every process of celebration one's mind either sees or hears what one is thinking about. It is undoubtedly because of this working peculiarity of the brain that a person may have quick perceptions in some particulars, while being rather dull in others. Take the case of a rapid reader, for instance. He has the eye mind and is thereby able to get the sense of whole lines and even paragraphs at a glance. It is not so much that the words produce definite pictures in his mind, but his power of quick visualization sweeps in the words in groups and instantaneously impresses their significance. The ear mind is compelled to take in every word by itself, and each unit of significance must take its impression in order for the mind to appreciate the sense of the whole. The ear mind, perforce, does its reading slowly, word for word. The printed page virtually has to be translated into a mentally audible speech for the ear mind to take in its significance.

Unquestionably the ear-minded person should be, and usually is, able to develop the eye mind. The mental tendencies are sometimes so strong that they can be overcome only with difficulty, but it is important to remember that all of us are ear-minded to begin with. The human race used spoken words many centuries before visible symbols were invented to transmit ideas without audible speech, and this evolutionary process is still being repeated. The child acquires quite an extensive vocabulary several years before he gains any working knowledge of written or printed word symbols. And for some years, more, we may believe in the case of the average child, he does his reading with his ear mind. Perhaps the average age at which the eye mind begins to develop in this matter of reading is rather uncertain. The general capacity for visualization of ideas, of course, begins to build up soon after the ear mind becomes active.

In certain forms of reading one must have the dual ear-and-eye mind in order to enjoy a full appreciation. This is true to some extent in fiction, and still more so in the reading of a play. Probably this is the reason why so many persons cannot read plays with any pleasure. It is usually said that they are lacking in imagination or in the power to visualize the scenes from the words on the printed page. But we may conjecture that their failure is due rather to their lack of an ear mind. It is essential that they should be able to hear with their mental ears the speech of the various characters. This is necessary, too, to a proper appreciation of poetry. The eye alone cannot translate the effect of the rhythmic cadences.

In a well-balanced makeup, of course, the ear mind and the eye mind must be equally developed. Mental blindness and deafness are afflictions that in the full enjoyment of life are only a little less deplorable than the corresponding physical infirmities. It is cheering to reflect that in the great majority of cases either weakness may be largely overcome, and the curing of these two fairly common infirmities is a matter that deserves the careful study of educators. Ear-minded persons need the training of their eye minds, and vice versa.—Providence Journal.

REST IS NOT ENOUGH

Radical Treatment Alone Avails in Shell-shock Cases

The fine work of a French hospital for shell-shock is described as follows: Sergeant R., for example, a robust and muscular man of 25, was in Fort Douaumont during a bombardment. He was thrown many yards by the explosion of a large shell; consciousness was lost for some time. At the first-aid station he had difficulty in breathing and consciousness was only gradually restored. He was brought back at once to hospital, where he was found to be in a state of general rigidity and hyperaesthesia. Even small movements of his limbs were painful. His heart was moderately dilated, pulse rather rapid, fibrillary tremor of the hands, slight goitre. When the treatments, which consisted in forced movements of his limbs, were undertaken, he would gradually become stuporous, cry out with pain, and at the close of the séance would almost lose consciousness and would dissolve into tears.

However, after a month of such treatment the stiffness and sensitiveness were rapidly disappearing from his members, he was able to stand erect and walk, and was obviously on the high road to recovery. Had he been treated merely by rest and care, he would probably have made no such progress. Alongside of him other men, whose injuries had come about in the early months of war, and who in the early stages of their trouble were treated by the conventional methods, seemed to have crystallised in their disabilities. It appeared that after the deformities and tremors had become inveterate it was most difficult to eradicate them, even by the treatment of motor re-educaiton, though this treatment brought about slow and steady gains.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter, and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly entirely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

AN AID TO RECRUITING

Military Lantern Slides Help Allay Fears For Disabled Soldiers

An Ontario minister borrowed from the Military Hospitals Commission, Ottawa, a set of lantern slides. These slides show what goes on at the hospitals and sanatoria. That is, they show something of how our injured soldiers are being restored to health and to power for self-support, however serious their injuries may be. The minister exhibited the slides at three country churches under his charge. In returning the set he writes:

"My recording steward, who is also the postmaster and chairman of the local recruiting league, says they should be shown in every community. They meet the unrest in many families who have feared that the maimed who return will be forced to sell lead pencils or such like.

"What I should have done was to ask for them for a longer period and put them on in every available church in this district. A man with a well prepared lecture and a few local slides could render a valuable service to the country, both in allaying the unrest above mentioned to and in removing the prejudice in some families from which recruits might be beaconed."

SAYS BODY IS A POISON FACTORY

Urges Everyone to drink glass of hot water before breakfast.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste toxins and ptomainelike poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember inside bathing is more important than outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

"WOMEN WITHOUT A NATION."

LONDON. — "For Women without a Nation," is the title of a committee just organised by the American Women's Club under the direction of Ladp Lowther.

The club in connection with its war work, has found that there are a large number of women stranded in London who cannot claim the rights and protection of any state; they are citizen of no country.

An instance given by the club secretary is that of an Englishwoman, who married a Belgian, and went with him to the United States, where they lived long enough to lose his nationality. Neither took out nationalizations papers, and they returned to Europe so that the husband could enter the Belgian army, in which he is now fighting.

"We have records of more than a hundred such cases," said the secretary.

The club has committees to help stranded Americans, to educate American children, to maintain workshops where hospitals are supplied to the allies, and to maintain a knitting factory for the aged.

Stomach Troubles Due To Acidity

So Says New York Physician.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind, stomach-ache and inability to retain food, are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excessive secretion of acid and the fermentation of food. Such fermentation is unnatural, and may involve harmful consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of food contents of the stomach and to neutralise the acid and render it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, perhaps the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind of acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation and neutralises the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind and acidity are unnecessary. Stop or prevent them by the use of a proper antacid, such as bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist and thus enable the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by gas and excessive acids.

Latest Ally Aims Effective Blow At The U-Boats

150,000 WORKMEN TO TURN OUT 8,000,000 TONNAGE THE FIRST YEAR.

WASHINGTON. — A campaign of colossal proportions to break down the German submarine blockade and keep the Entente plentifully supplied with food, clothing and munitions, has been determined upon by President Wilson and his advisers as America's first physical stroke against her enemy.

Unable now to send an army into the trenches, the President believes the United States can do an even greater service in the common cause against Germany by providing a great armada of merchantmen to invalidate the undersea campaign about which have been rallied the fading hopes of Prussian conquest.

For weeks officials have been at work on such a scheme but not until now was it revealed on how great a scale the task had been projected, or how great importance was attached to it in the administration's general war programme. Virtually every detail has now been completed, and by autumn the campaign itself will be in full swing. Many officials believe it may attain a supremacy over the submarine which will prove the decisive victory of the great war.

FLEET OF MERCHANTMEN.

Quickly built, light wooden ships of 2,000 tons and upward are to make up the fleet of merchantmen, and to insure maximum construction the Shipping Board has enlisted the country's entire shipbuilding facilities, now the greatest in the world. More than a hundred private plants on all the coasts will help, giving the Board's orders precedence over every other class of work except the most urgent naval construction. For the first year production is expected to reach an average of three ships a day.

Already the lumber interests have given assurances of an adequate supply of timber at reasonable prices. Engine manufacturers have pledged their co-operation, too, and all the necessary machinery for the vessels can be turned out at the yards. At more than one plant new ways are already under construction to take care of the Government building orders.

CALL ON LABOR'S AID.

The question of labor, however, is giving officials some concern, and a call may be issued appealing for patriotic co-operation by laborers to insure that the campaign against the submarine begin at the earliest possible moment. The shipping board estimates that 150,000 men will be needed to work all the plants to capacity and to complete the building programme in the time determined on. This total is nearly ten times the number of laborers now employed in building merchant craft throughout the country.

Volunteers for this class of public service, it is said, need not be experienced in ship-building, as comparatively little expert labor will be required for the type of wooden vessel to be built. Within a few days the Board will establish a labor bureau to enlist such volunteers. The American Federation of Labor already is co-operating and motion picture companies will display pictures of ship-building operations as part of the campaign for labor recruits.

TO BUILD 3,000,000 TONS.

Major General George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, has been selected to supervise the construction programme, which is expected to involve within the next year a total tonnage of three million tons, or more than now is building in all the shipyards in all the world.

Built for the most part of pine and fir, the ships will range from 2,000 to 3,000 tons. Most of them probably will be equipped with oil burning engines, and all will carry wireless and be armed. The engines will be standardised, as far as possible, so that damaged parts may be replaced aboard if necessary. An average cost of about $30,000 per ship is counted on by the Board. Each will carry a crew of about 35 men.

The first of the vessels are to be ready in about six months, and during the year following the number afloat is expected to pass 1,000. Such a number, officials believe, constantly augmented in the months that follow, will render it absolutely impossible for Germany to maintain her blockade with any degree of effectiveness.

HAVE EXPERT ADVICE.

In their calculations the President and the Shipping Board have had the advice of all allied naval authorities, and have computed carefully the ability of the German U-boats to cope with large numbers of merchantmen. They are convinced that by building ships of only 2,000 or 3,000 tons and forcing Germany to pay with a torpedo for each one sent to the bottom, the United States can soon exhaust the resources of the submarine fleet for operating far from its base. The German resources can be still further dissipated by routing the American merchantmen through hundreds of ocean lanes to scores of European ports.

If the blockade running campaign does not actually end the war by destroying Germany's faith in the U-boats, to which her reliance was transferred after hope of a decisive victory on land apparently had been abandoned, the administration is confident it at least will thwart the German threat of forcing an early peace on the Allies through a starvation blockade. Officials are fully alive to the dangers to this country which might follow such a peace, and have been fully advised of the Allies' needs of supplies.

Although the blockade is considered far from successful, they feel that an effective stroke at it and at the campaign of ruthlessness is sure to have a telling effect and to furnish the best means of translating quickly into deeds the nation's great potentialities.

CASUALTIES IN CANADA

Threatening Letter Preceded Big Wreck of Troop Train

A train conveying a battalion of French-Canadian troops eastward met distaster shortly after two o'clock one morning, when five Pullman cars rolled down embankment forty miles west of Winnipeg. Lieut.-Col. Leprohon and 400 men were on board, all asleep at the time. Thirty-two men, including Col. Leprohon, were more or less injured, few seriously. The injured were brought to Winnipeg hospitals. The accident was due to a broken rail. The engine and two cars went safely over the spot, but the next car shot sideways and dragged the remaining four cars down the steep embankment. The temperature was fifteen velow zero.

Col. Leprohon was pitched out of his berth to the opposite side of the car and stunned. Recovering, he climbed out of the window in his pyjamas and took charge of the rescue work. Little difficulty was found in liberating the injured. Other officers received a bad shaking up, but only the medical officer, Dr. Russeau, who was on duty at the time, was seriously hurt. Prior to the train leaving a station, Col. Leprohon was in receipt of a vituperative letter threatening dire calamity.

Was Anaemic FOR OVER A YEAR

Anaemia, or blood turning to water, is caused by the heart becoming deranged, and if the heart becomes weakened it cannot pump the blood as it should. As a result the blood becomes impoverished, and it loses its nourishing qualities. The face becomes pale and thin, and the lips bloodless. There is a weakness, tiredness and loss of weight.

When those suffering from thin or watery blood start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they can see a change from the outset.

Every dose introduces into the blood those vital elements necessary to make it rich and red. The pale cheeks take on the rosy hue of health, the weight increases, and the whole being thrills with a new life.

Mrs. R. J. Grey, Fredericton, N. B., writes: "When I was a girl working at general house work I overtaxed my strength and became completely run down. For over a year I was very bad with anaemia. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I got a box and when it was done I decided to get six more. When I had taken them I gained not only in strength, but in flesh and colour, and best of all was good health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box; three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ALBERTA'S NEW POLICE FORCE.

(Edmonton Bulletin.)

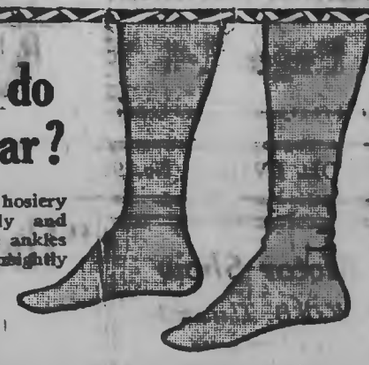
The preliminary organization work in connection with the Alberta provincial police has now been completed. Uniforms and horses have been purchased, although not yet in commission, and practically all the men have been allotted to their posts. It is the ambition of Mr. Primrose, chairman of the police commission, to make the force a worthy successor to the famous mounted force, and his plans in that direction are being ably carried out by Superintendent McDonell.

The contract for the uniforms was closed on Tuesday of this week. The jackets are being secured from A. S. Nimmo, of Calgary, and the riding breeches from the Clayton firm, of Halifax. The jackets are of the regulation blue. The breeches are also blue, with a narrow red stripe. Black service caps will be worn, with white tops for summer use.

About forty horses are being purchased, it being found that they are practicable indispensable for detachment work.

The farthest north provincial policeman at present is at Peace River, but Constable T. E. Heacock will be sent to McMurray on Saturday, and it is also the intention to station a man at Fort Vermilion, three hundred miles north of Peace River, as soon as navigation opens.

Which do you wear?



Do you wear hosiery that fits loosely and wrinkles at the ankles and toes? — unsightly and uncomfortable.

Or do you wear Mercury Fashioned Hosiery, with the slim ankles and perfectly turned toes?— not a wrinkle anywhere.

Mercury Hosiery is fashioned at the sides just above the ankles—a new idea—which makes it narrower and neater.

It is also fashioned at the top of the hose in a way to make it more elastic and comfortable.

Our new machines knit a fine, close-knit fabric, superior in finish even to those high-class foreign lines formerly imported.

There's quality of material behind the finish, too. We use only the best raw materials for our black cashmere, black lisle and white lisle goods.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Trump Card Mine

By GUY HALLECK

I had worked in the Trump Card mine, where they were taking out gold in paying quantities, and had invested my savings in it. I had subscribed for my stock when the owners were forming the company and they needed money. Consequently I got a good lot of stock for very little cash. Three hundred and fifty dollars was all I had, but it bought me 10,000 shares of stock.

The "lead" on which the value of the mine depended soon died out, and the mine appeared to be worthless, but the incorporators knew of paying veins which ran in our direction and believed that some of them extended into our property. So they held on until a rich vein was discovered on adjoining property, and there was a fine chance by digging down a hundred feet to strike the extension. But those interested in both mines kept the secret from outsiders, and our managers got on to it only from their neighbors trying to buy us out.

I was completely ignorant of all this. One morning I was told that the company had no more work for me, it having collapsed, but since the original owners did not like to see me lose anything they would buy my stock at what I had paid for it. I thanked them, but told them that I saw no reason why I should not suffer with the rest, and I would put the certificates away and consider them charged up to profit and loss. But they insisted on making me whole, and I, unsuspicious, sold them my stock.

For some time after this, so far as I knew, there was nothing doing in the Trump Card mine. Occasionally there was a quotation at from 3 to 5 cents a share on the mining stock exchange. One evening while walking by the property I was surprised to see some workmen coming out of a hole in the ground, carrying their dinner pails. I asked one of them if they had been at work, but he was a Norwegian and spoke no English. In fact not a man of the lot could understand a word I said.

If I had simply discovered that work was being done in the mine I would not have become suspicious. But that the owner had thought fit to employ only those who could not communicate with inquirers seemed singular, especially since when I was working for them their men were mostly Americans.

Looking at the sales list of stocks that evening in the newspaper, I saw more sales of Trump Card shares than I had noticed for several weeks previous, though the price had only advanced a fraction. I wondered if something was going on. That night I lay awake thinking.

I sent my wife to linger in the neighborhood of the mine and watch. She saw nothing unusual. There was nothing alive in it so far as she could see. The same night I went to the property and sat on a stump near by till 2 o'clock in the morning, when a cart loomed out of the darkness and passed away into the darkness again. I noticed that it was without a creak. I knew enough about mines to believe that it was carrying ore, and the axles were muffled.

The next day I went down to Denver, where I procured an interview with a man who had held a lot of Trump Card stock, but had sold it at a small profit before the mine collapsed. I told him that I could give him a pointer on a prospective rise in a certain stock and secured a contract from him that if I named it and he bought and made a profit he was to give me 40 per cent of his gains. Then I told him that I believed there was something up in Trump Card.

He consented to make a small investment in it by way of observing its effect on the market, and, being busy himself, committed the matter to me. I found that the only stock to be had were scattered shares held by those who considered their investment a dead loss, and most of these did not care to sell at the present low market price. This strengthened the confidence of my backer, and when I proposed to go about among the former stockholders and pick up the stock at private sale, paying an advance on the market price for it, he assented.

In this way I got what stock did not belong to the original owners, and then I began to bid for more on the exchange. Some stock came out, and my backer feared that we were buying a dead horse. But it turned ont that the ring had sold some stock to prevent the price from going up. This they did because some of them had not got all the shares they wanted.

When I had bought all the shares my backer would stand for and had put back the money I had received for those the managers had so kindly relieved me of, I was obliged to await developments. They came one day when there was a scramble for Trump Card stock on the exchange, and it went up like a squirrel climbing the trunk of a tree. My wife, who was as much absorbed in the matter as I, came to me with the papers giving an account of "A Stir In Trump Card" and threw her arms around my neck, delighted.

Evidently the secret, whatever it was, had come out. The company had struck a new vein not connected with any other and was getting out ore that assayed $300 to the ton.

I reaped a small fortune, but after all I was disgruntled because I did not get revenge on those who had bought my stock for a song when they saw fine prospects ahead.

Aid to Missionaries.

The Territorials in India offer a fine opportunity to give an important section of the British public an insight into Indian affairs. This thought has evidently been carefully noted by the missionaries. "Young Men of India" says: "It is encouraging to find that missionary education is being actively forwarded amongst Territorials in several centres in India. In some places lectures on missionary subjects have attracted large numbers of the men, who are glad to have the opportunity of hearing first hand of what actually is being done. Such lectures have proved a special source of interest when given by an Indian Christian, and when it has been possible to give time for questions at the end of the lecture. At other centres parties of men have been taken to mission institutions, such as hospitals, schools, or out to a village in the country where missionary work is being carried on. Such trips have proved the reality of foreign missions as perhaps few things can to the newcomer to India.

WOMAN AVOIDS OPERATION

Medicine Which Made Surgeon's Work Unnecessary.

Astoria, N. Y. — "For two years I was feeling ill and took all kinds of tonics. I was getting worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pain in my back and I had pains in my stomach. I went to a doctor and he said I must go under an operation, but I did not go. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it. I said 'I know nothing will help me but I will try this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in two weeks time I was able to sit down and eat a hearty breakfast with my husband, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation." — Mrs. JOHN A. KOENIG, 502 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, N. Y.

Every one dreads the surgeon's knife and the operating table. Sometimes nothing else will do; but many times doctors say they are necessary when they are not. Letter after letter comes to the Pinkham Laboratory, telling how operations were advised and were not performed; or, if performed, did no good, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used and good health followed.

PEER'S STIRRING CAREER.

How Lord Dunmore Won the V.C. in India in 1897.

How he risked his life for a comrade, and incidentally won the V. C., is one of the many episodes in the career of Major the Earl of Dunmore, who has been appointed to the General Staff. It was during the fighting on the North-West Frontier that, in 1897, Lord Dunmore, who at the time was also serving as A.D.C. to Lord Elgin, the Viceroy, won the V.C. while attached to the Guides Cavalry in the Tirah campaign.

The cavalry were pursuing the enemy and were ordered to hold a position and fire on them retiring up a hill. At a critical moment the horse of Lieutenant Greaves bolted into the midst of a body of the enemy. Down swooped the hillmen to cut him up, but before their knives could do their work Lieutenant-Colonel Adams, Lieutenant Maclean, and Lieutenant Viscount Fincastle (as Lord Dunmore then was) were amongst them. Hacking their way through the hillmen, they brought back the unfortunate officer in spite of the heavy and murderous fire poured into them. But as Viscount Fincastle lifted the wounded officer in his arms, a bullet killed Lieut-Colonel Greaves, while Lieutenant Maclean fell mortally wounded. It was for this heroic deed that Lord Dunmore was awarded the medal for valor.

His lordship again proved his gallantry during the South African campaign, where he did splendid service and commanded a battalion of Yeomanry known as Fincastle's Horse. This battalion his lordship raised himself, and devised an interesting method of teaching his men horsemanship. He made them ride up and down Arthur's Seat at Edinburgh, and after a few weeks of this practice his troopers became qualified to deal with the stiffest kopjes in South Africa.

As an author, too, Lord Dunmore has distinguished himself. One of the best books on warfare on the North-West Frontier was that which he wrote entitled "The Frontier Campaign."

That Lord Dunmore is not without a sense of humor is evident from the amusing story he tells in this book concerning a young acquaintance of his, who seemed to have solved the difficult problem of dealing with one's father-in-law. He went to the old gentleman and asked permission to marry his daughter, but, as is the way with old gentlemen with pretty daughters, the old fellow became crusty. "You want to marry my daughter, do you?" he snapped. "Humph! You are not exactly the kind of man I should choose for a son-in-law." "Well, to be quite frank," replied the suitor, unblushingly, "you are not exactly the kind of man I should choose for a father-in-law; but don't let that trouble you; we needn't chum after the wedding, you know, unless we want to."

Lord Dunmore's marriage in 1904 to the beautiful Miss Kemble, of the Isle of Skye, was the sequel to a romantic engagement. For eight years previously the couple had been engaged, and during this time the prospective bridegroom was away at the wars in Afghanistan and other parts of the Empire; but fortunately he was spared to come home and claim his bride.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

There is nothing in the world more beautiful than a happy home, a home ruled by the spirit of love; and it is woman's highest and noblest mission to preside over her home and make it a perfect haven of love, peace and rest to those who dwell therein. It is not necessary to be rich and dwell in a stately mansion with gilded walls and carpeted floors, to be happy, for happiness depends on the mind, and it is better to live quietly in a little three room cottage than in the finest mansion, with worry and strife to contend with.

Are you Bilious?
Don't let it run too long, it will lead to chronic indigestion. In the meanwhile you suffer from miserable, sick headaches, nervousness, depression and sallow complexion. Just try CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS. They relieve fermentation, indigestion — gently but surely cleanse the system and keep the stomach and liver in perfect running order.

TWILIGHT RAIDING

Incident of St. Eloi—Prolonged Bombardment Deceived Enemy

The raid was the work of a group of men, volunteers, who had been specially trained in the art of bombing and searching of trenches, so that each man knew exactly what he had to do. The place chosen for the raid was a small German salient to the east of St. Eloi (south of Ypres), between the Bluff and Hill 60. It was an evening raid, conducted in the last of the daylight; and, as usual, preceded by a prolonged bombardment, which left the enemy in the dark as to when and where the blow was to fall.

Under cover of a dense smoke barrage, the advance was made. It took the form of a centre with two wings, all three formations converging on a common objective, which was the centre and rear of the German salient. It was so successful that centre and wings met, amid a crowd of surrendering Germans, at exactly the time and point agreed on. The greatest depth of the advance was 500 yards and the front covered was about the same. There was a certain amount of fighting in the trenches, but the raid had been so well rehearsed that the work of clearing and bombing was quickly done, and the Germans had no time for serious opposition. It was fight or surrender—and in most cases they chose the latter.

Belgian Faith in British

An officer on active service writes: The faith of the Belgian in the cause for which we are fighting and in its ultimate vindication by the strength of the British Empire is shown by the way in which he is creeping back to his homestead. It is now a common sight to see a "bandbox" kind of dwelling knocked together, and occupied within a few days. A good many of them have walls of nothing more substantial than cheese or biscuit boxes intended primarily for the packing of army rations. Discarded tea tins packed with earth have been used in an attempt to make a "bomb-proof" dwelling. The normal population of many of the villages is growing rapidly by the homing instincts of the Belgian and through his confidence in British troops to keep the Boche where he is.

DYSPEPSIA

MOST DIFFICULT TO CURE BUT B. B. B. DOES IT

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure.

You eat too much; drink too much; make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of time before dyspepsia follows.

That forty-year-old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, will cure the dyspepsia, and will cure it to stay cured as we can prove by the thousands of testimonials we receive from time to time.

Mr. Neil A. Cameron, Kiltarlity, N. S., writes: "I am writing you a few lines to tell you what your great medicine Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I was troubled very much with dyspepsia for the past two years. I was recommended all kinds of medicines, but they did not help me any. At last a friend advised me to try a bottle of B.B.B. I took four bottles and was totally cured. I will gladly recommend it to all sufferers."

CANADIAN FREIGHT ASSOCIATION

MONTREAL, April 20. — The railways operating in Canada, including the Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk, Grand Trunk Pacific, Canadian Northern, Michigan Central, Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo, and Pere Marquette, to-day filed their applications for increased freight rates and passenger fares with the Board of Railway Commissioners. The applicants request permission to make brief supplements to existing tariffs, authorizing an advance of fifteen per cent. on all class and commodity freight rates (except on coal) and also on all passenger fares. A specific increase of fifteen cents per ton on both bituminous and anthracite coal is requested, such advances to be permitted to become effective upon less than thirty days notice.

The grounds upon which this application is made are set forth as follows:

"Nothing is more essential to the welfare of Canada, whether considered in its own interests or as a part of the Empire, than that the Railways operating within its borders should be in a position to respond immediately and effectively to the fullest demands made upon them, either by the general commerce of the country or in connection with the defence of the realm.

"Every industry, whether engaged in war preparation or in the manufacture of commercial commodities, and every individual in Canada, is affected, either directly or indirectly, by the efficiency or inefficiency of the transportation facilities, and while at the present time, owing to scarcity in skilled labor and other causes due to the war, it may not be possible to maintain the transportation service in a condition of the highest efficiency, it is an imperative duty on the part of everyone to see that the service is adequately sustained.

"The applicants claim that under the present revenues and rates applicable to their enterprises it is impossible to adequately sustain their service, to make needed betterments, or to meet the enormous decrease in net operating income attributable to the very substantial increased cost of fuel, coal, materials, supplies, equipment of all kinds and wages entering into the maintenance and operation of their railways.

"Since the rates of the railway companies are absolutely fixed under the Railway Act, the applicants are powerless to increase their revenues, equalize or even to approach the equalization of this increased cost in fuel, coal and other commodities, and they are faced with a probable deficit in net operating income unless immediate relief is granted.

"Substantial increases in both freight and passenger rates are therefore imperatively necessary, and the emergency requires that the relief granted should be made in the most expeditious manner and with the least possible delay.

"If advances in rates be proposed and filed with the Board in compliance with its present rules governing the publication of tariffs, a long delay must necessarily ensue before such tariff publication can be prepared and made effective, and for these reasons it is deemed expedient that any advance permitted should be made by virtue of the War Measures Act, and that the Board upon the passage of any Order in Council as may be recommendation by Board, should permit the publication of flat percentage advances to existing tariffs by supplementary tariffs filed with the Board, and that such supplementary tariffs should be published and made effective at the earliest possible moment.

"Even should these advances be authorized, the increased revenues which the applicants will receive therefrom will not be sufficient to meet the additional outlay which they will be called upon to make in the purchase of the one article—coal—used yearly by the applicants in Canada.

The railways are submitting with their application details of the great increases in railway operating expenses due to the rise in the price of fuel, coal, and other commodities, increased duties, war taxes and labor payments.

The Boards of Trade and commercial bodies have been officially informed of the railways' intentions to seek increased rates by the Canadian Freight Association. In its message to these commercial organizations, the Association states that under the conditions prevailing it is believed that the various boards of trade will cheerfully support the application of the railways.

U. S. MONEY IS DISCOUNTED.

MEXICO CITY, April 24. — Mexico is one place where the American dollar is at a discount. This discount ranges from 10 to 40 per cent, according to the locality. This has been caused by the scarcity of Mexican gold and silver coins and the fact that certain taxes and rents and the wages of employees must now according to decree, be paid in Mexican gold.

"Hidalgos" or Mexican gold ten peso coins in Mexico City, now sell for $8.50 and in some of the remote states the price has reached as high as $7.50, while they used to sell for $4.90.

Nervous Headaches And Neuralgic Pains

Are the Surest Symptoms of Exhausted Nerves—Lasting Cure Effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Peterborough, Ont., March 5. — Among the hundreds of cures being reported from this city as the result of using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the most prominent symptoms are headaches and neuralgic pains. About one-fifth of all the blood in the human body is consumed in the brain in the manufacture of nerve force. When the blood gets thin and watery the nerves are starved and you have headaches, neuralgic and sciatic pains. Dr. Chases Nerve Food, by forming new, rich blood, affords lasting cure of such ailments.

Miss Edythe Cowles, 563 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "For some years I have suffered from nervousness, sleeplessness and a run-down system. Many times chloroform had to be resorted to to relieve the severe headaches I used to have. I had doctored for years, and had been advised that it would be necessary to have an operation, but I kept putting it off. Finally, I procured a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and before I had taken many of the pills found that they were doing me good, so I continued the treatment. My headaches have ceased, I can now eat and sleep fine. I have not felt so well for many years. This is the only medicine I have taken, and I can give the full credit to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I have already recommended it to many of my friends."

Mrs. W. T. Abbott, 268 Patterson street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "My system was in a run-down condition, and I was troubled with nervousness and sleeplessness. For some time, also, I had been bothered with neuralgia, and, although I tried many remedies, it was without success. Upon the advice of a friend, I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found in five or six days that my neuralgia was cured, and I have not been troubled in this way since. I also find that now I can rest and sleep well, and I give full credit of this great benefit to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I might also mention that I had lost considerable in weight, but after using the Nerve Food I gained back the flesh I had lost. My husband has also found Dr. Chase's Nerve Food of great benefit to him, and uses it when he feels run down from overwork."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 60 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

USE MANY TRICKS TO EVADE MILITARY DUTY.

PARIS. — Tricks to avoid military dut have been varied rather than numerous during the war. The most recent stratagem is that of two shirkers, unknown to each other, who hid in the woods to escape service. One of them, a man named Souleillon, 32 years old, remained concealed from the beginning of hostilities in order to avoid the mobilization order. His father dying, Souleillon came out of hiding to lay claim to his parents' estate. An alert gendarme at Cahors took him into custody, reminding him that, before being an heir, he had to be a soldier.

The second case was that of Alfred Rous, who took refuge in the forest of Reynaldes. Here he built himself a comfortable cabin with stones, branches and tiles. Behind his lodging place he installed an oven to bake bread. Possessing a rifle, two pistols and much ammunition, Rous hunted, and caught fish. Recently a young shepherdess, seeking a strayed sheep, surprised Rous, who was asleep. Gendarmes were called, and after a short fight the deserter was found and arrested.

VIMY RIDGE.

(By J. Sydney Roe.)

This is his room, the room where he was born,
My blue-eyed bonny boy who marched away
And left me to my dreams of yesterday
To wear the mother's crown of pride and thorn!

This little room—how full of him it seems;
How full of him, his laughter and his song,
The weighted days turn slowly, and the long
Long, lonely nights, too dark for hope—and dreams!

He loved his Canada, he fought and died
That she might still be great and strong and free.
He was my all—the very heart of me,
And nought is left but memories and pride.

He passed the sentry-gate and crossed the bridge,
(The bridge that's drenched by countless mothers' tears).
To-day he stands erect among his peers,
My boy, my boy, who fell at Vimy Ridge!

SURVIVORS HERE FROM SUNKEN SHIPS

NEW YORK.—Thirty-nine survivors, including six passengers, of three British steamships which were torpedoed without warning by German submarines were landed in New York from the Fabre line Venezia and the British freighter Port Albany.

Five of the men had undergone the experience of being torpedoed twice in one day, and all of them had been from four to five days and nights in the lifeboats, exposed to wind and sea with no protection and barely any provisions. Seven died from exposure in the lifeboats.

Some of the officers and men were so weak from their sufferings in the boats that they were scarcely able to walk past the health officer at the Quarantine Station. One boy, 17 years old, was so weakened with the exposure to the waves that he looked like an old man.

Two of the vessels—the British freighter Stanley and the collier Trevose, sunk on March 21 and 18, respectively—are not mentioned in the British Admiralty lists.

The Venezia, which arrived first, brought in 24 survivors, including six passengers of the Union-Castle liner Alnwick Castle, which was torpedoed on March 19 on her way from London to Cape Town with a crew of 100 men and 24 passengers. Five of the crew of the Trevose had been picked up by the Alnwick Castle on March 19, after being out in their boat all night, and were just prepared for a free trip to Cape Town and back when a torpedo drove them to lifeboats again before their clothing had been dried in the ship's gallery.

SAVED IN SEVEN LIFEBOATS

Captain B. Chave said that the Alnwick Castle was 200 miles out at sea when she was torpedoed on the morning of March 10. She sank in 25 minutes. She had 139 persons on board, including the Trevose's crew of 25, and among the Alnwick's passengers were a woman and her baby, three months old. All the seven lifeboats were launched and got safely away from the sinking steamship.

"Just as the masts and funnel of the Alnwick Castle were disappearing beneath the waves," the Captain said, "the German submarine rose among the lifeboats, and the commander watched our ship founder from the conning tower. Then he steamed away on the surface after another steamship that we could see about four miles to the eastward.

"Afterward we heard a big explosion and saw this steamship blown up, and later our boats passed through a quantity of wreckage, but we did not see any signs of her crew. From the force of the explosion she was probably some vessel that had a quantity of ammunition in her hold.

"We kept together that day, but during the night the lifeboats became separated. Next morning we found ourselves alone on the sea, with less than one week's supply of hardtack, one can of condensed milk, and two small breakers of fresh water. The biscuits and water were whacked out twice a day carefully so as to make them last.

SURVIVORS' SEVERE SUFFERING

"The constant exposure caused the hands and feet of the men to swell to twice normal size by the time they were rescued by the Venezia in the afternoon of March 23, after being over four days and nights in the boats."

The men who died in the boat were R. Thomas and Toile, firemen; W. Kitchen, foreman cattleman; his assistant known only as Peter, and Buckley the Captain's servant. The survivors were so weak that they had to be hoisted on board, the crew of the Venezia said.

The six passengers saved are John Burleigh, Blyth, England, E. J. Williams, Morris, England; E. O. Morrison and J. F. Wilson, mining engineers Johannesburg, S. A.; Goddes Frazer Aderdeen, Scotland, and W. T. Newnham, Isle of Wight, England.

Others saved from the Alnwick Castle, in addition to the captain, were M. Macdougall, chief engineer; R. O. Speedy, surgeon; R. E. Jones, purser; N. E. Conaby, wireless operator; K. R. Hemmings, cadet officer; S. Merrells quartermaster; T. Moores and A. Page, seamen; A. Migeal, oiler; S. F. Softly and S. Hopkins, fireman, and H. Weyers, assistant steward.

George Gray, one of the five survivors of the Trevose, said that she was sunk on March 18, twelve days out from Newcastle, with coal for Alexandria, Egypt. The submarine torpedoed the ship, killing two of the crew and twenty-five got away in the two lifeboats at once.

Half an hour later, Gray added, the U-boat rose to the surface and sent a boat to the Trevose to put bombs in the hold as she was not sinking fast enough to please the commander. The boat to the Trevose to put bombs in one Grey was in was picked up early next morning by the Alnwick.

Fifteen survivors of the British steamship Stanley reached New York yesterday afternoon on the British freighter Port Albany, laden with chalk from London. The engineers, two firemen, and the donkeyman were killed when a torpedo struck the engine room, and two firemen died of exposure in the lifeboat.

One of the firemen who died was an American, but his name could not be ascertained. Chief Engineer Jenkins said, as he had shipped at Newport News when the Stanley sailed on March 8 for Cherbourg with a cargo of grain.

Chief Officer Cole said the Stanley was about 100 miles west of the Irish coast on March 21 when she was torpedoed without warning.

"When the crew had got into the boats the submarine fired on them at a distance of about half a mile," he continued. "But fortunately the sea was choppy and the gunners missed us. Then the U-boat fired some shells at the Stanley and she sank very quickly. There were thirty-six survivors, of whom eighteen went with the Captain in his boat, and we lost sight of them the first night we were adrift.

APPLES, ORANGES, FIGS AND PRUNES

Are The Four Fruits Used in Making "Fruit-a-tives"

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" is the only medicine in the world that is made from the juices of fresh ripe fruits. Thus, it is manifestly unfair to say, "I won't take Fruit-a-tives because I have tried other remedies and they did me no good". On the other hand, the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" is entirely different from any other preparation in the world, is just why you should give it a fair trial, in any trouble of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys or Skin. "Fruit-a-tives", is composed of the active principle of fruit and the greatest nerve tonic ever discovered. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

PAPER ARTIFICIAL LEGS

Cheap and Quite Effective For Temporary Use

Artificial legs, made from papier mache and costing less than 75 cents each, are being supplied to wounded. Artificial legs, made from papier mache, which are the invention of a Danish surgeon, are merely for temporary use, but with care, will last from six months to a year. They are made on the spot, can be used a fortnight after the amputation, and obviate the necessity for crutches while the patient is convalescing. A hospital orderly can cut out, fit and complete a paper leg for a patient in about half an hour. The work takes a day to dry and set, and may be used the next day by the invalid.

SURGICAL NICKNAMES

Baptismal Names Vanish in Military Hospital

A soldier writes: at the baptismal feat our god-fathers provided us with a distinguishing mark such as Tom, Dick, or Harry—by heredity we were saddled with surnames more or less elegant, but at this professional hour all these are forgotten. One becomes an "arm," a "neck," a "trench foot," a "stump" or (sinister word), a "spine," in my own case I am a "knee," by many surgeons considered the aristocrat of battle wounds.

Clothes, a Sheet of Ice

A war correspondent writes: "The cold," a private told me, "is more severe than I ever knew before. It makes your hands burn in agony to touch your rifle or bayonet, and your clothes freeze on you when wet. A few nights ago, wet through to the very skin after working ankle deep in a leaky underground gallery, I marched two miles from the trenches to our rest camp. Everything on me was a sheet of ice when I got in—bootlaces, socks, singlet, shirt, all was solid ice."

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

Is Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

GERMAN BESTIALITY AFFLICTS POLAND

Canadian Attitude Worries Germans, Especially by Night—Their Frantic Efforts Show Weakness

Night activities in the front line trenchs are described in a Toronto officer's letter, as follows: As the hours pass, out of the dug-outs tumble men in twos. These two fumble their way to the groups, and there is a brief exchange of compliments, and those who have been standing grope their way to the dug-out. Regularly as the stroke of a clock, only much more frequently, Fritz's snipers and fixed rifles crack past. We maintain absolute silence. Every few minutes, from different points, up goes a great, ghostly rocket from Fritz's line, which lights up No Man's Land in a green, baleful glow, showing our wire to us, and stumps and shadows. We answer with never a sound, never a glimpse of light. Once in a while a faint flash and a fainter thud comes from Fritz's line, and a swift trail of sparks mounts up, up, turns, and falls towards us. There is another, more tangible, thud, and then a smashing, roaring, awful explosion. A Fritz trench mortar.

Trench Mortar Answered

Promptly there sounds a deep, chesty cough, and in absolute darkness our trench gun shoots a more deadly package high in the air to fall and explode with a more deafening smash and a whine of flying fragments. Fritz's machine guns open swift, chattering bursts on our line. Our machine guns, shielded and showing no flash, spit savagely and continuously for long moments, sweeping his line, preventing parties from repairing wire, or improving trench.

"Fritz is Groggy"

Fritz is groggy from our inscrutable silence, our darkness, our contempt for his efforts. Our answers are always in darkness. They give no spark, no flash; and, best of all, there is no end to the awful whisper of our great shells wending unknown paths away in the infinite sky. Sooner or later in the night, suddenly there is the far thumping of distant guns, or the near screaming and whacking of shells as some small raid goes swiftly at Fritz. He throws frantic flares and red ones for his guns. His guns open blindly in all directions. There is merry hell for an hour.

ITALY'S HANDY SOLDIERS

Difficulties to be Dealt With in Alpine Warfare

Dr. Mario Borsa writes in the Daily Mail: One of the most typical means of transport in Alpine warfare is the one our soldiers call "wire ways." These consist of steel cables, slung from ridge to ridge, that span yawning depths or reach almost vertically into the clouds. Up these cables travel guns and food, as well as timber for the huts and men for the trenches. Down them come the wounded. There are about 300 fixed installations of "wire ways"; some of them have a length of seven miles and a carrying capacity of 800 pounds. Beside the fixed ones, there are also the movable "wire ways." These are in sections, easily mounted and dismounted, and can be transported from one place to another in 24 hours.

Timber, too, had to be provided in great quantities. More than 10,000 huts have been built for sheltering the troops. I have seen a good many of them, says Dr. Borsa. Some are hidden in the snow; others in the thick pine forests. Some are large and comparatively comfortable; others small and bare, I could not help admiring how clean and tidy they are kept.

During the long vigil the carpenter-soldier delights in ornamental work. The regimental or brigade badges are generally carved above the door entrances of the huts. Here and there the carving is more ambitious, representing as it does coats of arms, trees, flowers, or animals. It is altogether a curious architecture, reflecting the love of life—of this varied, luminous, sentimental, Italian life that has brought up to the inhospitable Alps all the sweet and longing memories of its golden fields and brown vineyards, of its blue lakes and enchanting seashore.

C.P.R.'S GOOD RECORD

They Have Sent 3,814 Men to the War—An Interesting List

Three thousand eight hundred and fourteen employes of the western lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway enlisted for active service up to 1917, was announced by the Winnipeg records office. THE IRISH BRIGADES.

What though we come from the east or west,
Though of north or of south were our birth:
We come from the land we love the best,
The sweetest and saddest land on earth.

If Dargle's glad waters laugh and dance
And Ovoca sings to listening trees,
From the Boyne and Emain and Clontarf
Woes of old battles moan on the breeze;

Over Roscommon's bogland and plain,
The wild geese mourn for a day that dies;
At the cold feet of Cape Clear in vain
The Atlantic sighs as a lover sighs;

O, sadly, sweetly, the voices call
Where Antrim's glens slope down to the foam;
And sweet on the hills of Donegal
The blue peat smoke and the smell of home.

This is our love for that land loved best—
Her fame fixed high in the war of wars,
Her valour by all the world confessed,
Her name written large among the stars.

We said if we fall our brothers will rise,
Their faces turned to these fearsome lands,
From field and fen, where the sea bird cries,
Their hands held out to our ghostly hands.

We said, they will stand where we have stood,
Irish brigades in the nations' sight
Resisting the evil unto blood—
Who talk of freedom for freedom fight.

We said, but we bow our heads in shame,
Thinner and thinner our ranks have grown,
Our name of pride will be but a name
And strangers shall reap where we have sown.

But you will reap only vain regret,
Brothers, when the evil day is done,
And alien hands in the Temple set
The blood stained banners which we have won.

6 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Omemee, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

"Mistakes can be Averted."

Philadelphia Press: "The mistakes that England and France made can here be averted by following the counsel of these representative statesmen."

"Should Use Lessons."

Wheeling (W. V.,) Register: "War is now a serious business and soldiers must be thoroughly and arduously trained for it. Uncle Sam should therefore take full advantage of those lessons which Great Britain and France have had to learn at the cost of much blood and treasure."

FIERCE FIGHTING ON WESTERN FRONT

General Haig Reports Still Further Gains

Hand-To-Hand Fighting In Which The British Still Gain

General Haig's Forces Have Taken Over 3000 Prisoners Since Monday and Are Inflicting Terrible Losses on Germans Who Are Using Great Masses of Men With Reckless Prodigality For Human Life---French Official Statement Reports Gains on Their Front.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, April 25.—More than three thousand prisoners have been taken since Monday's resumptions of the British drive, and further advances despite bitter opposition from the Germans, were reported in Field Marshal Haig's report to-day. "Early this morning in the fighting along the front between Cojeul and the Scarpe, we further progressed and secured our gains," he said. "Our prisoners since Monday are 3,029, including fifty-six officers." British forces captured Bilhem, east of Havrincourt Wood and northeast of Trescault last night, advancing their line still nearer to Cambrai. Germany was to-day throwing every available man within reach into the breach which the British troops have hacked on the northernmost pivot of the Wotan line. On a front of nearly nine miles to-day from Oppy to around Croisilles the fighting was raging with ferocity unparalleled since the days of the opening of the war, when the Allied troops beat back the Germans in their rush toward Paris. Once again the Germans are using great masses of men poured with reckless prodigality for human life into the rents where the stubborn British advance has penetrated. There is hand-to-hand fighting of the bitterest sort. It was in struggles of this intensity to-day that the British were still pushing forward, inch by inch, and yard by yard.

PARIS (French Official Communique), April 25. — Violent fighting along most of the French front, with gains in the Aisne and Champagne sectors, was announced by the French official statement to-day. "Between the Somme and the Oise it was calm," the War Office said. "The French artillery silenced the Germans. Near la Fere, in the Aisne region, the French progressed southeast of Cerny Lannois making prisoners. Near Hurlebise and on the Plateau Vauclair, German attacks following heavy bombardment were stopped short. In the Champagne the French are progressing near the hill without a name, capturing guns and prisoners."

German attacks were checked near Tahure, and Maisons de Champagne," the statement continued, "the enemy leaving many dead on their barbed wire defenses.

"In Alsace the French successfully cleaned up a German trench at Sammertsvillers."

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES AFIELD, April 25.—Frightful losses were inflicted on German troops mainly counter-attacking at Gavrelle today. From a range of 300 yards—almost point blank—British artillery poured concentrated fire upon the Germans' massed ranks. The attacking forces were completely cut to pieces. South of the Scarpe the British are advancing steadily. North of the river, however, the battle was in the standstill stage. The most desperate fighting of the war featuring violent attempts by both sides to gain.

PETROGRAD, April 25.—Destruction of the Turkish Harbour Works at Kerasunt and of five Turkish vessels in that port, was announced officially to-day as the successful outcome of a Russian cruiser, destroyer and submarine raid in the Black Sea.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo to-day handed the British Ambassador a treasury warrant for $200,000,000, the first loan made to any Entente Government by the United States under the seven million war finance measure. Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British Ambassador, handed to Secretary McAdoo, a receipt on behalf of the British Government, and the transaction was complete.

Liberties of Mankind Animate Allied Cause

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, April 25. — The condemnation of "certain doubt critics, who think France and Great Britain have come here to inveigle the United States into entangling alliances with European forces," was voiced by the British Foreign Secretary Arthur J. Balfour in a public statement here to-day. Mr. Balfour said: "You have been watching this blood-stained drama from afar. Each month the conviction in your minds has grown that no small or petty interests are involved. You realize that this is not a quarrel for so many square miles of territory. You know thoroughly well that the liberties of mankind alone are animating the Allied cause. Therefore you have joined in the great conquest. We know you will throw all your forces of invention, production and man power into the balance. Nothing can turn you from it."

Germany in Turmoil

Special to the Examiner:

NEW YORK, April 25.—Associated Press despatches declare that political turmoil is tearing Germany, and many newspapers are openly attacking Von Bethmann Hollweg and his government, who is held responsible largely for the war, and many of the troubles brought in its train. It is stated also that labour trouble is rife in Sweden, and May day may bring a revolution there.

OVERHEAD BRIDGE NEEDN'T BE BUILT UNTIL YEAR 1919

Mr. Robert Stuart of the Quaker Oats Company Cordially Received Peterborough's Delegation—Extra Land Also Passed Up

MR. DENHAM WAS PRESENT

In connection with the rebuilding of the Quaker Oats Company, the city will not be required to build the overhead bridge at Hunter street until 1919. This was one of the satisfactory arrangements effected by the civic deputation that waited on Mr. Robert Stuart in Chicago on Monday. It comprised Mayor Duffus, Aldermen Weir and McIntyre and City Solicitor Gordon. The Mayor stated this morning that the deputation was heartily received by Mr. Stuart and introduced by Mr. W. H. Denham. It was pointed out that the city desired to assist the company and facilitate their work in whatever manner possible. But the Mayor stated that owing to the cost of structural material, the overhead bridge presented certain difficulties which it was hoped might be obviated by the postponement of this work.

It has been suggested that the city provide a strip of land on the south side of Hunter street, just west of the tracks, to enable the company to widen their approach and increase the number of sidings into their premises. Mayor Duffus stated that the city had hoped to secure the several parcels of properties, but the owners demanded exorbitant prices which the city refused to accept. Mr. Stuart agreed to waive this concession, and it was pointed out that any time the company requires the land they simply have to expropriate it through the Dominion Railway Board. In both these requests from the city, Mr. Stuart met the delegation more than half way, and the Mayor's party returned highly pleased with the turn the negotiations have taken. One of the first effects will be the fact that the vote on the by-law will require only a straight majority.

All those who enjoyed the run last week are invited to participate to-morrow night and bring along as many other riders as possible in order that the bicycle branch of the parade will make a good showing.

Big Cattle Raising Scheme

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, April 25.—A fifteen-year lease of 25,000 acres of Crown land at five cents an acre and the hearty co-operation of the Government in carrying out the scheme was assured a deputation representing the British Cattle Supply Co. which waited upon Premier Hearst to-day and outlined the company's plans to go into the large cattle raising project in Ontario. Five million dollars will be invested. They already have large acreages in Alberta.

Blind Hero Is Married

Special to the Examiner:

OTTAWA, April 25.— Lieut. A. G. Viets, blind from wounds in war, was to-day married to Miss Mary Moody, a nurse, who met him in hospital in England. He never saw and never will see his bride, as he is totally blind. Both are Nova Scotia people.

French War Commission Has Landed

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, April 25.— French War Commission, including ex-Premier Viviani and Marshal Joffre, landed at Washington navy yard pier from the President's yacht Mayflower, shortly before 12.30 to-day.

ONLY THREE MORE MEETINGS

Evangelist H. M. Harper will be in Gospel Hall just three more nights. Everyone who heard the address last evening felt as if the best has been kept to the last, his subject being events taking place on the earth after the return of the Lord for his church. It was a grand thing to be saved, said the speaker, and he looked as if he really meant it. The Scriptures read were from Matt. 24, Thes., 2, and Rev. 19.

"These solemn events will surely come to pass," said he. Oh I warn you to come to Jesus and then you will be ready for any event."

To-night Mr. Harper will finish the second coming theme. All should try to come and hear the gifted young man, and not only hear him, but seek to know Him of whom he speaks. Farewell meeting Friday night.

Lt.-Col. R. H. Greer Home From Front

SPORTSMEN'S BATTALION HAS BEEN ABSORBED IN RESERVE UNIT.

TORONTO, April 24.—Lt.-Col. R. H. Greer, former commanding officer of the 180th Sportsmen's Battalion, has returned home from England, and will resume his legal duties to-day. Lt.-Col. Greer said it was a great disappointment to the officers and men of the 180th that they had to be absorbed in another unit, but military reasons demanded it. Owing to the absorption Lt.-Col. Greer was placed on the reserve staff, but as no encouragement was offered him of going to the front with his boys, even as an officer of lower rank, he decided to return home. He was in charge of a company of 1,100 women and children in addition to 500 troops, which returned on the Olympic. The voyage lasted 18 days, as the boat was delayed in British waters while the course was cleared of mines. Mrs. Greer accompanied the colonel home. Lt.-Col. Greer said last night that everyone in England was optimistic regarding the outcome of the great struggle. No one doubted for a moment but that the Germans would be completely defeated. He had a brief experience of lief in the trench as before returning, but being still on active service he was not permitted to disclose what those experiences were.

Cut Enemy From the St. Quentin Canal and Smash Forward at Three Important Points.

DOMINANCE OF AIR

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, April 24.—In the face of growing opposition along the entire line, the British smashed forward at three points to-day on the front between Lens and St. Quentin, advancing along the Peronne-Cambrai road, between Trescault and Gonnelieu—both of which villages were captured in the last drive—Haig's forces occupied the villages of Villois-Plouich and Beaucamp, after bitter fighting. The St. Quentin Canal has been cut off from the Germans. This was one of the enemy's chief arteries of supplies. The Arras-Douai railway is also under bombardment.

South of Beaucamp and to the east of Epehy the British gained ground "on a wide front," the War Office reports, reaching and crossing the St. Quentin Canal near Vendhuille, less than two miles from the important railroad centre of Le Catelet.

Take Over 2,000 Prisoners.

On the main line of the Arras battle front, from Croisilles to Gavrelle, Haig's forces advanced their lines to within a few hundred yards of Cherisy and Fontaine-les-Croisilles, pressed forward east of Monch-le-Preux and Roeux, and maintained their positions in Gavrelle against a series of furious counter-assaults by the German troops, whose losses were severe.

"More than 2,000 prisoners have passed through our collecting station since Monday morning, and there are others yet to come," says to-night's official communique from General Haig.

Foe Throws Away Men.

Reuter's correspondent at British Headquarters in France contrast the reckless prodigality with which the Germans are now throwing reserves of men and guns into the firing line with their previous prudence, and says that they clearly realise the full extent of the Anglo-French menace to their whole system of communications and are desperately trying to counter the danger. Continuing, the correspondent says:

"They are throwing in their strategic reserves wholesale, and are rushing up guns and ammunition which must be weakening some other points in their long-drawn armor. Since the Germans began their retreat in the middle of February they have shown every desire to conserve man power, but during the last thirty-six hours they have shown a complete recklessness in repeating counter-attacks in mass without regard to the cost, which must be appalling.

"Our gunners by a constant fire on the Arras-Douai railway are making it very difficult for the Germans to bring up ammunition. The cutting of the St. Quentin Canal also deprives the enemy of one of his main lines of communication.

"The capture of Beaucamp and Villers-Plouich has given us a commanding position on the opposite side of the railway to Gonnelieu, and straightens our front towards Marcoing, from which we are now about three miles distant.

"One of the most striking features of the fighting is the sudden reassumption of our dominance in the air. Yesterday we brought down forty German aeroplanes, only two of our machines being missing."

Big Gains; Slight Loss.

An earlier Reuter's despatch says: "The fighting now proceeding is the fiercest seen in this war. The Germans have thrown in large reserves and have brought up a great number of guns.

"They probably realize that the battle now developing may assume a Germans have thrown in large resisting desperately. They are doing just what we want. The German army is only to be defeated and broken by hard fighting, and the recent movement of the enemy justified some doubt as to whether they would stand further hard fighting. They certainly are doing it now and accepting battle in the open. So far we have gained a good deal and lost nothing."

THE AUTO SHOW.

Business and sentiment are regarded as things that do not mix much more readily than oil and water; but the Auto Show in the Armouries on April 26-28, is a strong blend of business and sentiment. This Auto Show, in both object and results, concerns public motor and patriotic interest. Of course, the primary object of the show is to "show off" the automobiles; the result is to benefit the funds of the Red Cross Association.

There is a happy coincidence in the nature of the show and the cause to be incidentally and—it is to be hoped—largely benefitted. We all know, or think we know—academically, at least—what Red Cross work means. We know that the automobile is a prominent and indispensable instrument in in carrying on the work. Automobile ambulances on the fighting front—one of them by the way driven and "manned" by a Peterborough girl, as used almost exclusively as an auxiliary to Red Cross work in conveying wounded or sick soldiers from the field to the hospitals, where the Red Cross nurses work with upturned sleeves and tireless skill and loving sympathy, to do the work the auto ambulance brings them.

The relation existing between the auto and the Red Cross in action is therefore naturally very intimate, and it should be as intimate between the auto show, next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and the object of its results—strengthening the sinews of Red Cross work, by increase of funds to be devoted to its purposes.

They say the auto show will be well worth seeing. There will be many makes and every variety of use of autos on exhibit, together with accessories. No only will the show be well worth seeing but every visitor will have the satisfaction in addition to the pleasure of seeing, admiring and profiting, of knowing that he is helping the efficiency of a much needed and noble work of mercy and healing.

TITLE AND MERIT.

The Toronto Telegram is a fierce opponent to the bestowal of knighthoods, peerages et hoc genus omne of decorative distinctions. It "sails into" the subject with its usual vim and capitalizes its intellect in the interest of emphasis. Giving a knighthood or other decoration to a Canadian, no doubt had its origin in the desire to confer a distinction, but making the practice so common—making knights baronets and companions of this and that "as plentiful as blackberries" the honour becomes merely nominal and ceases to be a distinction. If all swans were black a black swan would not be a rara avis.

The frequency of the bestowal of titles on Canadians, as well as the mode of selection, cheapen the honour; and the mode opens the door to abuses, and brings in the most regretable manifestation of the party patronage practice, and make, the King, the fountain of honour, an innocent and, perhaps, unwilling party to en-nobling, in the purely figurative sense, partisan mediocrities, who have nothing to recommend them to knightly or other honours, but a potent and impudently asserted political or party "pull." If some Canadian makes himself so prominent as to challenge the attention of Royalty, such as becoming the Premier of Canada, and filling the place with distinction to an extent to partially justify royal honours being thrust upon him, then a title of some kind is not so much amiss. But the partisan recommending of this or that partisan because he has made a little money, or has made himself useful to his party, is degrading the honour of knighthood or similar titles. And such a bestowal becomes, not a distinction, but a contrast—between the honour and the worthiness of its recipient. Merit of service or other accomplishment should be the price of a title.

FOR SAILORS AND SOLDIERS.

The visit of Dr. Anderson, in the interests of the work of the Canadian Royal Naval Institutes is a good thing for both Peterborough and the cause. He leaves the city grateful for his kind reception and the liberal contributions of citizens. He will be able to say a good word for Peterborough wherever he goes, as Peterborough wil have pleasant memories of him, and his zeal in his work. There are several branches of the Royal Naval Institute in Canada—at Halifax, Quebec, Montreal, St. John's, Toronto, Vancouver, Victoria, etc. These institutes are Sailors' Homes for both the heroes of our navy and mercantile marine. We can't appreciate adequately what we owe to the brave men who alone make the mighty British navy the bulwark of the British Isles, and the far-flung dominions beyond the seas. Being landlubbers—living far inland—we have no chance to learn by observation what these men and the navy mean to us, but we know we owe our safety to them, and we can easily fancy what their sacrifices and sufferings must be in this war of bestial ruthlessness. Dr. Anderson brings these things home to us in his lectures, and the institutes get all funds these and his personal solicitations bring. His work is a labour of love in a double sense. He receives no salary, and his knowledge of the work of the navy and the needs of the invalided men is great. Though only in Naval Institute work some three months, he has since 1900 been giving his time to the work for sailors. In doing this he has visited Portsmouth, Gibraltar, Malta, Halifax, Bermuda and the other British naval bases. He knows all about them and his lectures give striking pictures of the navy, its concerns and interests, that help us realise what we owe to it, and also realise one main object apart from help to sailors, nurses and soldiers in need—the educative value in arousing and unifying the imperial spirit and strengthening the bonds that come from recognition and appreciation of the cementing influence of the ceaseless watch and ward of the British navy, whose protection embraces the interests of every British land, washed by every sea that washes every shore.

THE WHY.

The Toronto News, which never loses a chance to berate Quebec, and condemn a whole people for the fault of a few, publishes a letter from "a member of one of the new Canadian regiments," asserting that Canadian trains passing through Quebec had been stoned by "bootleggers," and the soldiers on the train felt as if they were "passing through an enemy country." If this is true, and it is probably only partly true, the Toronto News and like journals, which have defended the cause of all this, are to blame. This condition of sporadic hostility, as far as it exists in Quebec, is wholly due to "Nationalism," the disloyal doctrine that preaching and having preached for years that Canada, and especially Quebec, owes no duty to the Empire, has poisoned the minds of the unthinking and especially the rabble element in Quebec, to whom its damnable doctrines directly appeal.

Every sentiment and instinct of loyalty naturally arrayed as it arrays itself against Nationalism when it first appeared, and what it teaches; and it would have had a short life of influence, if the party of the Borden government had not for party gain, adopted and fosterfathered "Nationalism" by helping the propaganda to elect representatives of it to parliament. "Nationalism" too, would have been left to the possession of its own comparatively insignificant infamy if it had not been adopted and officially recognized by appointing three members of a cult that "had no use for Britain and the British"—constructive traitors—as advisers of the King and ministers in the cabinet of a loyal country. "Nationalism" would not have gained such a hold upon the rabble element of Quebec, but for the encouragement of a government that purchased the support of Nationalists at the price of the sacrifice of a Canadian navy, involving the sacrifice of Canada's self-respect, nd of her leading position of pre-eminence among the overseas dominions. "Nationalism" would have remained as insignificant as it is disloyal and contemptible, had not its sugar-plumming by the government not been excused and endorsed by the partisan press, in which the News itself has been tacit principes in not only indirectly helping create and widen the cleft "Nationalism" has created, but hypocritically deploring the the evil it has helped to create. Following the sequence of cause and effect the News and the partisan interests it supports, are responsible for the alleged fact, if fact it is, of Canadian troop trains passing through Quebec being stoned my hoodlums—the spawn of the accursed cult of "Nationalism."

HOW WAR PROSPERITY HELPS CANADA BEAR FINANCIAL BURDEN

If it had not been for the munitions contracts placed in Canada by the British and allied governments, representing in value over $800,000,000, the war would have been a crushing burden to this country. As it is, the manufacture of munitions has stimulated almost all industries, increased production in many directions, and has served to produce a prosperity which though illusive and not likely to survive the war, is real enough while it lasts.

Sir Thomas White's third war budget, brought down to-day, shows that the country is bearing the burden of war expenditure more easily than might have been expected owing to the general prosperity and the resultant growth in the national revenue. For the past year ending March 31, 1915, the total national revenue was $130,000,000; for the second fiscal year of the war it was $170,000,000, and for the fiscal year just closed it was $232,000,000. To the total revenue the business war tax has contributed a much larger sum than was estimated. The estimate was about $25,000,000 for three years. Last year, the first year of its operation, it produced $12,500,000, and it is expected to produce $20,000,000 during the current year. But it should produce very much more than that, and would if the government had the courage to impose an adequate grade tax on excess war profits.

Of course the expenditures on account of the war enormously exceed the national revenue and represent a permanent burden on the country. About $25,000,000 of last year's expenditure alone stands for increased interest and pension charges. On both of these accounts there will be an enormous increase during the current year. Already the national debt has jumped from $336,000,000 at the beginning of the war to over $900,000,000 at present, and by the end of the current year, the finance minister predicts, it may rise to $1,200,000,000.

But Sir Thomas White is manfully doing what he can to meet war expenditure out of current revenue. During the year the country was able to pay all current and capital expenditures, interest charges on national debt and pension outlays, and to devote $40,000,000 of surplus to payment of principal of war expenditures. This is prudent financing.

In this 50th year of the Dominion's existence it is interesting to compare the government's financial position with that of the first Dominion government. In the first year of confederation the total national revenue was $13,687,928, the total national expenditure $14,071,689, and the national debt was $96,896,666. Canada has developed some in the half-century.—Hamilton Herald.

A LETTER FROM CAPT. HILL RECEIVED AFTER NEWS OF HIS DEATH

Below is a copy of a letter written by Capt. Harold F. Hill and received by his father, Mr. W. H. Hill, just after the tragic news that Capt. Hill had been killed in action, arrived:

March 29, 1917.

My Dear Pater,—I am afraid I am not keeping up my weekly letters, as of yore, ibut I surely try to keep in touch as much as possible. Received three letters from you just lately. Your reports about the work of Canadians in London is true to some extent, but the fact that it lays special emphasis on the work of Colonials, is easily explained. The English and Scottish Tommies have their homes to go to when on leave. Ours, however, have no such place, and, hence London, which appears to be the centre of all activity, becomes the scene of attraction for these men. Here they are more or less observed by the military authorities and newspaper men, and if anything out of the ordinary does occur, they are able to give more attention than would otherwise happen if the men were scattered over the country. Again, these men have been enduring a tremendous amount of hardships for many months. Is it not natural that they would relax when they get an opportunity? Then the extreme comes in, but, after all, in proportion to the numbers who go on leave, the percentage of men who exceed the limit is certainly very small. I do not mean to infer that the above is a dentense for these actions, but a good many people misunderstand the circumstances, and it is not quite fair to the men.

The boots are very fine, easy to walk in, water-proof, and kept my feet in good shape, which is essential around here. I have had a thicker sole put on them, as it tends to strengthen them.

To-day I received a letter from Doug. Hammond. He is still in the hospital, but expects to return to us by April 20th. I hope he does, for he is a very fine chap and it is nice to have some one around from home.

News of Aimee's wedding just came in and was so glad to hear everything was O.K. I hope my little gift will arrive in good order.

Things are booming along quite merrily at present. We "strafe" the Bosche every day and be "strafed" back; we are, however, at it all the time, and so he suffers the most. Occasionally one does commence to feel slightly sorry for him, but then he does such rotten things that all this passes away at once.

Ketcheson has been sent to England. He will not return to the front again, I do not think, for he got it very badly. I am very glad for his sake at least, that he won't get back.

I suppose Spring is coming along nicely by this time, and the old car will be running about again. I will take you for some very thrilling rides, father, when I get back, just to make up for lost time. Best of wishes.

Affectionately your son,
HAROLD.

Official Story Of The Sinking of Two British Hospital Ships

Prussian Prisoners on Board Made Mad Rush For the Life Boats—No Warning Given Either Vessel—Huns Fought With Wounded Men in Boats—Both Ships Had an Escort—Germans Published an Abusive Protest

MUST CARRY GERMAN WOUNDED

LONDON, April 25.—The British hospital ships Donegal and Lanfranc, with many wounded aboard have been torpedoed without warning. They were sunk on April 17. Of those on the Donegal 20 wounded men and 12 of the crew are missing. The Lanfranc carried German wounded as well as British. Of these aboard 19 British and 15 Germans are believed to have perished.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Andrew Bonar Law, announced on April 19 in the House of Commons that there had been further losses of British hospital ships, which would be published soon. The Secretary of the Admiralty, issued the following statement:

BUT WITHOUT WARNING.

"On the evening of April 17, the steamships Donegal and Lanfranc, while transporting wounded to British ports were torpedoed without warning. The Donegal carried slightly wounded cases—all British. Of these 29 men, as well as 12 of the crew crew, are missing and are presumed to have been drowned.

"The Lanfranc in addition to 244 wounded British officers and men carried 167 wounded German prisoners, a medical personnel of 59 and a crew of 123. Of these the following are missing and are believed to have been drowned: two wounded British officers; 11 wounded British other ranks; one Royal Army Medical Corps staff; five of the crew; five wounded German officers and ten wounded German other ranks.

"One hundred and fifty two wounded German prisoners were rescued by British patrol vessels at the imminent risk of being themselves torpedoed.

BOTH HAD AN ESCORT.

"Owing to the German practice of sinking hospital ships at sight and to the fact that distinctive marking and lighting of such vessels render them more conspicuous targets for German submarines it has become no longer possible to distinguish our hospital ships in the customary manner. One of these two ships, therefore, though carrying wounded, was not in any way outwardly distinguished as a hospital ship. The distinctive markings of the other had not yet been removed. Both were provided with an escort for protection.

"The illegal and inhuman submarine warfare which Germany has waged upon merchant shipping has for some time been openly adopted against hospital ships flying the Red Cross flag and otherwise acting in complete conformity with the requirements of the Hague convention. This culmination of savagery has brought the world face to face with a situation that is without parallel in civilised warfare. It has no justification in any conceivable distortion of international law, nor in the most brutal creed of necessity.

HAS FACTS ON WHICH GERMANY ACTED.

"The British government in considering fully the measures to be adopted in these circumstances, have had in review the entire facts on which the German government claims to have acted. These may be recapitulated briefly for the consideration of the civilised world.

The statement then recites that on January 29th Germany addressed a memorial to the American and Spanish embassies for transmission to the British and French governments, claiming that Allied hospital ships particularly those of Great Britain were employed in transporting troops and military supplies, and declared that no hospital ship would be tolerated in the zone, between the lines connecting Flamborough Head and Terschelling on the one side, and Ushant (Ouessant) and Land's End on the other.

WERE NOTIFIED OF REPRISALS

On January 31, the British foreign office denied that hospital ships were being used contrary to the Hague convention, and requested the American Government to inform Germany that, if the threat was carried out not to tolerate hospital ships in the zone specified by them, immediate reprisals would follow. Despite the British denial of the German claims and the threat of reprisals the British hospital ship Asturias was torpedoed without warning on March 20, the loss of life including a nursing sister, and a stewardess.

"But the nation responsible for the murder of the nurse, Edith Cavell appears to have accepted the intelligence with composure, if not with satisfaction," says the statement.

On March 30, the hospital ship Gloucester Castle, met a similar fate and Berlin papers stated that she was torpedoed by a U-boat. The British Government thereupon authorised reprisal, and on April 14 British and French airplanes bombarded Freiburg with "satisfactory results."

The statement continues:

PUBLISHED ABUSIVE PROTEST.

"Despite the warnings conveyed to Germany that her barbarous attacks on hospital ships would result in such action on the part of Great Britain, the German government published through a wireless message on April 16, an abusive protest, which 'categorically contested any justification' for this reprisal. Nothing could afford a better illustration of the German mentality and reasoning.

On the other hand, the spirit in which the Allies exacted retribution is shown by the purely military character of the measures adopted. The airmen who carried out the attacks were exposed to, and did in fact, incur, precisely the same dangers from the town defenses as they would have in the course of an ordinary action.

WOULDN'T PROVE A DETERRENT.

"It is plain, however, that any retaliatory measures, open to a government upholding the principles of humanity and justice, would not prove a deterrent to Germany in the future. Such reprisals could only be punitive in effect and it was necessary to reconsider the entire status of hospital ships in the light of the attitude taken by the German government.

"The markings agreed upon at the Hague Convention, which hitherto guaranteed immunity to hospital ships from attack, rendered them no longer inviolable. The custom of showing all navigation lights and of illuminating distinctive markings at night only afforded a better target for German submarines.

"It was therefore decided that the sick and wounded together with the medical personnel and supplies must in the future be transported for their own safety in ships carrying no distinctive markings, and proceedings without lights, in the same manner as ordinary mercantile traffic. Notice has accordingly been given the German government that the British government has withdrawn certain vessels from the list of hospital ships published by them in accordance with international law, and they will no longer appear thereon.

MUST CARRY GERMAN WOUNDED.

"During the recent fighting on the western front a very large number of wounded German prisoners have fallen into our hands. These officers and men have to be transported to England for treatment by the same means that our wounded are brought over, and practically all the ships transporting wounded are bound to carry a proportion of German wounded. These will naturally share with the British wounded equal risks from attacks by German submarines.

"Whether the policy of the German government is likely to be deflected from its abominable course, by the knowledge that it can only be pursued at the expense of their own wounded, remains to be seen.

"In the light of recent events, it seems reasonable to suppose that the hospital ships, Braemar Castle, and Britannic, were also torpedoed in November, 1916, although the evidence at the time was not considered conclusive as to whether their losses were occasioned by mines or torpedoes."

THE COWARDLY PRUSSIANS.

The story of the sinking of the hospital ship Lanfranc will rank with the undying histories of the Birkenhead and Tyndareus, according to a British officer. The British soldiers stood at attention while the ship was slowly sinking beneath them. Their conduct was in marked contrast to that of the Prussian guardsmen aboard, who in the moment of danger rushed for the lifeboats.

"The Lanfranc was attacked by a submarine about 7.30 o'clock Tuesday evening," said the officer. "The crash shook the liner violently, the explosion sending splinters of wood and glass flying in all directions. Within a few minutes the engines stopped, and the vessel seemed to be sinking rapidly, but to our surprise she steadied herself, and after a while remained motionless. We had aboard prisoners of the Prussian Guard, and many British wounded including some serious cases.

GERMANS RUSHED TO BOATS.

"The moment the torpedo struck, the Prussians made a mad rush for the lifeboats. When they were ordered to await their turn, many showed cowardice by dropping on their knees and imploring pity.

"The crew and staff went to their posts. The stretcher cases were lowered first to the boats. Meanwhile, in response to distress calls, many vessels came hurrying to our assistance. Even while wounded and helpless Tommies lay unaided in their pots the cowardly prisoners made another attempt to crowd into a lifeboat which however toppled directly it was lowered. Then they fought with each other to reach another boat containing some gravely wounded.

"I shall never forget the behaviour of our own lads. They tried to stand at attention, crippled as they were, while the graver cases were being looked after. The crew and staff remained at their posts until the last man was taken off. Some doffed their garments and threw them to those in the lifeboats wanting warm clothing, and in the midst of all the distress and tragedy our men were able to strike up some popular ditties."

The Lanfranc was a vessel of 6,287 tons gross. She was 418 feet in length, and was built in 1907. Her owners before the war were the Booth Steamship Company of Liverpool.

The Donegal registered 1,997 tons gross. She was built at Greenock, in 1904, and was 350 feet long. The Midland Railway Company of Belfast, owned the steamer before she was taken over by the British Admiralty.

Mother Seemed To Have Been Agressor

Magistrate Langley's County Police Court sat until twenty minutes to twelve o'clock last night taking the evidence in the case of Mrs. Andrew Sole, of Dummer, who charged her husband with assault. From the witnesses it appeared that the family difference arose out of their son's rental of the homestead. There were two houses on the farm, the homestead being near the barns, and the other dwelling at a considerable distance. Mrs. Sole objected to leaving the homestead, and when her husband and son began to move the family effects she interfered and therein the trouble began. Magistrate Langley dsicharged the case stating that the evidence did not substantiate Mrs. Sole's complaint. The witnesses indicated that the mother had in fact assaulted the father first, and that it was by no means the first occurrence of that kind. The children seemed to be arrayed on the father's side, while expressing respect and esteem for both their parents.

Mr. Joseph Wearing appeared for the defendant and Mr. Hatton for the prosecution.

Have Mr. Fritz Badly Battered And Beaten Writes Local Boy

Interesting Letter Written Short Time Before the Battle of Vimy Ridge Prophesies That Success—Canadians Knew That Severe Engagements Were Before Them But Were Buoyed Up With Confidence.

The following interesting letter, written by Lance Corp. J. T. Hardwicke, shortly before the Battle of Vimy Ridge, has been received by a member of the Examiner staff:

March 28th, 1917.

Dear Friend,—It has been quite a long time since I have written you, and many events have happened out here since then, but I am taking a few minutes to let you know that I am all right and still able to take my usual allowance of "bully and hard tack" when meal time comes around. We have had quite a severe winter over here; lots of frost, snow and real cold weather, more like our real Canadian winters. The campaigning has been actual and many hardships accrue from the cold. It is not much of a joke being out on "listening post" or doing patrol work when there is snow on the ground and you show up so prominently on the white background, and you can't allow yourself to move around very much to keep yourself warm, or you would give your position away; so you just had to make the best of it and try and get thawed out when you are relieved. The weather is getting warmer now, although the nights are still frosty and chilly; but we have some very fine days, and it won't be long before it dries up and the work of driving Mr. Fritz back will be made easier. As you know, all is going well on the western front these days. We have them on the move and you can look for events moving more rapidly as the weather improves. Our boys are full of the confidence that wins. We know we have Mr. Fritz badly battered and beaten, and it only needs the grand smash to come to make our victory decisive, and the feeling that prevails among the boys to-day is that the end is not far off. We are pretty confident and we like you to know it, as it will make all you at home buck up and pull strong for us. We realize, however, that we will have some severe engagements to undergo before the final act is staged, but we are buoyed up with the hope that our good luck will continue with us to the end. As you know, we have been worrying the Bosche all winter with raids, every battalion pulling off their little stunts of cutting his wire and paying a visit over to his lines and picking up a few prisoners and smashing up his dugouts and then returning to our own lines, and many times not having any casualties. We used to always do these stunts under cover of darkness, but it was up to the Canadian boys to grow bold and pull them off in broad daylight, and now it is a frequent thing to pull off a daylight raid. You get the news of all these little things that happen in your war news and you know the good work that has been done by the boys as well as I can tell you; but there is always lots of little acts and deeds that happen on these occasions that will never be mentioned until the boys come home. We see some heroic sacrifices made out here, and the recollection of them will be always green in our memories. I have met quite a large number of the boys from the home town out here; they are spread around in so many battalions and batteries, but it is always cheering to be able to run across them and have a talk over old times; some of them, too, I will never meet again, as they have made the supreme sacrifice for their country; they did their duty bravely and gave their best that justice and liberty might prevail. We always have those ideals for which we are fighting behind us. We cannot forget them, and as the world is learning to-day of what has taken place in Serbia, as it learned of Belgium and were astounded. Well I guess it makes your heart bleed for those poor people. We would not like our nation to be destroyed and its people massacred, its women folk outraged and murdered, and the young burned to death, as it was done in poor Serbia; but just think a while and you will understand why we are over here doing our bit. It may of course have happened to our nation if we had not answered the call of duty, the cry of justice, and jumped into the fray, and so here we are, the best blood of young Canada, staking their all to defeat the purposes, ideals and barbarisms of the Prussian War Lord and his cohorts. The barbarous and bestial treatment of the civil population, even in this country by the Huns, has not lessened one bit, and so it will be to the end; but he will have to pay, and we are chastisers, and we are commencing to punish him heavily, and he begins to realize it, only too well. Much could be written of acts that have been perpetrated which we know of, but we are unable to say very much as the censorship is very strict. But you get some stories from the authorised war correspondents, and they are not too strong, for I have met a good many of the refugees from the villages and towns occupied by the Germans and heard their stories myself, and seen the marks of violence and mutilation which they have perpetrated. We cannot but sympathize with them, and it makes us wonder sometimes why these things are permitted to happen; how a nation could grow so barbarous, but it only shows us that the Hun is only an animal after all—a blood-sucking beast, looking for prey among the weak, and he must be destroyed; just as we would destroy any other wild animal. Now that is what we are here for. It is our duty and we are trying to rid the country of as many as possible and tie up the rest so that they will not be allowed any freedom to prey on the people, and we hope soon to have our task completed and be able to return to you, satisfied that we have done our "bit" and done it right. In the meantime we must "carry on" and we look for your good wishes. Pull strong for the boys. We are winning and we need all your good luck and all will be well. Best of good wishes go home from France to all of you, and we hope soon to all be able to travel the same route, so I will say au revoir.

Your sincere friend,
L.-CORL. J. T. HARDWICKE.

310 Acres Already Listed For owing By The Motor Tractor

Farmers have listed 310 acres with Mr. G. A. Gillespie for plowing by the motor-tractor, which the Department of Agriculture shipped from Toronto this morning. Yesterday, 280 acres were entered for the first application of the tractor plow. This morning a farmer registered sixty more, bringing the total over the 300 hundred mark, and there is no doubt that the motor tractor will be kept busy. Mr. Gillespie has from the beginning maintained that the emergency measure would be successful if operations could be begun early, and told the Assistant Deputy Minister that he could keep four machines busy if he had them.

"This will be the cheapest plowing the farmers ever had," said Mr. Gillespie. "They are not hesitating to take advantage of the tractor, providing it gets here early enough, and I expect it now at any time. We may work at night if that is necessary. It all depends upon the demand."

Mr. Gillespie said he could not understand the reports from other sections of the province that indicated a reluctance to get behind the movement and push it to the utmost. In fact it was believed the tractors would not be used. But this does not apply to the farmers in the vicinity of Peterborough. They are determined to avail themselves of every assistance that offers itself.

ALTERATIONS TO STREET LIGHTING

A Number of Improvements Recommended by the Fire, Water and Light Committee

A number of alterations and additions to the street lighting system of the city were recommended at a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light committee, held last evening. Ald. Dobbin, chairman of the committee, asked for a light in the vicinity of Trinity church so as to enable the boys to pick out their girls coming out from church. Mayor Duffus wanted the light lowered on the pole at the corner of Simcoe and Stewart streets. He said that the light was too far up in the trees. It kept the birds awake at night. The same treatment was recommended for a light at the corner of Parnell and Park streets.

Ald. Smith wants a better distribution of lights in East City. On Rogers street a number of lights are grouped too closely together. The lighting on Rogers street Robinson street, Driscoll Terrace, McFarlane street, Chamberlain street, Parnell street, will be recommended for improvement.

At the suggestion of Mr. H. O. Fisk, Manager of the Utilities Commission, magnetite arc lights will be placed at the corner of Murray and Aylmer streets, Brock and Aylmer and McDonnel and Aylmer streets.

Has Authority To Purchase The Complete Outfit

New Fire-driven Auxiliary Truck Will Carry Pulmotor—Street Railway Wanted in the North Ward

At a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light committee held last evening, Ald. F. H. Dobbin, chairman of the committee, was given power to complete the arrangements respecting the purchase of a motor driven runabout for the Fire Department. The body will be purchased from a Lindsay firm and the chassis will be purchased through one of the automobile representatives attending the Motor Show. The complete outfit, including electric starter, etc., will cost in the neighbourhood of seven or eight hundred dollars. It will carry the pulmotor, a couple of men and auxiliary equipment. The heavier truck will be purchased later on.

Ald. Duncan suggested that the committee try and get the truck here in time for the fishing season.

A New Light.

Mr. T. H. G. Denne, representing the Little Lake Cemetery Board, asked the committee to place a light at the entrance to the cemetery. He suggested the use of a sample concrete pole now standing at the rear of the Utilities Office on Simcoe street. The committee will recommend that the work be done at once.

Asked as to when automobiles would be allowed to run in the cemetery, Mr. Denne said that the Board had been advised to keep automobiles out of the cemetery. Ald. Worth agreed that this was a proper course.

A petition signed by Mr. Walter Peters and a number of residents in the north end of the city, asked for an extension of the street railway in the direction of the Normal school. The matter was referred to the Railway committee.

A request for a light at the corner of Victoria avenue and Reid street was left in the hands of Ald. Dobbin with power to act.

The committee decided to instal a hydrant at the corner of George and Prince streets. The hydrant will form a part of a water service that is being laid in that neighbourhood.

Fifty Years Married

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gentleman Celebrate Their Golden Wedding in Toronto

To-day, Mr. Charles Gentleman, one of the local piano salesmen for Messrs. Heintzman & Co., in connection with the Peterborough district branch, is celebrating his fiftieth wedding anniversary with his family at their beautiful home in Toronto. Mr. Gentleman is 70 years of age, and his well preserved wife, to whom he was married on the 25th of April, 1867, is a few years his junior. Both husband and wife are still enjoying good health, and retain much of their natural vigour and activity. Their union has been blessed by ten children, all of whom are present at the "golden wedding"— some having come from Montreal, Buffalo and other remote places, to be present at the family rejoicing to-day. Mr. Gentleman is a well known Freemason, Oddfellow and Orangeman and has been held in high esteem as a member of these Orders. He is also an old veteran of the Fenian Raid of 1866 and was in the thick of the scrimmages during those exciting days. His son, Charles, has just returned from France, where he has been twice wounded; and a grandson is now doing duty in the trenches.

It is also too bad that we cannot hear ourselves as others hear us.

ADANAC QUARTETTE

A large audience at St. Paul's Church last night welcomed again the Adanac Quartette which has sung its way securely into the favour of the music-loving citizens of Peterborough. On this occasion it was composed of Messrs. Albert Downing and James Fiddes, tenors, and Messrs. Arthur Blight and Ruthven Macdonald, basses. With the exception of Mr. James Fiddes these artists have in the past won and established a high place in the estimation of the concert circles of this city. Oratorios produced by local musical organizations have been augmented by their assistance which has invariably been more than satisfactory. As a quartette their appearances from time to time have always attracted numerous and appreciative audiences, a fact that must have been a source of encouragement and gratification to them. This appreciation and regard has always been merited and justified, and on no occasion more completely than last night. Mr. Redferne Hollinshead's absence from the programme was conspicuous. He has deservedly attracted a host of admirers in Peterborough, but in the substitution of Mr. Fiddes the musical strength of the quartette has not suffered nor have its tonal qualities depreciated. In fact when the Adanac Quartette tunes its pipes a Peterborough audience confidently awaits a new delight. And there were no disappointments last night. In the opening number, Dudley Buck's setting to "Lead Kindly Light," the quartette aroused the enthusiasm which their subsequent numbers sustained. The voices blended with the effect of a harmonic chord. In "Lead Kindly Light" and "What From Vengeance" they had numerous opportunities of revealing in solo and ensemble, their richness of tone, fine shading and precision. The lighter numbers were sung with little touches that delicately emphasized their character.

In the solo numbers the honours were at out equally devided. Mr. Macdonald's opportunity was the stirring "Send Out Thy Light," which he sang with power and vigor. His monologue 'An Old Sweetheart of Mine" never loses the charm of his elocution and fancy. He need not hesitate to repeat it. Mr. Arthur Blight sang "Why Shakes the Earth" from Palestine, with moving force and in excellent voice. Mr. Downing's numbers were as pleasingly rendered as usual, his typical encore being particular adapted to him. This in no way detracts from his singing of "The Sorrows of Death." As new talent. Mr. Fiddes made a strong impression. His tenor is marked by a verility, clarity and fullness of tone that conveyed "Beyond the Dawn" with a convincing message. His enunciation is close to perfection, and his poise heightens the effect of his singing. In short the quartette left little to be desired in their thoroughly delightful programme.

Miss Allan was in splendid voice. The Aria from Judith was a happy selection for her powers and temperament. Her singing was a fine example of cantabile, marked by a pure and liquid tone and fired to a true conception of the passage. Her manifest confidence permitted a freedom the movement of the Aria required, and at the same time a command that touched her shading with colour and beauty. Her encore, richly deserved, supported the impression that they were too generously given. Concerts of the quality of last night's afford a reminder that in Miss Allan this city possesses a vocalist whom it may well regard with unqualified pride.

St. Paul's choir was heard twice in part songs that were sung in manner deserving warm commendation.

The following encores were given: Mr. Downing—"When Shadows Gather."

Mr. Blight—Bendemere's Stream.

ROUTE OF THE BIG AUTOMOBILE PARADE ON THURSDAY NIGHT

Following is the formation and line of travel of the Motor Show Automobile Parade which is being conducted on Thursday night under the auspices of the Motor Association.

All cars come into Water street at 7 p.m. from Brock street, turn south on Water street and form in two lines one on each side of the street. These two lines will extend down Water street and west on Charlotte street as far as George. Motors should form themselves into these two lines before the parade starts. Then the two band trucks will be located at the proper position in the parade and the line will start in single file at 7.30. The Chief Thompson and his men will take charge of the lining up and conducting of the parade.

The route will be west of Charlotte to Park, north to Hunter, east to George, south to the C.P.R. Turn at the C.P.R. going into the yard and around the garden block, coming out to George, and turn to north, going up the right side of the street. This will double the parade and give the participants a chance to view the others. The parade will pass on up George street to Antrim street, east on Antrim to Water, north to Smith, west to George, south to Lomden, west to Aylmer, and south to McDonnel.

At McDonnel and Aylmer streets the head car will turn east on McDonnel, the second car continuing down Aylmer, the third car going east on McDonnel, and the fourth car going down Aylmer and so on. This will divide the parade into two divisions. The one going east on McDonnel, will turn south on George to Murray, then east until the head reaches Aylmer, when this line will close up next to the right hand curb, stop and unload. The line going down Aylmer will turn east on right hand side of Murray, north on George, and west on McDonnel until the head reaches Aylmer, then close up on right hand curb, stop, and unload. This will leave the two lines of cars all parked on both sides of McDonnel, George and Murray streets, and will avoid confusion. The bands should both turn from Aylmer into McDonnel and pass around George and Murray after the parade stops so as to turn the band cars up opposite the entrance of the Armouries so that the bands can play there while the cars are unloading. Chief Thompson has promised ample police protection to the cars. Both the 57th Regiment Band and the Salvation Army band will take part in the parade.

Kindly decorate your cars a little, if possible, but come anyway without decorations if necessary. Of course, the more decorations in the way of flags and bunting, the greater the success of the parade. Every car owner should get out with his car. This is a public parade. The Motor Association is only trying to boost it along, but the co-operation of every car owner is desired to make this a great event. We should have at least three hundred cars in this line.

Mr. T. F. Matthews, Chairman of the Red Cross committee, will head the parade, with Mr. E. G. Patterson's car second. These two cars will divide at Aylmer and McDonnel leading the two divisions around the Armouries as outlined above.

Two trucks for transporting the bands are being donated by the Canadian General Electric Company through Mr. Patterson, one truck is being provided by Mr. G. A. Gillespie, and another by the Utilities Commission, through the kindness of Mr. Fiske.

Sudden Death Of a Former Local Resident

Special to the Examiner:

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 24,—Dorothy E. Bryant, of Peterborough Ont., wife of Harry E. Bryant died early Monday a.m., death coming very suddenly while she was up and about. She is survived by her husband Harry E. Bryant, three daughters, Dorothy E., Margaret L., and Laura M. two brothers, Wm. Hedderman, of this city, Jos. F., of Hampstead, and four sisters, Mrs. Harry T. McFadden, of Peterborough, Ont., Mrs. Wm. H. Dow, of Lynn, Mass., Mrs. Howard Sargent, of Haverhill, Mass., and Miss Bertrap M. Hedderman, of this city.

Voice of The People

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I am sorry indeed to have to cross swords with Mr. Peck, but since he has thrown down the gauntlet, though inadvisedly, (vide his letter in yesterday's Review) I accept the challenge in self defence. I do not see why he should be surprised at the Review editor's criticism on Saturday and overlook that of Thursday's issue which apparently must also have been inspired by a statement from an officer of the Board.

While I do not accuse Mr. Peck of wilfully and deliberately distorting facts, yet he has inadvertently perhaps, done so. My argument with the Board was that the matron of the Shelter could not legally refuse to take in any neglected child sent or brought there on the authority of the agent. My predecessors in office, I understand, followed the same procedure as I, so that the point raised should hardly be a novel one to the Board.

With regard to the specific case referred to in the editorial in Saturday's Review, Mr. Peck's explanation is unanswerable.

The child was not taken by me, it did not come from a comfortable home; because it had none, and it was not returned to such home by me. The facts of this case are of too sad and sordid a nature to be exploited before the public unless it is absolutely necessary, but I might state that arrangements were being made for the child to be made a ward of the Society at the request of the mother, the committal papers were filled out, and the case would have been before the magistrate for a hearing the day following its admission to the Shelter had it been admitted.

The child was homeless, it needed care and attention, and had I acted otherwise than I did I should have been false to my trust, false to my conscience and false to my religion and my God.

Yours truly,
C. M. G. SPENCE.

EXTRAORDINARY MOTION PICTURE AT THE GRAND

One of the Greatest Pictures Ever Produced "The Whip." Here on May 4th and 5th

A thoroughly consistent, wholly pleasing story is told in "The Whip" the world's biggest motion picture, which will be one attraction at the Grand Theatre on Friday and Saturday, May 4th and 5th. The story deals with the intrigue which is wound around a famous racehorse bearing the name of "The Whip." Upon the question of "The Whip" winning the great race depends the fortunes of several people. A love affair also hangs on the result of the race. When several of the people who are betting against the horse winning find that "The Whip" is certain to win the race they go to great lengths to prevent the horse from appearing on the track. But their efforts fail. The horse makes the race, but with the owner's daughter as the jockey, in place of the jockey who had been selected to make the race. All ends well for the hero and heroine while the villain and adventuress who is his partner, meet their deserved fate.

It is impossible to expatiate too extensively upon the thrills and intensity of this picture. Money has been spent with lavish hand in securing the biggest, most thrilling scenes possible for this tremendous feature, twenty-five thousand dollars was spent for a train wreck for just one of the many big scenes. An automobile was smashed to bits in the most thrilling auto accident ever seen on the screen, for another scene. A small fortune was spent in securing absolutely correct hunting costumes for the actors who participate in the big hunt dinner and the hunt itself is the motion picture of the annual fox hunt held by one of the most famous hunting clubs in the country.

"The Whip" is easily the biggest motion picture in the world. Its appearance in this city is a real event. Be sure to see it.

WILLIAMS—PARCELLS.

A quiet and pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at Trinity Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Wilson officiating, when Phoebe Ethleen, daughter of Mr. Charles Parcells, Norwood, was united in marriage to Mr. Lorne Williams, Wooler. The young couple, were attended by Miss Grace Anderson, Round Lake, and Mr. Lambert Whaley, Trenton.

BEST—WADE.

A quiet and pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral by his Lordship Bishop O'Brien at seven o'clock this morning, when Frances McDonald Wade of this city, became the bride of Thomas James Best, son of Wm. Best of Lindsay.

The bride who was unattended was given away by her brother, Mr. J. McDonald Wade of Toronto and was attired in a navy blue suit of gabardine with hat to match.

After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride, on Gilmour street, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served, after which they left for a wedding trip to Toronto, Detroit and other cities.

The young couple are well known and popular in this city and vicinity and have a host of friends who wish them a long and happy married life. They will be at home to their friends after June 1st, at 569 Gilmour street.

A Few Sidelights On the Exhibitors

Brands Snatched From the Fire of Enthusiasm Which Threatens to Envelope the Motor Show in a Blaze of Glory and Success

MR. C. R. BANKS.

The Banks Garage has gone into the Motor Show whole heartedly, and the proprietor, Mr. C. R. Banks, is the busiest little man in town this week. Some of the "pep" that was shown at the Mayor's banquet in Mr. Banks' speech is being put into effect in the magnificent display that will be made at the show. We venture to state that no Overland agent has yet found as many good selling points about his car as C. R. Banks.

Mr. Banks thinks the motor show an excellent idea, its object a deservedly worthy one, and that this is the fore runner of bigger and better things in the motor show line.

MR. G. A. GILLESPIE, M.P.P.

Just to keep busy, when his time is not occupied in the management of the Peterborough Pure Milk Company and several other important organizations and attending to his duties as representative of West Peterborough in the local house, Mr. Gillespie has taken the agency for two well known cars the Maxwell and the Studebaker.

As he usually does, Mr. Gillespie has entered into the spirit of the affair and will show some real classy cars in his exhibit, and in every other way he is endeavouring to do his part to make the motor show a huge success.

R. W. STURGEON.

STURGEON MOTOR SALES.

Last night Mr. Sturgeon was as enthusiastic over the Motor Show as Rolly Denne can get over the Peterborough Exhibition, and that is saying a good deal. Mr. Sturgeon's enthusiasm was, of course, coupled up with his "bubbling over" enthusiasm for the Briscoe Car. He also thinks, and quite confidently says so, that in reality his car (the Briscoe) is the one car to give satisfaction. Mr. Sturgeon says that the Motor Show will be responsible for the intelligent buying of a lot of motor [illegible] and, of course, feels that [illegible]coe will get its share of the [illegible].

DR. PULKINGHORN.

In order to help along the show and incidentally to give the public of Peterborough an easy opportunity to see a real good car, Dr. Pulkinghorn has entered his "Grant Six." The Doctor believes he represents the best car for the money in the city, and if wish to be convinced all he asks of you is to drop into booth Eleven, south side.

MAYOR J. J. DUFFUS.

The Chief Magistrate is wearing a worried look these days. A couple of weeks ago a Ford car was swallowed up in the river and up to the present all efforts to recover the machine have failed. The one thing that the Mayor is fearful of is that the car might come through a water tap and hit some respectable citizen in the solar plexus. Apart from this His Worship is very enthusiastic over the prospects of the Motor Show and is convinced that the little big car which he represents can hold its own with the rest when it comes to a matter of sales.

MR. B. W. MANNING.

With a smile that absolutely refuses to come off, B. W. Manning presides over the local destiny of the Chevrolet and Dodge cars. If you have any doubts about the quality of either of the cars ask B. W., and he will tell you they are the two best cars in the world. Mr. Manning's partner, Mr. Houston, is a thoroughly practical automobile man and conversant with every line of work.

MR. A. BROWN.

There was a time when the efforts of Mr. A. Brown were directed to the sale of real estate. Latterly Mr. Brown's efforts have been devoted to the exposition of the good qualities of McLaughlin cars, which he sells in large numbers.

CRANFIELD BROTHERS.

The "Grey Dort" is the choice of the Cranfield Brothers. Bert Cranfield, the senior member of the firm, also supervises the manufacture of war munitions. The other brothers are enthusiastic members of the Motor League, and like all automobile salesmen are convinced that their choice of a car represents the acme of automobile construction.

FRENCH NOBLES GIVE UP LIVES FOR LA PATRIE

OVER 2,600 MEMBERS OF PARISIAN SOCIETY HAVE FALLEN IN WAR.

The statistics of the Parisian "blue book" called "Tout Paris," for 1917, show 2,600 men killed on the field of battle out of a total of 31,656 names composing what is understood as Parisian society—noble, aristocratic and simply "bourgeois" included.

More than five hundred of the dead possessed genuine titles of nobility and among them were three princes—Prince Ernest d'Arenberg, Prince Louis Murat a descendant from Napoleon's Marshal, and Prince Henry de Polignac. There are also the brother the three dukes, de Clermont, de Luynes and de Rohan, the latter, a member of the Chamber of Deputies. The rest of the 523 titled Parisians who have died for the country comprise twenty-four marquises, 240 counts, 171 viscounts and 97 barons. Paris society has thus far lost 48 generals and 119 colonels. From civil life the legal profession has furnished the greatest sacrifice with 150 dead, followed by the writing craft with 116.

Germany's Desperate Attempts To Cover Up Great Defeats

Berlin Uses the Same Kind of Language For Defeats as Was Used to Announce Great Victories—Claim of a Victory—Prompt Denial by British War Office—Foe's Reserves Being Rapidly Exhausted.

FOR HOME CONSUMPTION

Tuesday the German War Office issued an official statement about the west front which is worth more than a casual notice. In its rhetoric and flamboyance it is typical of the language Berlin has used on two sets of occasions in the past; first, in announcing great victories, and, second, in covering up great defeats or concealing critical situations. Using the same kind of language for such diametrically opposite purpose helps to keep the German public confused. Ostensibly it is used only to announce victory, which several of the events, including the present one, certainly were not.

Tuesday's statement is quite apparently designed to compose German public opinion, evidently nervous. Worn to the ragged edge of collapse by inconveniences and hunger and anxiety as to personal relatives, the German nation at home has been sustained by confidence in Germany's military prowess and in ultimate German victory. This support is now failing. It is a long time since the flags have been run up and the bells rung. Instead, there has come down of a great retreat on the west front and apprehension of impending disaster. To combat the demoralising influence fo this apprehension Hindenburg issues yesterday's statement.

FOR HOME CONSUMPTION.

There are repeated references to the "heroism" of German troops. Names of five villages are mentioned as the scenes of German deeds of valor. It is probable that this is the first intimation the Germans have had of the present situation of the battle-line, and that in the last two weeks that much ground has been lost. Because the British didn't break through the event is described as a "heavy sanguinary defeat" for England. The British War Office has already officially replied to this assertion. Naive is German headquarters' praise for the "foresight of German headquarters," but this is to maintain glamor for Hindenburg's retreat. Here is the statement:

"On the Arras battlefield British troops standing on French territory delivered a second great thrust to break through the German lines. The heaviest batteries for days have been hurling masses of shells of every description against our positions. Early Monday morning the artillery battle increased to very strong drumfire. Soon afterward British attacking troops often preceded by their tanks, broke forward on a front of thirty kilometres (18 miles), to the attack behind this wall of fire.

"Our destructive fire received them, and in many places forced them to withdraw with heavy losses. At other points the battle ebbed hand flowed with great bitterness. Wherever the enemy gained ground our infantry, brave unto death, and eager for attack, drove him back again by strong counter-attacks.

"The western suburbs of Lens, Avion, Oppy, Gavrelle, Roeux, and Guemappe were the hottest places in the fierce struggle. Their names will be associated with the deeds of heroism by our regiments from almost every German district between the sea and the Alps.

"After the breakdown of the first attack a further attack of particular intensity and with new masses followed toward evening. This assault was on both sides of the river across the field of death before our lines. The strength of this attack also broke before the heroism of our infantry, partly under its fire, partly in hand-to-hand fighting, and also under the destructive effects of our artillery. Only on the Cambrai-Arras road did the enemy gain a few hundred yards of ground. The ruins of Guemappe remained in his hands.

"The enemy's attempt to break through near Arras has failed with tremendous losses, as was the case on the Aisne and in the Champagne.

"England's might has suffered a heavy, sanguinary defeat through the foresight of German headquarters, and the tenacious desire of our brave troops for victory. This army will face the new battles with complete confidence.

APPEAL TO HOME POPULATION

And then follows the moral for which the foregoing is designed to furnish the setting.

"Every German man or woman, peasant of laborer, who has put himself in the service of the Fatherland and devoted his energy to provisioning the army, has his special share in the successes of the recent battles. The German soldier at the front knows that every man and woman at home is doing his or her duty, and is working unceasingly to support him out there in the turmoil of battle for life or death, for existence or non-existence.

There followed at night a typical message from the Kaiser to the Crown Prince Ruppecht of Bavaria, in command against the British, as follows:

"The fresh English storm on the battlefield of Arras has been broken by your troops. To the heroes of Arras and their trustworthy leaders, who in capacity, ability, and success have equalled their comrades on the Aisne and Champagne. I send my thanks and those of the Fatherland. God will help further."

The last sentence is the Kaiser's way of getting from under. If things don't go right in future, he wishes to intimate that the responsibility will rest on the former junior partner.

The British War Office reply to the foregoing statement is very much to the point, as follows:

"The German official statement received by wireless to-day affords a remarkable instance of the methods the enemy is now adopting to explain away his defeat and encourage the German people. These methods consist in attributing to us designs we have never entertained, then proving that they have failed completely.

"Neither on the 9th of April, nor the 23rd, did we attempt to break through the German lines in the sense conveyed in the German communication. Our objective in each case was limited. On both occasions we gained the objectives assigned to the attacking troops.

"The German message states that, the western suburbs of Lens, Avion, Oppy, Gavrelle, Roeux, and Guemappe were the hottest places in the fierce struggle." This is obviously intended to give the impression that all these places were included in our objectives. As a matter of fact, we made no attacks at the first three mentioned places, which are at a 30-kilometre front, but a front of 14-kilometres. On this front we were successful in securing Gavrelle and Guemappe, and in establishing ourselves on the western outskirts of Roeux. These villages alone formed our objectives."

RESERVES BEING DESTROYED

All observers agree that this week's fighting is the fiercest of the war, and that is "saying something." Concrete results in prisoners and advances achieved so far by the British in comparison with those of two weeks ago, may seem disappointing, but they are not the only measure of success.

Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters, who speaks more freely than the official statements, but no doubt in the light of official knowledge, announces that the foe's strategic reserves are being used up. This of of the utmost importance. If continued, it means there will never again be a real German offensive.

That the foe has been able to offer such stubborn resistance for days and against the French on the south front, should come as no surprise. He has greater armies than ever. Some observers have declared that he had got together a reserve of a million men this spring, and the mystery was as to where he was going to "strike" with it. The British and French have struck it first.

Hindenburg has the choice of sacrificing his position in France or sacrificing his reserve army. He has chosen to do the latter. To say is was a choice is perhaps inaccurate, for it is likely he could not have given up the positions attacked without a great disaster. For the moment he has averted that disaster, but at a cost which will inevitably bring closed his ultimate collapse.

Another Advance In Wheat Prices

Winnipeg Market Closed Twelve Cents Higher Than Tuesday's Level—The Cattle Market

The wheat markets yesterday made the most sensational advances since the opening of the year. May wheat at Winnipeg closed 12 1-2c over Tuesday's close, and Chicago May 6 1-4c above previous close. There was a frenzy for buying, and the markets were almost bare of offerings. Short interests and demands for export account for the extraordinary strength of the markets.

Cattle Market.

Union Stock Yards — Receipts 49 cars, with 478 cattle, 49 calves, 1,674 hogs, and 27 sheep and lambs.

There was again a very light run of cattle offering, and prices were easily from 15c to 25c higher than the early week's sales. The advance applied to all grades and classes, with a strong demand for stockers and feeders and good grass cows. Everything was cleaned up.

Calves were 50c to $1 higher.

Sheep and lambs strong.

Hogs 15c higher.

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hansbury, Keera Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using two boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work and now feel better than I did for twenty years."

Will Not Ask States To Depart From Its Traditional Policies

Mr. Balfour Assures Washington Doubters He Hasn't Any Deep, Dark Design—A Statement by British Secretary—French Mission Reach American Capital and Receives a Warm Welcome.

UNITED STATES CONVINCED

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Arthur J. Balfour, British Foreign Secretary, stated that the allied Governments, completely convinced of America's wholehearted consecration towards the common end of destroying Prussian militarism, would not think of asking the United States to depart from its traditional policies or enter into any formal alliance which might prove embarrassing.

"Our confidence in the alliance and the assurances of this Government," Mr. Balfour said, "is not based on such shallow considerations as arise from treaties. No treaty could increase our unbounded confidence that the United States, having come into the war, will see it through to the great end we all hope for."

Disarms Doubting Critics

Mr. Balfour, after his first two days here, consented to an interview to express his deep gratitude for the warmth of his reception and his conviction that America's services in the war could not be exaggerated.

Standing in the midst of a semi-circle of correspondents, Mr. Balfour spoke with the deepest feelings of the losses already experienced in France and England, and of the gratitude felt in both countries at the decision of the United States to enter the war.

"I am told," said Mr. Balfour, "that there are [illegible]

The United States Convinced.

"For two and a half years," Mr. Balfour continued, 'people here in this country have watched the great and blood-stained drama abroad, and with each passing month the conviction has grown that this was no ordinary struggle involving a few miles of territory, or some small national ambition, but nothing short of the whole welfare of mankind."

"Such a cause," Mr. Balfour said, "could not fail to affect the United States.

"And now, when after all these months, you feel impelled to enter the struggle, I am certain you will throw in all your resources, incomparably the richest in the world, all your man-power, and your will and effort. I am sure nothing will turn you from your consecrated task until success crowns our joint efforts."

Welcomes the French.

Mr. Balfour, speaking of the arrival of the French Commission here, to-day, said the commission was

"DOMINION" Chain Tread Tires

are the most efficient anti-skids in their price-class, and take second place only to DOMINION "Nobby" Treads. The gripping suction of their diamond-shaped links gives remarkable traction and power to resist side slips even on the most treacherous surfaces.

Like ALL "DOMINION" Tires, Chain Treads have the mileage built right into them, as well as guaranteed.

DOMINION PLAIN TREAD Tires—the basis of all DOMINION Tire values—are serviceable and economical for ordinary driving where the going is good.

"DOMINION" TREADS, costing but little more than the plain, are dependable anti-skids and have more rubber where the wear comes.

DOMINION "NOBBY" TREADS are "the aristocrats of the road". Their extra heavy construction, and the big, burly knobs of the tread, make them 90% puncture proof. They are the tires for hardest service, on heaviest cars.

For every kind of road and service there is a particular DOMINION Tire that is the best to buy. This has been conclusively proved the country over and the great majority of Canadian Motorists agree that Nothing up to the present is known as to what space will be allotted to butter and eggs, although it is expected that after the opening of navigation a proportion of freight space on the big liners will be available for eggs, which already are wanted on the other side. GRAFT RULES CHINA.

To Refuse to Accept It Would Create a Big Sensation.

Why can't China build her own railroads, dredge her own canals? She has engineers who are no slouches; she has limitless material and the cheapest of labor.

There are two reasons, sloth, and graft, the outgrowth of sloth.

Try to take one of the little steamers that ply from point to point along the coast of China. "Will the boat leave today at the schedule time?" you ask the agents at the pier. Well, no, probably not till tomorrow, the courteous Chinese tell you. Tomorrow again there is some delay, and you may hang about for a week before you get off in that steamer. How could such methods build a trunk line from Peking to Canton, even if the government could float all the bonds in the world?

Graft, which permeates all China, from the highest official to the poorest coolie, would make it very difficult for a corporation to live. So many would take bites from the melon!

A missionary over here on a visit tells a story of a Chinese boy, educated in a mission school, who nearly upset a whole province by refusing graft. Sent on some expedition for the local government, he was given what in our money would be $300 for expenses. When he returned he handed in $50.

"What is this for?" they asked.

"I spent only $250," he explained.

There was a great to do, and the governor of the province sent to see this lad, who had done what no man had ever been known to do before. But he was solemnly assured that he must not return that $50 because it would mortify others who kept all they could get.—Eleanor Booth Simmons in World Outlook.

A MAN WE HAVE FORGOTTEN.

Matthew Fontaine Maury, Who Was a Really Great American.

Every one who has heard of Robert Fulton, certainly every one who has heard of S. F. B. Morse or Cyrus W. Field ought also to have heard of Matthew Fontaine Maury. But that is not the case. For my part, I had never heard of Maury until I went to Virginia. I have asked schoolboys if they have heard of him. None of them has. Yet Maury's scientific researches and accomplishments have had an enormous effect, not only in this country, but throughout the world.

It may be said that Maury laid the foundation for our modern weather bureau and that the science of meteorology began with him. He founded the national nautical observatory and the hydrographic office in Washington and discovered, among other things, the cause of the gulf stream and the existence of that plateau in the north Atlantic ocean which, if I am not mistaken, made possible the laying of the first Atlantic cable. Cyrus W. Field said with reference to this, "Maury furnished the brains, England the money, and I did the work." Further than this, the charts of the north Atlantic which Maury made years ago are today the basis upon which that ocean is navigated by all nations.

I am informed that though he was decorated by many foreign governments, he was never given so much as a cheap little medal by that of the United States, and that his name has not been kept alive by any memorial or other token of his country's gratitude. —Julian Street in Collier's Weekly.

The Cruel Wolf Spider.

One of the most unnatural things in nature, if the expression is allowable, is the manner in which the young of the common wolf spider treat their mother. After the little creature has laid her eggs she envelops them in a silken covering, so as to make a ball about the size of a pea, and this she carries about with her wherever she goes and will defend it with her life. When the young are hatched they climb on her back, giving her a monstrous appearance, and ride about until nearly half grown, and as soon as they discover their strength they fall to and devour their mother.

A Bamboo Forest.

There are few spots imaginable more beautiful than a Japanese bamboo forest. It is the most lovely in color, the most aristocratic and the best behaved forest in the world. It whispers pleasantly and gently, and the severest winds cannot make it angry. The long, slim bodies of its trees are useful long after death, for they are made into water pipes, canes, fences, picture frames, vases, fishing rods, roofings, flutes, fans, furniture and poles.

Following the Styles.

"The average woman spends most of her time thinking about what to wear."

"I fear you are mistaken."

"Why so?"

"She spends most of her time thinking about what to wear next."

THE DEATH OF THE REV. DOUGLAS DICKSON

Deceased Leaves a Wife and Infant Daughter—Hastings Items

HASTINGS, April 25.—The sad intelligence is to hand of the death at the front, from wounds, of Rev. Douglas Dickson, who was married here about three years ago to Madge, youngest daughter of Mr. Jas. Buck, Norwood Road, and who with an infant daughter, are left to mourn his untimely end. Mrs. Dickson has the sincere sympathy of the entire community in this, her hour of sore bereavement.

Mr. Matthew Breckenridge, of West wood, also is extended deep sympathy in his loss, having received official notice that his son, Max was killed in action, about the same time as Mr. Dickson.

A number from Hastings attended the ordination and induction service in Warkworth on Thursday of the past week when Rev. Russell McGillivray, B.A., B.D., of Hamilton was appointed pastor of the Presbyterian church in that place.

The many friends in this section of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Lobb, (late of Hastings, but now of Beatty, Sask.) were grieved to learn of the death of their eldest daughter, Leiffie, (Mrs. R. McRae) at the age of 40 years. Deceased was well known here and during her girlhood formed many friendships, which have been so ruthlessly severed. For the bereaved husband and parents much sympathy is expressed.

A largely signed petition was duly presented to the Council at its late sitting, asking for an all-night light service to be continued throughout the entire year. The request was granted.

HAD AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

For 5 or 6 Years

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of prominent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great [illegible] by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE HOUSE AND GROUNDS

A House That May Be Built on a Small Suburban Lot

A NUMBER of requests that House and Grounds Department publish a plan for a house suitable to a narrow lot have been received.

One man wrote:—"I have recently been married and have bought two lots, each 50x200 feet, from the city. On one I want to build a house, the cost of which shall come within $5,000, and I want to leave room at the side for a garage which I hope to build when I can afford to buy a car. I ought, therefore, to have enough left for this purpose. Can you give me a plan for a house that can be used in this way?"

Another writes:—"It is easy enough to find plans if you have all the land you want to build them on, and that is what most of the published ones are for, but what can the man do who has only a little land and wants a twenty foot house? How can there be room for anything pretty in the way of a house for him?"

The house presented this week is drawn and estimated not by an architect but by a builder. In offering his drawings he adds—"I may lack the ability to make things look as attractive as an architect does, but I am engaged in the practical work of building houses, I know about what each item of the cost I am making estimates every day, so that I can guarantee those that go with this drawing to be absolutely accurate."

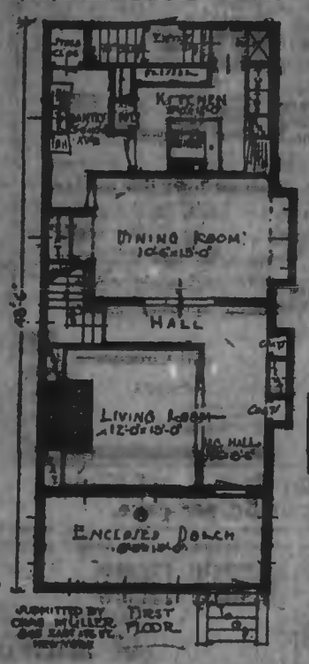
This is the general estimate:—

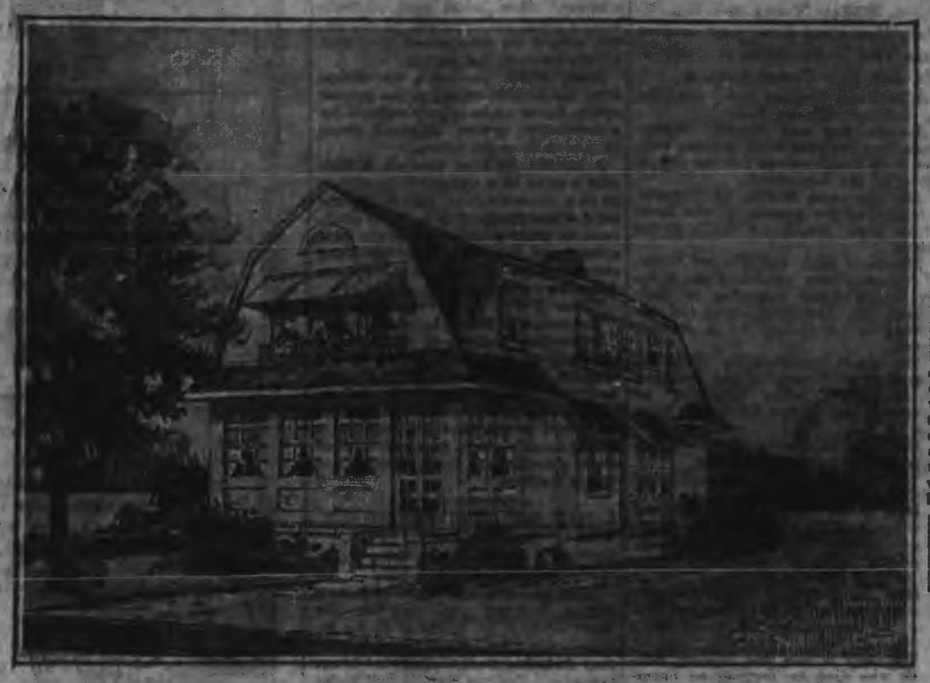
Excavating	$150
Masonry	1,220
Carpentry	2,700
Plumbing	200
Sheet metal work	100
Electrical work	200
Heating	250

This is a modest, and, as is necessary, a compact house, but it is made of first class materials and is comfortable and convenient. The total width is within 30 feet, so that it may be used on a small suburban lot, 25 feet wide or two of 20 feet each, leaving room for a drive to garage. The enclosed porch serves in winter living room and may be used up as a porch for summer.

The designer has made a turn in his hall because, as he explained, he was not able otherwise to get sufficient wall space in the living room for the furniture. Still there is a living room 12x13 feet, with a wide opening into the hall and a fireplace having a seat on each side, or this might be filled with bookshelves. The hall is lighted by a window with a sheet on each side and there is a bay window in the dining room. The kitchen, which has an abundance of closet room and various conveniences, is cut off from the dining room by a pantry.

On the second floor there are three good sized bedrooms and numerous closets, a bathroom and an extra toilet.





Flowers to Plant for a Short Season

By
S. C. JOHNSTON, Vegetable Specialist, Ontario Department of Agriculture.

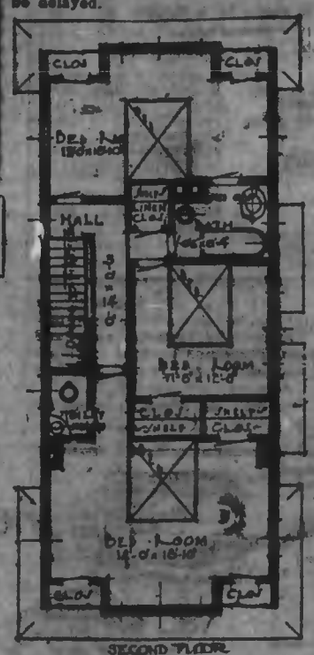
At no time in many years has the necessity and importance of the home vegetable garden been so clearly demonstrated as this year. Our country is face to face with a situation which necessitates the increasing of our food supplies by every means at our command. Vegetables as well as other foodstuffs must be given careful consideration as they form an important part in the every day diet of most individuals. Every city and town dweller has the opportunity to help in this great work, in that there are hundreds of available plots now practically unproductive which could grow vegetables. To be able to secure fresh, crisp vegetables should in itself be reason enough to make us help along this movement, but in addition the saving makes it of the greatest importance.

Vegetables should form a more important position in the daily food of the average human being for they possess qualities which should ensure their use in much larger quantities than is the custom at the present time. In these times of stress when the energies of all people are being devoted to further the cause of justice and right, the securing of a supply of vegetables should commend itself to the average householder in our towns and cities. A more instructive pursuit than growing vegetables in the backyard cannot be found, for by commencing with a small plot devoted to their culture a wonderful lesson unfolds itself before our eyes as we watch the vagaries of nature in her work, and a broader and more intelligent view of the simple phases of life appear before us.

These words are written with the hope that they will enable many to consider thoroughly whether or not they can assist the Empire as well as themselves by growing a few vegetables for their own use. The plans that accompany it are merely suggestions and it is not obligatory that they be followed to the letter. The sorts of vegetables may be changed and ones more appreciated by the family substituted. The distances of planting may also be changed if the grower so desires. There are no hard and fast rules by which vegetables should be grown, but in these plans the distances have been found satisfactory for backyard garden purposes.

Soil preparation.

City dwellers are not all born vegetable growers and many of the failures in the backyard garden are due to a lack of knowledge as to how to prepare the soil for seeding. The first few bright days in spring usually drive most people into their gardens and digging the soil is commenced. Oftentimes the digging is done too soon. If after the soil has been turned a handful crumbles readily, digging time has arrived. If, however, the pressure of the hand leaves the soil in a compact sodden mass, which will not crumble, digging should be delayed.



When the soil is in good condition for digging, a spade or a digging fork may be used. Push either into the soil to its full depth, usually 8 or 12 inches. Lift and turn the soil over so that the soil which comes from the bottom is placed on top. Dig one row about 8 inches wide the full width of the garden, then place the second 8 inches of undug soil on top of the first. This will leave quite a trench in which manure either well rotted or fresh should be placed. This should be trampled in tightly and two more rows of soil deposited on it. By following this method from 4 to 6 inches of manure may be placed ready for the plants to use. Manure may be secured from livery stables or from firms who deliver it for a small sum. The next operation will be that of raking. Considerable care must be taken in order that all the lumps are broken up and that a level surface is left to be planted. It is never advisable to dig more of the garden than can be raked the same day. With an ordinary garden rake go over the soil roughly, either breaking up the the lumps or dragging them into a furrow or to one side of the garden. By following this with a further raking which should thoroughly fine the soil, fill in any hollow spots and remove any remaining lumps, the garden should be ready for planting.

Sowing of Seeds.

To sow a row of seed quickly, evenly and thinly, requires care and practice. The top of the seed packet may be torn off, the packet held between the thumb and forefinger. By gently swaying the packet from one side to another, the seeds will drop out. Another method of seeding is to place the seed in a tin dish and gather the many seeds as possible between the thumb and forefinger. A gentle rubbing motion of the thumb on the forefinger releases a few seeds at a time. Coarse seeds may be placed individually with the fingers. After the garden or the portion that is made ready by raking for planting, a piece of board or a line may be used to make straight even rows. A shallow trench the required depth may be made by using a sharpened piece of lath or even a lead pencil. This should be drawn back and forth close to the line or board until the trench is deep enough. This trench should not be too deep. A good general rule which applies in many cases is to cover the seeds with no more than a quarter of an inch of soil. After the seeds have been dropped they should be covered with soil of the required thickness and the soil over the row firmed with the foot, a piece of board or the back of the spade.

Transplanting.

The city dweller will find it a good practice to buy plants of many of the sorts of vegetables and transplant them into his garden. The growing of one's own plants affords considerable pleasure, but is accompanied by the fact that considerable care and attention must be given. Strong, sturdy plants only should be purchased, not slender unhealthy looking plants. The plants before being transplanted should be watered heavily so that the soil around the roots will be almost muddy. The garden hoe may be used for making the holes for setting these plants out or else a sharpened stick may be used. The hole should be made sufficiently deep to accommodate all the roots and part of the stem up to the first leaf. Do not set the plant too deep or too shallow. The plant should be set perfectly upright and the loose earth brought in around the roots and thoroughly firmed there. Care should always be taken that the hole made is not too deep so that when the roots are set there will be a hole in the earth just below them.

Cultivation.

Cultivation should be carried on to allow air into the soil, and to keep the surface of the soil in a somewhat rough condition rather than solid firm state, as the latter condition allows the evaporation of water from the soil which is needed by the plant.

The most efficient and handy tool for cultivating is the common hoe. A wide and narrow bladed hoe will be found best. The hoeing in the vegetable garden should commence before the vegetables are through the soil. If the rows have been carefully marked the hoe may be used between the rows and many weeds destroyed. After the seedlings are through the soil the hoe should be kept in use as much as possible. All the soil between the rows should be stirred at least twice a week and oftener if possible. Never allow a flat smooth surface to be found in the garden. Always stir the soil gently after each watering. The hoe should be held in a slanting position and the soil cultivated close to the young vegetables, and as the crop becomes more advanced the soil between the rows should be cultivated so that there will be no danger of destroying young roots. During the summer months the rake may be used for pulverizing the soil between the rows. Too much careful cultivation cannot be given the tender vegetable crops in a backyard garden.

Watering.

It is possible to water vegetable crops over abundantly. Some soils and some crops require more watering than others so great care must be used in applying water in the backyard garden. It is not good gardening when one has city water to deluge the garden each evening. If the plants do survive such treatment, the resulting crop will be slender and soppy, having very few excellent qualities. As a general rule the refreshing spring rains supply plenty of moisture in the soil. During the summer months, however, it will be found that an additional supply of moisture will be needed. This may be applied with a garden hose or a watering can and should be applied from 4 to 8 p.m. It is not good practice to water a city garden in the heat of the sun. Water in any case, should be applied in as fine a spray as it is possible to obtain and it must be applied gently. Force will wash out the seeds, flatten the soil, expose the roots to the sun's rays and thus cause wilting or dying of the plant. By watering carefully twice a week, sufficient moisture will be available to keep the plants growing vigirously. These waterings must, however, be followed with an immediate stirring of the soil and aided by cultivation between the waterings. In any case it is necessary to stir the soil after each rain or watering in order to conserve the moisture. As the season advances waterings may be partially or totally dispensed with.

Thinning.

The backyard gardener must not attempt to grow inordinate quantities of vegetables from a small plot. Plants require a fair amount of breathing space just as human beings do. As it is almost impossible to plant all seeds thinly enough to secure a good crop more seeds are planted than plants are required, and when the tender seedlings come through the soil it is necessary to thin out some so that the remaining ones will have sufficient space to grow in. In every row of seedlings there are some plants which from the beginning show by their sturdy growth that they are healthier and more vigorous than others. Wherever possible leave these larger seedlings. When the seedlings are large enough to be handled nicely they should be thinned to the proper distance and this is accomplished by simply pulling the superfluous ones out and throwing them away. Thinning should not be left until the plants are becoming long and slender, but rather should be practised when the plants are about one-half to an inch in height.

...back yard is now assuming an im... never given to it heretofore, and ...rally a person who undertakes to convert it into a garden will get little but bitter experience unless he pays heed to the instruction of those who are wiser than he in horticultural matters. The United States government is taking an interest in its citizens and is giving practical assistance by telling what to do with soils of varying characters and how to plant and cultivate garden crops.

Practically all garden crops do better on a sandy loam soil than on one that is sticky and heavy, says the department's counsellor. Larger sized crops however, such as cabbage, tomatoes, beans and peas, will do well on heavy soil provided it contains the necessary vegetable matter.

The soil in most back yard gardens is distinctly heavy. It will help the soil greatly if the owner works into it a good amount of finely sifted coal ashes free from all cinders. Coal ashes are used largely for the physical effect in breaking up a compact, heavy soil. Such ashes do not take the place of fertiliser.

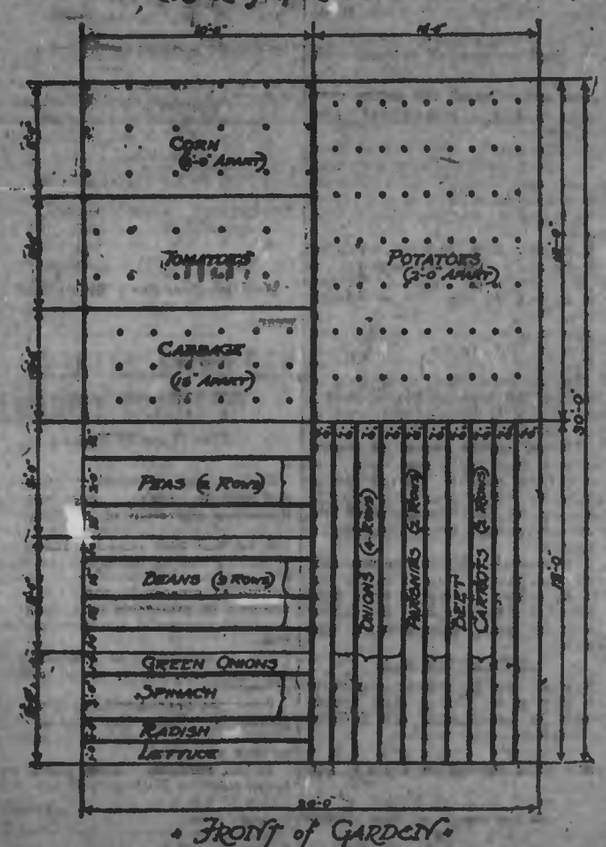
Plentiful use of well rotted manure is still more beneficial in breaking up heavy soil because this improves the texture and adds fertilising material.

Many garden soils are sour. To offset acidity and also to improve the physical properties of the soil the garden specialists recommend the use of lime. Burnt lime should be applied at the rate of 1,000 pounds per rod or eighty lime at the rate of about 1,500 pounds an acre. A garden plot 16x600 feet is approximately one-ninth of an acre.

To apply the lime, broadcast it and mix it freely with the surface soil by harrowing or raking. Lime should be applied before the crops are set out or planted and should not be applied at the same time that fertiliser or manure is put on.

Manure will greatly improve land. If well rotted manure is not available it may be advisable to use a complete chemical fertiliser. Apply at the rate of 800 to 1,000 pounds an acre a mixture containing 2 to 4 per cent nitrogen, 8 per cent phosphoric acid, 1 to 2 per cent potash. The amateur gardener will find it easier to use ready mixed fertiliser, which can be obtained from any reliable dealer.

No amount of fertiliser, watering and cultivation will make up for the absence ...a garden. Home gardeners ...ding for the first time to ... yard or other space should ...ually how many hours a day ... the yard is in shadow from ...ses or trees. At least five ...sunlight a day is necessary for ...successful garden. The more sunlight ...get the better it is for most vegetables. For this reason it is bad practice to put plants of low habit between tall growing plants which will shade them for the greater part of the day.



A SUGGESTED PLAN FOR A BACKYARD GARDEN

Planting Vegetables

SOME persons have inquired if it is safe to plant vegetables in the open ground while there is still likelihood of frosts.

In answer to this it may be stated that cabbage, Irish potatoes, early peas (smooth, as distinguished from wrinkled), onions, kale, spinach and mustard will not be injured by light frost. Tomatoes, egg plants, peppers and cauliflowers may be started in seed boxes in the house or in hotbeds.

Lettuce, radishes, parsnips, carrots, beets, wrinkled sweet peas and early sweet corn should be planted only after danger of hard frost is over.

String beans and late varieties of sweet corn should be planted only when all danger of frost is past. Early tomato plants may be set out, but they should be protected by a shelter of newspapers, boxes, &c.

Cucumbers, melons, squashes, pumpkins, lima beans, tomatoes, egg plant and peppers should be set out when danger of frost is past and the earth has begun to warm up well.

Crops like peas, beans and lettuce may be planted every three or four weeks whenever the space is available. Some can be planted in the spaces made available by removing the other crops. In this connection the efficiency chart is a valuable guide.

If your garden is small do not attempt to grow potatoes or late sweet corn. It is better, the specialists say, to select half a dozen crops which the family likes than to grow fifteen or twenty. If the size of your plot is less than 40x100 feet, or 4,000 square feet, it usually is not advisable to grow late potatoes or late varieties of sweet corn.

Editor House and Grounds Department:—

Can you give me, through your columns, information as to what shrubs for spring planting and flowers for a summer garden would thrive under the following conditions?

My summer home is brick in architecture, like a Swiss chalet, and is perched on a little plateau of rich soil in a mountain valley. I labor at great disadvantage, for when others are planting in May spring has not come to our valley. Not until after May 20 are we sure of not being snowed upon. Last year my Lady Lou's Chamois grew to a magnificent height and formed a wonderful display of blossoms, but just as the buds commenced to open a heavy September frost turned them black and withered, so you see I get it spring and fall. With such glorious sunshine for three months—June, July and August—surely you can tell me of some flower that it would be safe to plant and have reach maturity. I suppose I should be satisfied with my wild flowers, of which I have a succession of various kinds, but I long for some old fashioned perennials and sturdy hedge.

E. D. VAN A.

The secret of planting for a short season seems to be to get in seeds, plants, roots or bulbs as early as frost and other circumstances will permit and not to put one's hopes on anything that takes a long season for maturity.

Winter protection for perennials is necessary, and this includes covering the crown with soil for many plants.

You can have an abundance of bloom if your plant your seeds late in May. I should advise, especially for perennials, that the seeds be bought from good establishments and preferably from nurseries further north than where they are to be planted. In general they will prove hardier and more satisfactory than those which are grown further south.

The glass forcers recently described in this department will be of use in getting a good start for the young plants if the early days are chill and windy.

Probably you want to establish hardy herbaceous plants as the fundamentals of your garden, with a sprinkling of annuals, chiefly as fillers.

As the plan of your garden is unknown one can give only general directions. The old fashioned pansies will probably grow in your locality, although you may not be able to have the lovely new single ones. Sweet williams and foxgloves are biannuals, easily raised and worth the trouble. The creamy white foxgloves are the most desirable and they are beautiful with salpiglossis or rich dark red sweet williams.

Delphiniums, than which there is no more beautiful flower in the garden, will bloom the first year from seed sown late in May. One may also get good results from the annual larkspurs. Belladonna is the well known light blue delphinium, but the perennial is more robust and has larger flowers. The Formosum is dark blue, with a white centre. The Dèbe of Coulsught is a handsome velvety blue variety, with inner rosy petals and a large black eye.

It does well if planted in a sunny position, but will have a longer blooming period if planted in half shade. The Napellus var. Mollichoferi is a fine dark blue form and one of the first to bloom, beginning the first of July and continuing well through August. Some of the others bloom too late to be safe in your region.

Aconitum, Italica var. Dropmore, is another beautiful blue flowering plant and has a long season.

Doubtless you have the Michaelmas daisies. The Novae Angliae are probably the finest both in the size and profusion of their flowers, which range from pink to crimson and violet to blue.

The Eremurus Himalaicus, from the Asiatic mountain uplands, should be planted in an open sunny position, in good loamy soil and then left undisturbed. It produces stately white blossoms during June. There are also pink varieties.

Perennial lupines are among the best of the flowers producing in the early summer, having racemes of pea shaped blue, white and pink flowers.

Although most of the phloxes are perfectly hardy, a light covering of straw will be found beneficial. When planting them the ground should be well drained and manured. Miss Lingard is probably the best white variety and blooms early. Elizabeth Campbell and Thor are excellent salmon pink varieties.

Pyrethrums will thrive in almost any garden if given a well drained, sunny position. They are especially valuable for cutting.

The Galtonia, or hyacinth candicans, is a hardy bulb from South Africa which bears handsome spikes of ivory bell shaped flowers.

The herbaceous spireas are among the most valuable of hardy plants and flower freely in midsummer. They should be given a damp and partly shaded position.

Campanulas and platycodon you will surely want to have if they will thrive in your locality, which is probable. The Iceland poppy should do well with you, and it is a welcome addition to the flower garden.

Try scabiosa and salpiglossis for cutting.

Plant only early cosmos; the late varieties are too uncertain for you.

In the matter of hedges, do you want an evergreen or deciduous one; a flowering or merely a leafy one? The barberry is strongly recommended if your locality favors it. A sheared evergreen of the variety best adapted to your climate would be good. In a nursery far north the Actinidia argata, a vigorous vine, is used for wind protection and sheared for a close, hedgelike appearance. The Rose ragosa makes an admirable hedge, where it can be made to grow, and that is almost everywhere.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

How Billy Was Sent to His Mother

By HANNAH HIRSHFIELD

"Tom," said James Gowan to the man in charge of an express car that was about to be pulled out, "here's a package I want you to carry to Milford Center."

Gowan produced a box about three feet long by eighteen inches broad and deep. The lid was hinged and held closed by a hook and staple. The box was perforated and marked: "Perishable. This side up with care."

"I can't take it," said the expressman. "You must put it through the office in the regular way."

Gowan took a ten dollar bill from his pocket book and put it in Tom Murphy's hand.

"Tom," said Gowan, "it's my boy Billy. His mother went to Milford yesterday, and I've got to leave home tonight. Billy must go to his mother. He's too young to travel alone, and the company wouldn't take such perishable property. You'll be alone in the car, won't you?"

"Sure, I'll be alone in the car, and I can let the boy out between stations. Leastways I can let him sit up in this box. How old is he?"

"Five."

"Well, I'll try it on for you, Jim, but I don't want your money."

Gowan took the box into the open car, lifted the lid, and Billy clinched his arms around his father's neck.

"Billy, you must keep very quiet unless Mr. Murphy opens the box. If any one beside you in the box you won't get a ride."

"Yes, daddy. I'll be quiet."

"Well, goodby. Give mother a kiss for me."

"All right, dear."

"I'll close the lid till the train is off and the car door closed, then Mr. Murphy will let you out."

The father unwound his son's arms with a kiss, closed the lid, slipped the hook through the staple and left the car. In a few moments there was a puffing and a grinding of wheels, and the train pulled out. The lid was again lifted, and Tom Murphy stood looking down at Billy with an amused smile.

"Is it time to get up?" asked the boy.

"I reckon I'll let you get out for twenty minutes. Then when we stop at the station you'll have to get back again."

Billy sat up, and Murphy lifted him out onto the floor of the car. Billy looked about him wonderingly at the boxes and packages piled here and there. Seeing a trunk, he was much interested and wished to mount it and have a ride. But Murphy objected. When the whistle sounded for the next station Murphy said:

"Now, Billy, you must get back into your crib and keep very quiet until you hear the door shut and the train move on."

When the train stopped a special agent of the express company got in the car. He told Murphy he was going to the next station and would ride in the car. Murphy suggested that he would be more comfortable in a passenger coach, but he was not to be dissuaded. Settling himself on a box near Billy's crib, he lighted a cigar.

When the train moved on Murphy was much disturbed. The next stop would not be made for half an hour, and he feared Billy would not be able to keep quiet so long. But Billy unconcernedly appreciated the situation, for he lay perfectly still. The special agent, who was a supervisor as well took occasion to say to Murphy that there had been many cases of goods carried by the company's agents the charges for which had gone into the agents' pockets. He had been on the watch for such and had caught several agents in the act. They had at once been discharged. While communicating this fact he looked about him. Murphy thought, with a view to discovering another case.

Finally the supervisor got tired of talking and smoked in silence. Suddenly he cocked his head on one side and listened. Was that some one breathing? He got up from his seat and walked about trying to locate the sound till he finally stopped bending over Billy's crib. He distinctly heard the sound of some one breathing in sleep. Murphy was at a ruby dark at an end of the car looking over toward Billy. His back was to the supervisor, who unhooked the lid of Billy's box, and, lifting it, there was Billy sound asleep. Glancing at Murphy, the supervisor saw he was not observed. He stood for a moment with his eyes bent on the boy's innocent face irresolute, then softly lowered the lid.

A few minutes later the train stopped at the next station.

"Tom," said the supervisor, "all I want from you is that you haven't made any money that properly belongs to the company."

"I haven't," was Tom's reply.

"So long." And he left the car.

As soon as a new shirt was made Tom went to Billy to let him out of the box. The hook was not in the staple. He was sure he had put it there at the last stop. Only the supervisor could have removed it.

"Time to get up, Billy," said Tom, raising the lid.

"Are we there?" asked Billy, wide awake.

"No, but at the next station I'll turn you over to your mother."

When the train pulled up at Milford Center Billy was standing at the door of the car. His mother, who was waiting for him, saw him and ran toward him. When she came near enough he sprang into her arms.

Stage Art and Motion Pictures.

As a form of entertainment, not instruction, the motion picture will probably develop along the lines of fast, even fantastic, romance, of melodrama and of simple narrative. The stage, free from the burden of supplying these forms of entertainment, will probably concentrate more on the situation of the spoken word, which is to convey ideas and illuminate character, on the creation of the complete illusion of reality and on the pictorial art of scene painting. The movies and the spoken drama are not so antagonistic as we at first pessimistically supposed. Time, we think, will prove to us that in reality they are two different forms of art, as different as painting and sculpture. —American Year Book.

The Bull of Phalaris.

Perillus of Athens is said by the ancient authorities to have invented for Phalaris, tyrant of Agrigentum, B. C. 570, a brazen bull which opened on the side to admit victims who were to be roasted to death by the fire which was built underneath. The dying groans of the sufferers closely resembled the "roaring of a maddened bull," hence the name that was given to the invention. It is refreshing to know that later on the populace rose against Phalaris and burned the tyrant in the bull that he had made to be the cause of death to so many others.

A Better Trade.

"I understand young Briefless is about to marry the daughter of old Bonds, the millionaire?"

"Yes, so I am told."

"Will he give up the law business?"

"Yes. He will give up the law business and go into the son-in-law business."

Ask Them to Confirm Their Statements About Dr. Chase's Nerve Food —Then Put It to the Test in Your Own Case

Peterboro, Ont., March 5. — Still more people are coming forward daily with good words for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. These letters are not from far-away, inaccessible post offices but from your friends and neighbors right here in Peterboro.

You can call on these people, and hear from their own lips just what was their condition and how they were benefited by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

When you have been convinced that this is no ordinary medicine but a bona fide restorative of exceptional merit put it to the test in your own case.

Mrs. J. Mealey, 490 George street, Peterboro, Ont., writes:

"Over a year ago I was in a nervous, run down condition—had no ambition, only a sort of languid feeling. My condition no doubt was due to the fact that I go out nursing at different times and after some severe cases I found my system in a run down condition. Some of my friends advised me to take some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I procured a box and commenced to use them. I continued this treatment until I was greatly benefited, and am now much better.

My husband also finds great benefit from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and the Linseed and Turpentine I have advised many of my friends to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and they have received good results, also."

Mrs. William A. Murphy 491 Elm Street, Peterboro, Ont., writes:

"I had been suffering from nervousness, sleeplessness and a run down condition of the system. I went to the hospital for my nerves, and while there the doctor told me he could do nothing for them. A friend persuaded me to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I did so, and all I am sorry for now is that I did not commence using them sooner. My head used to ache so at times I could scarcely stand it, and if I had not secured the Nerve Food when I did I don't know what would have happened. I can sleep well now and have none of those terrible headaches. From time to time I take some of the Nerve Food as a tonic—I would not want to be without them if the cost a dollar a box."

Nervous headaches, indigestion, sleeplessness and irritability soon disappear when Dr. Chase' Nerve Food is used to restore the system, 50 cents a box; a full treatment of six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Chlorine, The Deadly Gas, is Great New Healer of Wounds

(By James J. Walsh, M.D.)

The war, with the immense experience it affords in the treatments of wounds of various kinds, has been a source of many opportunities for the development of surgery, but probably the epoch-making discovery for which it always will have a large place in the history of military surgery is that of an antiseptic, or bactericide, which proves effective in cleansing wounds of infectious material without injuring seriously the tissues to which it is applied.

The value of such a discovery will be best appreciated from the fact that when a man is wounded recovery is almost certain if the patient lives beyond the first 48 hours, unless some serious complication develops as a consequence of infection. The discovery then of an available antiseptic, or infection conqueror, is life saving to an immense extent. Besides that, it shortens convalescence and lessens suffering.

In spite of the most careful search there was nothing but discouragement before the war as regards the use of chemical antiseptics. Now, however, that much-desired and long-sought discovery probably has been made. It is a diluted solution of sodium hypochlorite, known as Dakin's fluid or Dakin's solution from the inventor of it. It is all the more interesting because it owes its activity to chlorine, which in the shape of gas has added new terrors to this war.

The use of the hypochlorites is not new, for "Javelle water" is a solution of potassium hypochlorite, and "Labahhaque's solution" is made of sodium hypochlorite, but Dakin's fluid differs from these in having high bactericidal qualities and low poisonous and irritating qualities. This combination of good bactericide with non-irritant properties is the ideal long sought for. The bacteria are killed and the tissues are not seriously hurt.

Wound Treatment.

Moreover, this fluid has the valuable property of dissolving recent blood clots. It is the blood clots in wounds that furnish the breeding material for microbes.

The all-important preliminary condition for the successful use of Dakin's fluid is that all foreign bodies must be removed from the wound. After this thorough removal of foreign particles the Dakin fluid is brought in contact with every part of the wound. By means of the perforated tubes this contact is renewed every two hours, and this interrupted flow of the fluid over the wounded tissues is kept up for some days, until a careful microscopic examination shows that there are no bacteria present. When on three successive days the microscope shows that the wound is free from bacteria the two sides are brought together and closed.

The results of this treatment are so much better than anything that we have had hitherto that it is calculated that convalescence is cut in two and secondary infections are extremely rare.

Quick Healing.

The healing is as a rule, prompt. The wounds look very different on the second or third day from wounds treated in other ways. Soldiers go back on the firing lines in less than half the time they did after the same kind of wounds before this method was employed. That may seem a dubious benefit to those unused as yet to war feelings, but the soldiers themselves, once they have become accustomed to war, would almost without exception ever so much rather be back on the firing line than in the hospitals.

Most of this new method of treatment is due to Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute, whose work in the French ambulance service has revolutionized wound treatment. It is the whole method of treatment and not merely the use of the Dakin's fluid (though that is an essential element of it) that has produced the brilliant results. Above all the microscopic investigation of the wound secretions and the prompt closure of the surfaces when it is demonstrated that no more bacteria are present is the significant improvement. Nature can thoroughly protect tissues if only the original conditions of the body are restored as far as possible.

Had Bronchitis FOR YEARS

Bronchitis comes from a neglected cold and it, if neglected, will surely turn into pneumonia. The first symptom is a short, painful, dry cough, accompanied with rapid wheezing and a feeling of oppression or tightness about the chest.

The phlegm raised from the bronchial tubes is at first of a light color, but as the disease progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color, and is very often hard to raise.

Dr. Wood's Norway is just the remedy that you require as it loosens the phlegm and heals the lungs and bronchial tubes.

Mrs. Chas. Brean, Amherst, N. S., writes: "I was troubled for years with bronchitis, and could not find any relief. I was especially bad on a damp day. I went to a druggist and asked him for something to stop the constant tickling in my throat. He gave me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I found gave me instant relief. I think it is the best remedy for bronchitis that I know of. I now take care that I always have a bottle on hand."

"Dr. Wood's" is the genuine, put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c and 50c.

memorable, especially as one of its members was General Joffre.

"He was the successful general commanding the allied forces at the most critical moments in history. There is no question but that the battle of the Marne was the most decisive in the history of mankind.

"We rejoice to think," Mr. Balfour said, "that the hero of that battle has come to join us in laying before the people of the United States our gratitude for the infinite aid and moral encouragement given to the allied cause. I am certain that the reception accorded to them will be not less warm or heartfelt than that so ungrudgingly given us."

The Mayflower.

The British commission planned to give much of yesterday to joining in the welcome to their French colleagues. The whole party assembled at the navy yard to greet the Mayflower, on which they had sent a large wreath of all the various roses of France, inscribed "Long live the alliance; homage to the French from their British friends."

Mr. Balfour later took lunch with the United Americans and visited the Treasury Department.

STUDY FOREIGN LANGUAGES.

Its Need Taught England by War — King Opens School.

LONDON, April 24.—When King George opened a school for the study of oriental languages here he placed official stamp of approval on the revival of a movement that since the war has been gaining rapid headway in this country to study foreign languages. The school opened by the king is the first of its kind in the British Empire, which counts 380,000,000 citizens speaking oriental languages.

One of the lessons taught this country by the war has been the need for a wider knowledge of foreign languages. The British people have learned through the war that the average German knew more languages than the average Briton.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Backachy or have Bladder trouble

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side headache, dizziness and general decay of you is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless, and makes a delightful effervescent lithiawater drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

The United States Of Gt. Britain And America Formed

A NATIONAL MARRIAGE

Great Britain and America Can Never be Divided Again; Death Only Judge Who Can Dissolve

By HALL CAINE.

LONDON, April 21.—The United States of Great Britain and America, separated in Government, as their needs must be and should be, but united in aim, in hope, might and in glory—such was the thought with which we came out of St. Paul's Cathedral Friday after the dedicatory service in commemoration of the entrance of America into the war.

America day in London was a great and memorable event. It was another sentinel on the hilltop of time, another beacon fire in the history of humanity. The two nations of Great Britain and America can never be divided again. There has been a national marriage between them, which only one judge can dissolve, and the name of that judge, is death.

Nature herself seemed to celebrate the nuptials. The morning broke fine, with the breath of summer and the smile of spring. After the prolonged snowstorms of the last week, it seemed as if we were having the first sunshine of the year. Such of us as had driven into London from the country, had seen young lambs nibbling the early grass and heard mating birds caroling under the sky. Winter seemed to have gone at a stroke. The mysterious yearly resurrection of the earth had begun again. Never had the city looked so bright and heartsome. The crisp air seemed to crackle under the thud and rumble of the thoroughfares. The Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes were intertwined on countless flagstaffs.

SOLID MASS OF PEOPLE.

Cordons of police were keeping back the crowds that lined the course of the royal procession. The broad circle of St. Paul's was framed with faces. Rarely if ever, has our old gray cathedral, compassed round with its tides of traffic, seen such a congregation. It was a solid mass of people from portico to altar steps. The King and Queen were there, with the beloved Queen Alexandra, the American ambassador, the ministers and ambassadors of the Allied nations, our leading statesmen, soldiers, sailors and a fair representation of the beauty and intellect of the nation, but above all there were present as the majority of worshippers the vast multitude of American people who are our friends and guests and have made their homes among us. They had gathered within the walls of the old sanctuary, where so many of our braves, and best lie in the deep repose of death, to subscribe to the high resolve and join in the sacred pledge of a hundred millions of their fellow countrymen across the sea.

How the mighty facts of life strike us down to our knees before the altar of Him whose kingdom is eternal righteousness. Led in hours of peace and prosperity our philosophies seem to eliminate the Almighty and to make prayer a presumption; but when great trials come, the great perils, the great adventures, we want a God who knows; a God who cares; a God who judges between right and wrong and is ready to listen to our cry. Hence at birth and at marriage, and above all at death, we come humbly to His footstool remembering only the fragility of our poor human life and the immutability of Him to whom a thousand years are as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night.

If the American people had chosen to walk in procession through the streets of London to the rolling of drums, and the cheering of crowds, it would have been a brave sight, but hardly a fitting one. Not in pride or in vanity has the American nation entered into war but in solemnity and steadfastness of soul; knowing how much we ourselves have suffered by it; how surely they must suffer, how cruelly their hearts must be torn also, yet facing certain loss and inevitable death for the sake of freedom.

Two lessons, at least, must be learned from the service of Friday in St. Paul's Cathedral. The first is that the accepted idea of the American nation is that it weighs and measures all conduct by material value, in dollars and cents, must henceforth be banished forever. Thribb already in its short history has it put that hoary old slander to shame and now once again has it given the lie to it. The history of nations has perhaps no parallel to the high humanity, the splendid self-sacrifice and the complete disinterestedness that brought America into this war, with nothing to gain and everything to lose. It has broken forever with the triple monarchies of murder. To live at peace with crime was to be the accomplice of the criminal. Therefore, in the name of justice, of mercy, of religion, of human dignity, of all that makes man's life worth living and distinguishes it from the life of the brute, America, for all she is or ever can be, has drawn the sword and throws away the scabbard. God helping her, she can do no other.

NO NATIONAL BARGAIN.

The second of the lessons we have to learn from the services of Friday is that, having made war in defence of the right, America will make peace the moment the wrong has been righted. No national bargains will weigh with her, no questions of territory, no problems of the balance of power, no calculations of profit and loss, no ancient threats, no material covenants, no pledges that are the legacy of past European conflicts. Has justice been done? Is the safety of civilization assured? Has reparation been made, as far as reparation is possible, for the outrages that have disgraced the name of man, and for the sufferings that have knocked at the door of every heart in Christendom? These will be her only questions. Let us take heart and hope for them. They bring peace nearer.

It was not for nothing that the flags of Great Britain and America hung side by side under the chancel arch on Friday morning. At one moment the sun shot through the windows of the dome and lit them with heavenly radiance. Was it only the exaltation of the moment that made us think that invisible powers were giving us a sign that in the union of the nations which those emblems stood for lay the surest hope of the day when men will beat their swords into ploughshares and know war no more? The United States of Great Britain and America! God grant the union celebrated at our old sanctuary may never be dissolved until that great day has dawned.

SUNDAY IN THE NAVY IS ALWAYS WASH DAY

Sabbath Set Apart for Entire Banishment of Dirt—Jack's Motto "Cleanliness Next to Godliness"

A correspondent serving on a North Sea dreadnought sends the following:

Sunday in the Navy is still set apart as the day for the utter and entire banishment of any and everything opposed to cleanliness. On any of his Majesty's ships of war on any Sunday, therefore, at 5.30 a.m., the shrill blasts of bugles bring Jack's mind to the sterner realities of Sunday morning in the Navy.

The Johnty and Crushers—the former the chief policeman, and the latter his satellites—are immediately out for prey with their "Show a leg," "Rise and shine," and woe betide the luckless individual whom the seductive blanket still covers five minutes later. Before 6 a.m. Jack has lashed up his hammock, stowed it in the netting, had a swill, and partaken of his cocoa. "Work main derrick" is scarcely sounded off by the bugle when the boats are hoisted out-board, and so the day's work is commenced.

"Chippy" Plays Important Part

The "Chippy," or shipwright, is now busy connecting up the hoses with the water-mains, and a rush is made for the locker wherein are neatly stowed brooms, squeegees, and swabs, required for scrubbing the upper deck. Every square inch of deck, from fo'c's'le to quarter-deck, is introduced to the enormous pressure of water which streams from the nozzles. Superstructure, funnel-casings, gun-turrets are likewise flooded till the deck is inches deep in water. Every spot of grease or oil is removed by the vigorous application of holystone and sand, and an army of brooms proceed to "Squeegee down and dry upper deck."

Jack now enjoys a brief respite till "Cooks" is noisily announced by "Sticks," the bugler. A breakfast of, maybe, sausages and eggs is tackled with a will and an utter disregard for possible digestive disorders. Now the mess-deck is to undergo the transformation scene. Decks are flooded as before; lockers, mess-tables, and stools—everything which the liberal application of soap, water, and elbow-grease will improve—are scrubbed. Steel stanchions are polished until they reflect the features of one's face, and no brass-work will pass muster until one can part his hair by gazing into its brilliance.

Divisions and Captains' Inspection

But out of chaos cometh order, and at 9.15, when the hands are piped "To clean," he quickly changes his No. 3's, or second best, after a hurried but thorough wash, and is then ready for Divisions and Captain's Inspection.

"Divisions" are sounded off, and everybody falls in at his appointed post. Officers of divisions inspect their men, and pity the poor fellow with hair a quarter of an inch too long, or boots not appearing as though varnished.

Mess-decks are then inspected, and "Rig church" immediately afterwards piped. On the whole Jack sings well, and although the sermon bores and Epistles mystify him, he loves to give expression to a well-known hymn. With church over his troubles are no more, and he is free for the day.

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day

Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy is it if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidney and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It clears out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

Largest Number Of Ships Lost Last Week

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, April 26.—Last week's sinking of British ships is the largest yet. Forty vessels of over sixteen hundred tons were sunk and fifteen under sixteen hundred tons.

AN EASY WAY TO GET FAT AND BE STRONG

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless flesh creams, or following some foolish physical culture stunt while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat unless your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere which seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This modern treatment is called Extract of Native-Roots and has been termed one of the greatest medicines of its kind.

Native-Roots aims through regenerative, re-constructive power to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of the food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to the starved, broken down cells and tissues of the body. You can readily picture what result this amazing transformation should produce as with increased weight the cheeks fill out, hollows about the neck, shoulders and arms disappear, and pounds of solid, healthy flesh are added to the body. Native-Roots is inexpensive and Warne Drug Co. and other leading druggists have it and recommend it. Start the treatment to-day.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S THREE-GORED SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

While the "barrel skirt," or "jupe tonneau," is being revived in Paris, it has not been taken up extensively and it is problematical whether this style will be featured in the new effects as the season advances. American manufacturers are showing their advance spring lines in dressy skirts, draperies and tunics and the tunic skirt will probably be the one of general acceptance, since all extreme styles are very short lived over here.

To complete a charming costume, when a skirt like the one in the picture is chosen to combine with a dainty blouse, all is not vanity but a just pride in dress. It is a three gore model with a raised waistline—always becoming and youthful in effect—draped with a one piece gathered tunic that ripples in the approved style. The fulness of the garment is evenly distributed and gathered at the waistline. The tunic may be cut to points at front, sides and back and have a trimming of satin or ribbon binding along the edge. Or it may be in cascade effect at the sides.

Silk, crepe meteor, charmeuse, Georgette crepe and other soft weaves are suitable, or one may use two materials. With the pictured pattern, the cutting, fitting and finishing of this skirt is very easy.

The skirt pattern, No. 8,170, cuts in sizes 22 to 30 waist. To make in size 24 requires 7¾ yards of 36 inch material and 4½ yards of ribbon.

To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Intense Fighting Continues On The Western Battle Front

The Forty-third Day of the Great British Offensive Has Developed into the Fiercest Fighting of the War--Germans Hurl Great Masses of Men Against the British and French in a Futile Attempt to Force Them Back ---British and Germans Locked in Death Grips---All Attacks Repulsed.

ENEMY SUFFERS HEAVY LOSSES

Special to the Examiner:

(By Perry Arnold.)

NEW YORK, April 26.—The forty-third day of the great British offensive and the tenthe day of General Nivelle's drive of his French forces is developing everywhere along the great western front, the fiercest fighting of the war.

Germany's army chiefs everywhere were hurling great masses of their men against the French and British to-day. Both London and Paris statements to-day were exclusively devoted to the narration of the repulse of terrific counter attacks. British front despatches revealed a practical standstill north of the Scarpe River, where the British and Germans were locked in death gripe. Haig reported the repulse of German counter attacks on Gavrelle. General Nivelle's statement revealed the greatest efforts by German troops to force back the French wedge which he says crumbled the southern base of the Hindenburg line. Most violent of all these violent attacks, and the most carefully organized was the drive south of Laon, around Cerny. It was delivered on a front of a mile and a half in two powerful smashes—both of which were nevertheless repulsed. The same effort to relieve Laon from French pressure was responsible for the attacks on Vauclere Plateau. The French front withstood other counter attacks of varying intensity along practically its entire length.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, April 25.—Rarely, if at all, in this war have the Germans suffered as here during the last two days before Gavrelle. Especially in the repulse of successive counter-attacks it assumed the character almost of a massacre, and the ground is actually littered with heaps of dead. In the course of 24 hours the enemy threw eight separate counter-attacks against Gavrelle, in some of which five or six thousand men were employed. Some were broken by our guns almost before they began. Others, in which the slaughter was most terrible, crossed a considerable space of the open ground before coming under our artillery fire, when whole battalions would seem to have been blown into bits. In only a few cases did portions of the waves come to be wiped out by rifle-fire. Only in one case did the enemy penetrate the village. For the moment the enemy's fury seems to have exhausted itself, though I do not believe he has become reconciled to giving up Gavrelle. This morning large movements and concentrations were going on at a certain point in the rear of this area, whence other attacks have developed and indications point to a renewal of the onslaughts.

FIGHTING AT GUEMAPPE.

General von Armin last Summer stated that German counter-attacks "cost much blood." Never have they cost more than before Gavrelle. The prisoners number over 3,000, a total of 18,000 in the first 15 days of the fighting of the Battle of Arras, and approximately one-half the total after five months of fighting on the Somme. That our losses are much less and the German casualties heavier than in a similar period of the Somme battle is certain. South of Gavrelle the fighting has been severe. Along the Scarpe before Guemappe, which the enemy seems almost as reluctant to part with as Gavrelle, there was dingdong attack and counter-attack all day yesterday. On one section of the battle-front south of the Scarpe the German losses were very heavy. We know that one battalion of the 167th Regiment lost two-thirds of its strength, 400 out of 600.

TREMENDOUS GERMAN ATTACKS.

PARIS, April 26.—Two tremendous German attacks made on a front of more than a mile and a half west of Cerny were smashed unavailingly against French lines and repulsed amid heavy losses to the enemy, to-day's official statement declared.

Powerful German counter attacks at two other places on the French front were likewise repulsed.

The War Office statement indicated that all along the French front the Germans were making violent attempts to loose the grip of French troops on their new positions. Some bitter fighting was reported from half a dozen different points.

THE HAGUE, April 26.—Dissatisfaction over Germany's failure frankly to announce her war aims is openly expressed in German newspaper editorials reaching here to-day. "It is deplorable," the Tageblatt declares, "that all declarations of the German Government regarding war aims are unintelligible, artificial, indistinct and of many meanings. We have remarked this nearly every time the Chancellor has spoken on this subject. In all these cases we have protested that such language was more harmful than beneficial to the cause of the German people."

LONDON, April 26.—Complete repulse of violent massed counter-attacks by German forces against new British positions around Gavrelle was announced in Field Marshal Haig's official statement to-day.

"Early at night the enemy again endeavoured to attack our new positions at Gavrelle," he said. "His troops were caught in our artillery barrage and completely repulsed."

LONDON, April 26.—The announcement to-day that Premier Lloyd-George had postponed for a few days his statement on Irish Home Rule, promised this week, aroused hopes of a complete settlement of the question. The London public was much impressed to-day by a great display in the Northcliffe newspapers, representing a canvass of American sentiment by its American correspondent, and including quotations from Roosevelt, Taft, and prominent Americans favouring Home Rule.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—What may prove to be a formidable attempt to sweep aside Hohenzollernism and replace it with a German republic was reported officially to the State Department to-day from several sources.

An open movement is on in Switzerland by a committee of Germans to spread a propaganda of Republicanism and democracy. Dr. Roose Meyer, former editor of the Berlin Morgenpost, leads the Switzerland propagandists who already have established a paper, The Frie Zeitung, to further their attempts.

From other sources this Government learns that the German people "are increasingly anxious" for peace. Such a message was taken by a traveller arriving in a neutral country from Germany to the State Department officials in an unnamed neutral nation. This Government's officials there so telegraphed the State Department to-day. It was stated: "The strike of 250,000 labourers in Berlin shows the growth of desire for peace." Germany has again materially reduced the bread rations.

BERLIN, via London, April 26.—Terrific fighting, in which British attacks were repulsed, and by which German troops won their way to the eastern boundary of Gavrelle, was detailed in to-day's official report. At Gavrelle the British troops are now situated on the eastern boundary, it was admitted.

On the French front, around Chemin Des Dames Ridge, the statement said the Germans' position was improved and 163 prisoners were taken, and an enemy attack along a front of two miles was sanguinarily repulsed.

RABIES IN CITY STIRS OFFICIALS TO ROUND UP DOGS

Will Likely Be Quarantined For Ninety Days—One Boy Already Dead and Number of Persons Have Been Bitten

A SERIOUS OUTBREAK

An outbreak of rabies in Peterborough may be immediately followed by the quarantining of every dog for a period of ninety days. Without exciting undue alarm among the citizens it may be stated that there is an element of seriousness in this outbreak that is fully realized by the authorities who to-day were considering the action they should take.

About two weeks ago Eddie Saxby died of rabies resulting from the bite of a dog which, it is understood, belonged to Mr. Cole Barrett, 492 Cedar street.

The animal was shot and the head sent to Toronto. This morning Dr. Moynihan, Dominion Government Veterinary Surgeon, came to Peterborough, bringing the report that the examination of the head revealed a pronounced case of rabies or hydrophobia.

This dog also bit Mr. Barrett, according to Dr. Amys' statement this morning, who will be sent to Toronto for the Pasteur treatment.

A LAKEFIELD CASE.

It is impossible to estimate the extent to which this dog may have infected others. A dog in Lakefield on Sunday morning attacked Angela Osborne, the nine-year-old daughter of Mrs. M. Osborne, who was walking in the street with her mother. It bit the daughter and also the mother when she attempted to drive the animal away. This appears to be an unusual case, and may indicate that the infection has spread beyond this city.

MAYOR READY TO ACT.

Dr. Amys has consulted with Mayor Duffus and Chief Thompson, and all the authorities are ready to put into effect a most stringent quarantine, if it is deemed necessary. And the very uncertainty of the situation seems to demand prompt and thorough measures.

Dr. Amys makes no attempt to minimize the seriousness of the situation, and Mayor Duffus mentioned the possibility of a Council meeting to put emergency regulations into operation.

The dog by-law reads rather ambiguously. It requires dogs to be in charge of their owners, but does not provide for their being caught nor a place in which to impound them.

125TH BATTALION IN FRANCE

BRANTFORD, April 25—After several months spent in England with their respective husbands, who are officers in the 125th Battalion, Mrs. (Lieut.-Col.) M. E. Cutcliffe and three children, Mrs. (Major.) The 125th Battalion forms part of the 14th Brigade, and goes to France as a unit with the 5th Division, according to Mrs. Cutcliffe. Many men had been drafted from this battalion, but it had been brought up to strength by drafts from the 120th and 173rd Batalions. The past Winter in England has been the most severe in 27 years.

Word was received here to-day that the 125th Batalion, which is Brant County's first complete battalion, had arrived safely in France.

The soldier's wife whose letter in regard to a land-lord appeared in the press on Monday is asked to communicate with the Great War Veterans. Address Room 204 Barrie Building.

George Logan, only son of Mr. W. A. Logan, 14 Murray street, left this morning for Toronto to begin training with the Royal Flying Corps.

Geordie has many friends in the city who will wish him success. He was the recipient of a fine wrist watch from Mr. Matthews, whose good wishes and those of the staff were much appreciated. A number of his young friends were at the station to see him aboard the 5.54.

Sergt. Harold Long, son of Mr. Jas. Long returned to Toronto this morning to join his comrades of the Canadian Army Dental Corps who are leaving for overseas immediately.

Among the Peterborough soldiers who have reached Canada from overseas and who will be home in a short time are Corp. P. Lavery of the 93rd Battalion and Pte. J. Teabeau.

RUBBISH BLEW ONTO THE LAWN

A citizen who paid two dollars and seventy-five cents a day to have his lawn cleaned up, states that the leaves and refuse on the streets adjacent to his property practically nullified the work that had been put in on the lawn. The citizen like many others claim that the street-cleaning operations do not start early enough.

ROBLIN TRIAL IS ABANDONED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WINNIPEG, Man., April 26.—Owing to the heavy expense of trial an dthe improbability of a conviction the Manitoba government have decided not to proceed with the trial of Sir Rodmond Roblin and the ex-Ministers. The Province will receive back about three quarters of million over payments on government buildings from the firm of Thomas Kelly, now serving a term in the penitentiary.

MILLION JUDGMENT AGAINST HENRY FORD

NEW YORK, APRIL 26.—Judgment for $1,000,000 damages was awarded against Henry Ford yesterday by Judge Julius M. Mayer, in the United States Court, in favour of the Vitagraph Company of America. Mr. Ford also will pay the costs. Mr. Ford however, received permission to reopen the case for trial, provided he files an answer in twenty days.

In an article prepared for and signed by Mr. Ford and published as an advertisement in many magazines and other periodicals throughout the country a film production by the Vitagraph Company called "The Hartb Cry of Peace" was attacked as an advertisement for munition manufacturers disguised as an honest appeal for preparedness.

The Vitagraph Company began action for $1,000,000 against Mr. Ford alleging libel. Mr. Ford filed a demurrer, and in overruling the demurrer yesterday Judge Mayer attacked the Ford article and awarded judgment for the full amount demanded, with costs.

FRENCH CAPTURED COMPLETE BAVARIAN REGIMENT IN WOODS

Sudden Swoop of French Forces at Ville aux Bois Resulted in the Taking of 1300 Prisoners and 18 Machine Guns

ONLY ONE OFFICER ESCAPED

Special to the Examiner:

PARIS, April 25.—Thirteen hundred German prisoners and 180 machine guns were captured in one sweep of French forces around Ville Aux Bois. The total of allied captures in the fighting around Ville Aux Bois was 11 cannon and 3,200 prisoners, including one entire Bavarian regiment with all its officers except the Colonel. This envelopment occurred on the 17th, but until to-day the censor withheld details.

The French swept so suddenly around the Ville Aux Bois positions that the Germans imprisoned within were taken entirely unaware. Just one solitary German evaded capture and he bravely stuck behind until he could drag away his machine gun.

If it had not been for the fact that the Colonel of the Bavarian regiment enclosed by the French was back to the rear of the German lines in his headquarters, he too, would have fallen prisoner. Not another officer escaped.

The Germans hurriedly rushed a Prussian regiment to take the place of the captured Bavarian unit, and they did their best to re-take the wood, but without success.

35th Wedding Anniversary Was Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pearson Received Presents From Their Family

A very enjoyable event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pearson, 658 Bethune St., when they celebrated their 35th anniversary wedding day. About 40 guests sat down to a daint supper. After supper the evening was spent in music, singing and other amusements. Among those present was Mrs. Thompson, of Spokane, Wash. The presents received included two beautiful Morris chairs, presents from the family.

The following address was read by Mr. Leahy, 470 Driscoll Terrace, while Miss Luella Pearson and Mr. Bert Pearson presented the chairs, after which Mr. and Mrs. Pearson gave a very suitable reply:

Dear Parents:—We your loving and affectionate children are assembled here this evening to celebrate the 35th anniversary of your wedding day.

As the years roll on we realise more and more your self sacrificing natures, and I am sure that each one of us feels the inspiration which your years of devotedness denote.

We cannot let this occasion pass without recognising this auspicious event in a material manner. To that end we have purchased these chairs and trust you will be long spared to recline in their spacious comfort, and to advise and council us with your experience in the avoidance of this life's pitfalls.

FUNERAL OF MRS. JAMIESON

The funeral of Mrs. Thomas Jamieson took place yesterday afternoon to Little Lake cemetery. The pallbearers were the six grandsons, Messrs. Ernest, James and John Tennyson, of Toronto, Melville and Albert Tennyson, of this city and Wilbert Mein of this city. The floral tributes were numerous, including a beautiful pillow from the T. Eaton Co., Toronto.

THE EXHIBITS

To-day witnessed the opening of Peterborough's three-day Motor Show which is being held in the Armouries under the auspices of the Red Cross Society. All indications point to a record attendance. A Motor Show is an innovation in this city and the manner in which the present event was handled leaves no doubt as to its success. All the pent-up enthusiasm and many day's hard work found expression in the general result, which to-day, was apparent to the large number of people who attended the opening ceremonies. The spacious Armouries has been converted into a veritable blaze of glory brought about by an artistic display of flags, banners and gaily decorated shields. Long steamers of pennants hang from the steel framework of the roof while over the booth of each exhibitor hangs a shield indicating the name of the exhibitor and the nature of the exhibit. Large flags of all descriptions are artistically placed at logical points throughout the building including a coat of arms which adorns the gallery at the west end of the hall. The official colours of the Peterborough Automobile Association are effectively displayed. The colours are red and green.

NO EFFORT SPARED.

No efforts have been spared to make the Armouries attractive and homelike for the occasion. In the words of a number who visited the Armouries before the Show opened—"the decorationse are the finest that have been seen in Peterborough in a long time." Decorating a large hall like the Armouries is no easy matter when one considers that it takes a forty-foot ladder to reach the steel rafters, where the real work commences. This part of the work was well and adequately taken care of by J. J. Turner and Sons.

INTERESTING EXHIBIT.

The various makes of cars are effectively displayed on each side of the drill hall while the centre is reserved for accessories, bicycles, motor cycles, tires and all manner of things pertaining to the automobile industry. One section of the centre space has been reserved by the ladies of the Red Cross Society for the distribution of tea and refreshments. A number of outside manufacturers have taken space in the building and visitors to the Show will see a number of interesting exhibits.

THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1917

BUILDING SHIPS.

Britain's lack of faith in Canada's capabilities—that it sometimes seems Canada has in her own. Anyway Britain believes that Canada can build ships; a belief that it is now held, is new to some of our leaders. In the session of 1912-13 Sir Robert Borden combatted for the policy of money contribution to the navy and argued against a Canadian navy, asserting that he doubted if Canada could build a navy of her own in twenty-five or fifty years.

But this war and its responsibilities have developed a new belief, a new faith in Canada's capabilities, not only in building ships, but in other things. Britain herself has demonstrated a tremendous capability, of initiative and accomplishment. Though utterly unprepared for even a short war, she has developed a genius for fighting a long war. Her "tanks" are a triumph of inventive genius applied to fighting. Of course, her navy was ready, but she was short of flying craft. She has got to the top with these in a double sense, and in air craft as in other things, she is far ahead of the "efficient" Germans with all their half century of preparation.

Britain has good grounds for her faith in Canada. After what Canadian soldiers have done, it seems plain that the rest of the breed at home can build ships. All of us whose eyes have not been filmed with partisan cataracts, have believed the same for a long time.

The British government has placed orders with Canadian ship yards for the building of 22 steel steamships of a total tonnage of 170,000, while orders for eight others are under consideration. It is stated that these orders will keep Canadian shipbuilding plants busy well into 1918. That is a little over twelve months for Canadian ship yards to build nearly two dozen steel ocean-going ships of an average of 8,000 tonnage.

We are glad and proud that we can do this additional bit for the empire and its cause, to the big bit we have done in the battle lines. This time, limit is a good deal shorter than Sir Robert Borden's "twenty-five or fifty years."

It is demonstrated that we could have built the ships of a Canadian navy in our own ship yards. The plans for Canadian armoured cruisers and destroyers and the tenders for them were ready to the Borden government's hands when they came into power in October, 1911. That is six years ago, and it is only a "sum in the rule of three" to prove that, if Canadian ship yards can build 22 steel ocean goers in, say, fifteen months, we could and should have built a big and considerable nucleus of a Canadian navy in the three years that elapsed from 1911 till the outbreak of the war late in 1914. Canadians' faith in themselves is in such things vain, unless their leaders lead and show spirit and capacity to put into action the capacity of our country for doing large things.

Now we are building ships to carry food, and this emphasises the duty upon us to provide more food for the ships to carry to the Motherland when the need is great. This morning's reports state that 48 food carrying ships, the biggest toll of any week, have been sunk by submarines; and drastic steps have been decided upon for food conservation. Canada must not only help carry food, but produce more food to carry.

NOT CONSISTENT.

The first division of the present session of the Dominion Parliament emphasized an undesirable condition, in which party interests played more part than patriotism, and showed the inconsistency of the government, and the government party. Mr. McCoig, Liberal, West Kent, introduced a resolution—

"That on account of the urgent need of greater production of foodstuffs, and the admitted shortage of farm labour, tractor engines suitable for all kinds of farm work, which will be of great assistance to producers, be admitted into Canada free of duty."

Mr. McCoig, in his simplicity, after the government had removed the duty on wheat and flour, automatically inducing similar action by the United States authorities—an action urged in the interests of Canada's participation in the war—no doubt felt that his resolution providing for a simple measure looking to the same object, would be unanimously adopted. But he was speedily corrected. His motion was voted down by a straight party majority of 20.

In this the government shows its inconsistency. After making wheat, flour and semolina free, and thereby, as a patriotic necessity, taking a whack at the milling interests — perhaps numerically not very important—the government can't think of imperilling the interests of the protected manufacturers of machinery. Sir Thomas White wouldn't for a moment entertain the proposal. He argued that the removal of the duty would cause a loss of revenue. Mr. McCoig's assurance that this would be compensated, fell upon deaf ears.

Sir Thomas contended that the removal of duty would affect all commodities entering into the manufacture of farm tractors, and though Mr. McCoig said he was willing to limit the suspension of duty to the duration of the war, the Finance Minister was still obdurate, and called upon the government supporters to vote down the resolution and it was, accordingly, obediently voted down.

If the government is honest in its appeal to the people, the farmers especially, to increase food production; and if its desire to relieve the food situation by remitting the duty on wheat and flour is sincere and effective, its action in refusing to provide facilities for giving the farmer much needed help is inconsistent, and even stultifying to the last degree.

The facts of the situation and the bearing upon it of duty-free farm tractors, and the prime and capital obstruction to increased farm production is the almost absolute impossibility of getting sufficient farm labour.

The farm tractor, or mechanical plough horse, is regarded as a vitally important solution of this difficulty. The British government, in the interest of increased farm production, has purchased 2,000 farm tractors in the United States, and the Ontario government, which proposes to help farmers by providing tractors, will have to bring them in from the United States.

The Ontario government will have of course to pay the duty. This will mean a fine of $210 upon every tractor of the type needed by the farmer. The price in the United States is $365, and the tariff and something else brings the price in Canada up to $575. The removal of the tariff would give the tractor to the Canadian farmer at $365, plus freight. The merciful Canadian tariff makes tractors for farm ditching free; but it adds $210 to every tractor required to help the farmer overcome the handicap of labour shortage, and to help the farmer respond to the government's own appeal for increased food production.

Everything has to bend to the exigencies created by the war, with the mass of the people and with the governments of the country in most things; but the draconian decrees of the government for shielding the interests of the manufacturer, are unbending, even if a little relaxation will benefit the farmer and the cause of the Empire by helping meet the greatest need of the cause—more food. Is it enough to use the word inconsistency in characterising the attitude of the government, towards Canada's implementing of her full duty in this war?

"THE MOVING FINGER WRITES"

One of the reasons why the Government are doing nothing whatever to put into force their own law to keep down the cost of living is stated by an Ottawa correspondent to be that three Conservative members of Parliament are directors of the Canners' Combine, while one Cabinet Minister is a prominent member of the Tin Trust. "The interests" evidently have a solid grip on the Government. What is true of canned goods is true of all other articles of food and of manufacture. Under the shelter of practically prohibitive tariffs, "the interests" are permitted to fix their own prices, and to do what the law expressly says they shall not do, namely agree and conspire among themselves to raise the prices.

When the war began the price index figure of the Department of Labour stood at 154.6. At the end of February last it stood at 247.3. On November last, because of strong public agitation, the Government undertook to frame regulations designed for the control of prices. As an indication of the action, or lack of action taken under these regulations it is noteworthy that since the new "control" scheme was put in force the index figure has risen from 198.4 in November, 1916, to 217.3 in February of 1917, and it is still going up. The estimated cost of a budget of food for the average Canadian family for one week, which in July of 1914 was $7.42, and in November of 1916 (when the Government's new regulations went into force), $9.81, now stands at $10.46. The estimated cost of living, including rent, fuel, etc., for an average Canadian family which in July of 1914 stood at $14.16, and in November, 1916, at $16.30, now stands at $16.78.

These are official figures, and they are a damning indictment of a Government who, unfortunately, are swayed by the interests of particular friends rather than by the interest of the people at large.—Credit Exchange

IRON-HAND MILITARISM DOESN'T MAKE HEROES OF ITS MAN-MACHINES

Of the chosen habitation of the greatest military organization of the world, with a discipline which can truthfully be called of the iron kind, one would naturally look to Prussia for military heroes. Of all the military units in that case-bound kingdom, the palm is awarded to the Prussian Guard. The cream of the German army, the natural supposition is that under all circumstances they would act the part of soldiers, maintaining their discipline to the last, obedient to orders, letting the weakest have the first chance.

The sinking of the British hospital ship Lafrance gave men of this crop the opportunity to display their supposed innate heroism. Unarmed, the Lafrance was steaming from France to Britain, laden with British and German wounded, the latter prisoners taken from the Prussian Guards corps during the recent British advance. Torpedoed by a German submarine, the vessel started to go down.

Says the descriptive report received, succinctly but graphically:

"We had aboard prisoners of the Prussian Guard and many British wounded, including some serious cases. The moment the torpedo struck, the Prussians made a mad rush for the lifeboats. When they were ordered to await their turn many showed cowardice by dropping on their knees and imploring pity. The crew and staff went to their posts. The stretcher cases were lowered first to the boats. Meanwhile, in response to distress calls, many vessels came hurrying to our assistance. Even while wounded and helpless Tommies lay unaided in their cots, the cowardly prisoners made another attempt and managed to crowd into a lifeboat which, however, toppled over directly it was lowered. Then they fought with each other to reach another boat containing some gravely wounded. I shall never forget the behaviour of our own lads. They tried to stand at attention, crippled as they were, while the graver cases were being looked after. The crew and staff remained at their posts until the last man was taken off. Some doffed their garments and threw them to those in the lifeboats wanting warm clothing, and in the midst of the distress and tragedy our men were able to strike up some popular ditties."

The Britishers aboard, crew, staff and wounded, as in the days of old: "Stood and were still to the Birkenhead drill."

They proudly maintained the grand records of the past in all marine disasters where the ship was British. The helpless were first to receive attention, with every man at his appointed post. It was then, while such calm heroism was being displayed, that the Prussians tried to rush the boats. Cowards in war, as shown by their foul, brutal treatment of the French and Belgian civilian populace, they are equally cowards in exceptional circumstances not indirectly connected with the war.

If the kingdom of military rule cannot produce heroes, what credit can it claim? Prussia cannot lay claim to any of the great Germans. Bach came from Thuringia, Handel, Wagner and Schumann from Saxony, Gluck from Bavaria. Weber, Schubert and Haydn were Austrians, Beethoven of Flemish extraction, and Mendelssohn a Jew; while Brhams was born in Hamburg. The Germany, of the arts is not Prussia, nor derived from Prussia. The Teutonic Knights, who founded Prussia, were the greatest robber organization of an age when to rob was considered good ethics. Their descendants have proven true to their heritage. Never heroes, they are at best plunderers, murderers, bullies, and, therefore, cowards. They have produced the Hohenzollerns, von Hindenburgs, von Tirpitzes—exponents of the theory that in war it is most merciful to be merciless, for total extermination is sure to bring peace. Their pernicious doctrines can never produce heroes.—Brantford Expositor.

BIG "Y" FOR LAKEFIELD

Will Simplify the Turning of the Peterborough train and Prevent Shunting.

Mr. Dan. McMillan, divisional superintendent of the G.T.R., was in Lakefield yesterday, overseeing the plans for the new "Y" which will be installed. With this facility the Peterborough train will run out on to the "Y" and immediately turn south thereby obviating the present shunting and remaking of the train.

The pleats on both skirts and coats are apt to be separated by panels.

Necks are frequently cut straight across the neck line and are finished with embroidery.

WINDSOR COUNCIL GENEROUS.

Authorizes $70,000 for Parks to be Raised by Debentures.

WINDSOR, April 25.—Continuing the generous spirit displayed Monday night when $2,000 was voted to the Windsor and North Essex Agricultural Society, $1,250 more than was asked, Windsor Aldermen, as a special meeting to-night, authorized a $70,000 debenture issue for park purposes, the newly created Park Commission being empowered to spend that amount without a vote of the ratepayers. The parks will be situated in the first, second and fourth wards.

An ideal finish for the new one-piece frocks is a chain necklace or a string of pearls.

S. WHATLEY

At The Motor Show

BY H. W. KIPP.

My wife said to me: "Go, buy us a car,
I'm tired of the street cars and walking's too slow;
We've travelled through life together so far,
And the joys of an auto we never did know."

So, I answered friend wife: "What car will I get?
There's nothing of autos that I really know."
She winked at me and said, "I will bet
You can make up your mind at the big motor show."

Forthwith to the auto show I repaired;
The cars all aglitter with polish and shine,
Glistened and glimmered until I despaired
Of being able to say, "That one for mine."

I asked a good fellow, "How much for this bird?"
He chewed on his gum and shifted his cud—
"Of twelve thousand dollars, I ask just a third,"
Twelve thousand stars, and I fell with a thud.

I was grabbed by the coat, and held by the neck,
Dimy and dazed, and waving my hand.
Another slick gent with a diamond, by Heck!
Says: "Come, let me show you an Overland."

Then a good fellow, who pitied my plight,
And realized what a hole I was in,
Fixed on me an eye that was bright,
And murmured, "Can't I sell you a McLaughlin?"

"Not so sudden," says I to this well-wishing sport,
"There are others around that look good to me.
There's the Chevrolet, Willys, the Dodge and Gray-Dort,
The Studebaker, Grant and huskey Packard."

I came to a place where they sold motobikes:
The Indian was the name it was called;
It was red, and it sure did look business like—
With a motor like that one could never be stalled.

The question arose: a six or a four,
An eight or electric, or velvety twelve,
In my poor misty brain I sure had to delve.

I am usually sober, and have a clear brain,
And head work I thought, was always my forte,
But where my "brain" was there was only a pain,
So I reached for my hip and took a good snort.

That Cadillac sure was a classy to see,
The Grant and the Chalmers, the Mitchell as well;
Then turning around I saw a Maxwell.

This brought me back to earth with a thud;
The price was a serious item you know.
The Chevrolet, Saxon, the Metz, and the "Stud,"
And way over there I saw a Brisco.

My brain was a halo of gear shifts and springs,
Heat treated, full floating, gold plated chassis;
Timken rear axles and "do funny" things;
I was groggy and felt I had ball-bearing knees.

My condition was critical and plain to the eye,
When sudden to me through the crowd there bored;
With a beam in his eye, said a smart-looking guy,
"Come on, here you are! let me give you a FORD."

Little Foolish Fancies That Still Prevail And Their Origin

The fact that the London County Council was recently petitioned by some residents who live in houses numbered 13 to change that number to 13a shows that the old superstition that 13 has unlucky associations still prevails.

Though popular education has now been in existence for nearly half a century, it has not been able to remove from the minds of the present generation certain simple beliefs that used to prevail in bygone ages. For some of these, such as the spilling of salt and the notion that Friday is a day of misfortune, the origin can be traced from remote times, but for others, which flourish in different parts of the country, it is difficult to suggest any explanation.

Why should thirteen be regarded as an unlucky number any more than another number? There is, of course, no logical explanation for it. The idea is the purest fantasy, but that misfortune will befall a person if he is at a dinner party which comprises thirteen, or if he lives in a house which bears that number, is a superstition so widely entertained that it has to be seriously considered.

Of course, people don't really "believe" in it, they are far too sensible nowadays for that, but at the same time it is just as well to take no unnecessary risks, and so in an hotel or a passenger boat you will rarely find a room numbered thirteen, and those who give dinner parties take particular care to disarm prejudice in this respect.

If it were not that the fancy is both very ancient and almost universal one might be supposed that it had its origin in the "Last Supper," when Christ and His twelve Disciples sat at meal together. But though that may have confirmed the belief in the disaster attending thirteen it cannot have given rise to it, because the superstition was in vogue long before the Christian era. The Turks so dislike the number that the word is almost expunged from their vocabulary. The Italians never use it in mak ing up the members of their lotteries. In Paris—as indeed, in most of the French cities and towns—no house bears the number and persons called quartorzinnes are always on call to make the fourteenth at dinner tables.

To quote still another instance, sitting down thirteen at dinner in old Norse mythology was deemed unlucky, because at a banquet in the Valhalla, Loki once intruded, making the thirteenth and Baldur was slain in the resulting appeal to arms. This is a fair sample of the evidence upon which the tradition rests. If Loki, the intruder, had made the twelfth or fourteenth at the board the result would have been the same.

In recent times efforts have been made to combat the superstition by forming "Thirteen Clubs" the members of which are pledged to do all the things which superstition regards as hazardous. They enter the dining room under a ladder, dine at tables in masses of thirteen, and open the proceedings by spilling the salt. Needless to say, these gatherings are always held on Friday.

Friday as an unlucky day goes to the very beginning of things, because it is alleged that Adam and Eve ate the forbidden fruit on a Friday. Then it was the day of Our Lord's crucifixion, and is thus a fast day in the Christian church. On the other hand, some races such as the Scandinavian, regard Friday as the luckiest day of the week, with no more reason probably, than others fear it is the least fortunate. People connected with theatres are said to be particularly sensitive in this respect, and, however, that may be, it is almost unknown for a manager to produce a play on a Friday.

How many people are there who, otherwise quite sane, and responsible, throw some salt over their left shoulder if inadvertently they should happen to upset a salt-cellar? "It's silly, of course," they say to themselves, "but then, one never knows." Probably the ancient Roman comforted himself with the same reflection. In his day salt was used in making sacrifices, and it was, therefore, regarded as sacred. Hence to spill it carelessly was to incur the displeasure of these household divinities. The idea of throwing it over the left shoulder when the accident occurred was that it might avert the wrath of the Deity.

There are other ways of dealing with the situation. An absent-minded old gentleman, for instance, when his neighbour upset the salt-cellar, immediately poured the contents of his claret glass on the spilt salt. He explained afterwards to a justly incensed hostess that he knew it was a good thing to put salt on wine dropped on the tablecloth, and he thought the reverse process would be equally effective. His hostess pointed out that it would be just as sensible to throw his claret glass over his left shoulder, and the elderly gentleman, remarking that this had not occurred to him, did so!

Many of us have our little pet superstitutions, which we keep as a secret in our own breasts. The wearing of a charm is one of the commonest forms of delusion and the most unlikely people, such as grave judges and eminent statesmen, have been known to cherish such things.

But apart from this wild variety of pagan practices, around every stage of our existence, from the cradle to the grave, curious beliefs and practices have grown up through the ages.

There are innumerable superstitions with regard to babies, but, as the principal oracle of these was the old-fashioned monthly nurse, they are, with her, well-nigh extinct, except in remote villages. One of the commonest is that cats suck the breath of infants, and so kill them. Why a cat should want to do so has never been explained, nor is there any instance on record of one having been discovered in the act. On the other hand, this belief must have caused endless inconvenience and annoyance to poor pussy, when, after having established herself close to baby in a snug, warm cradle, she finds herself ignominously hustled out under the suspicion of the attempted murder of her new acquaintance, who is not yet big enough to pull her tail.

When children first leave their mother's room they must go upstairs before they go downstairs, otherwise they will never rise in the world. Of course, it frequently happens that there is no "upstairs" the mother's room being the highest in the house. In this case the difficulty is met by the nurse setting a chair and stepping upon that with the child in her arms as she leaves the room.

If you rock an empty cradle you will rock a new baby into it. Many a woman has, no doubt, furtively rocked the empty cradle hoping that a newcomer may be sent to replace the lost one. But it is a delusion that cuts both ways, and a mother of ten may be forgiven for being cross with a child of hers who indulges in such a dangerous amusement as rocking the empty cradle.

In East Anglia, and no doubt in other parts of the country, there is a superstition with regard to the cutting of finger-nails and the luckiness, or unluckiness of certain days for performing this operation. For the better recollection of true believers it has been put into rhyme:—

Cut 'em on Monday, you cut 'em for health;
Cut 'em on Tuesday, you cut 'em for wealth;
Cut 'em on Wednesday, you cut 'em for news;
Cut 'em on Thursday, a new pair of shoes;
Cut 'em on Friday, you cut 'em for sorrow;
Cut 'em on Saturday, you'll see your true love to-morrow;
Cut 'em on Sunday, and you'll have the devil with you all the week.

The origin of these notions is wrapped in mystery; at any rate, all except the last, which may, perhaps, be explained that cutting of one's nails being either work or a matter of vanity was, if carried out on a Day of Rest, sure to lead to retribution.

OMEN OF THE BEES

Some curious notions prevail with regard to bees. It is unlucky, for example, that a stray swarm should settle on your premises, unclaimed by their owner—unlucky to you, that is to say, though it might be imagined that the owner would have every reason to regard himself as unfortunate. The omen is that if a stray swarm of bees comes to a house and you are obliged to adopt them, there will be a death in the family within the year.

Another idea, which certainly ought to be encouraged, is that bees will not thrive if you quarrel about them. "I was congratulating a parishioner on her bees looking so well," a country clergyman records, "and at the same time expressing my surprise that her next door neighbour's hives which had formerly been so prosperous, now seemed quite deserted. 'Ah!' she answered, 'them bees couldn't du.' 'How was that?' I asked. 'Why,' she said, 'there was words about them and bees never du if there's words about them.' This was a superstition so favourable to peace and goodwill in families that I couldn't find it in my heart to say a word against it."

It is customary in many parts of England when a death takes place to go and formally impart the information to the bees, to ask them to the funeral, and to fix a piece of crepe on their hives, thus treating these insects as being possessed of something like human intelligence, and thus entitled to all the respect which one member of a family pays to the rest.

Neglect of this precaution is likely to have serious consequences. Thus a farmer bought a hive of bees at an auction of a neighbour who had recently died. The bees seemed very sickly and not likely to thrive, when the farmer's servant remembered that they had never been put into mourning for their late master. On this he got a piece of crape and tied it to a stick, which he fastened to the hive. After this the bees recovered, and the result was unhesitatingly attributed to their having been put into mourning.

PRESAGES OF DEATH.

Presages of death are so varied that it is questionable whether a death can ever take place without at least one of the omens being present. Fires and candles supply some of them—coffins flying out of the former and winding-sheets guttering down from the latter. Coffins out of the fire are hollow, oblong, cinders spurted from it, and are the sign of a coming death in the family. But it is necessary to examine the cinder, for it may not be a coffin. If, instead of being oblong, it is oval, it is a cradle, and predicts the advent of a baby; while if it is round, it is a purse, and means prosperity.

A winding-sheet is produced from a candle if, after it has guttered, the strip which has run down, instead of being absorbed into the general tallow, remains unmelted; if, under this circumstance, it curls over away from the flame, it is a presage of death to the person in whose direction it points.

The howling of a dog at night or the screech of an owl flying past the window of a sick-room is generally looked upon as a warning that death is near.

The mirror superstition, at any rate, serves a useful purpose. If a looking-glass is broken there will be a death in the family within the year, and so in a small household which cherishes this belief there are not likely to be many breakages among mirrors. If that idea could be transferred to the destruction of glass and crockery, it would be worth fostering. But, on the contrary, there is a belief firmly held by quite a number of people that if you break two things you will break a third.

A lady saw one of her servants take up a coarse earthenware basin and deliberately throw it down on the brick floor.

"Why on earth did you do that?" asked the mistress.

"Because ma'am, I'd broke two things," answered the maid, "so I thought the third had better be this here," pointing to the remains of the least valuable piece of pottery in the establishment.

FRETFUL BABIES

Mrs. John M. Weaver, Blissfield, N. B., writes: — "I can speak very highly of Baby's Own Tablets. I have used them for my children and find they are the best medicine a mother can give her little ones. I would strongly recommend them to all mothers who have fretful babies." The Tablets regulate the bowels and stomach; break up colds and simple fevers; expel worms; cure vomiting and indigestion and make teething easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Ran Away To Join 109th; Killed in Action

Referring to the death of the late Pte. Joseph Berry, who has relatives in Lindsay, a Hamilton exchange says.

"The home of Mrs. Elizabeth Meredith, 166 East Jackson street is sad one to-day for a telegram from Ottawa yesterday informed her that her only son, Pte. Joseph Berry, 109th battalion, had been killed in action on April 4th— He was but seventeen years old, having celebrated his birthday on April 1, three days previous to having fallen in action. He ran away from home to enlist with the 109th battalion at Lindsay on March 31, 1916, being only sixteen years old. He was a well-built young man and easily passed for eighteen. Formerly he worked for P. D. Donovan, at the Peebles and Hobson grocers. His reason for running away from home, his mother told a reporter, was because he was pursued by recruiting officers to and from his work. Efforts had been made for his discharge owing to his under age, and his birth certificate was en route to England for that purpose. Much sympathy is felt for his mother, and his sister. He was a member of MacNab street Presbyterian church."

RHUBARB MARMALADE.

As a change from ordinary stewed or baked rhubarb, the following recipe is recommended: Cut three pounds of rhubarb in cubes. Do not peel. Arrange in alternate layers in a kettle with two and a half pounds of granulated sugar, half a pound of figs, cut fine, and half a pound of candied orange peel, finely minced. Let the ingredients stand covered over night, and cook over a moderate heat until thick and jelly-like.

MAUDE BEATS TURKS; TAKES 818 PRISONERS

General Maude's Army 17 Miles North of Junction of Tigris and Shatt-el-Adhem — Great Amount of Booty Captured.

LONDON, April 25. — An official statement received to-day from Gen. Maude, commanding the British forces in Mesopotamia, says that the British have driven the Turks from the west bank of the Shatt-el-Adhem to about seventeen miles north of its junction with the Tigris. General Maude's total captures on Saturday and Sunday in the vicinity of Istabilat were 637 prisoners and 15 guns.

In a message Tuesday Gen. Maude reports:

"After a night march we made a surprise attack on one division of the Thirteen Turkish Army Corps on the west bank of the Shatt-el-Adhem, about 17 miles north of its junction with the Tigris. The enemy was driven from his position, and fell back on the Second Turkish Division of the Thirteenth Corps, some ten miles further north. In this action 181 prisoners were taken, including four officers, many transport mules, ponies and camels."

Concerning the actions in the vicinity of Istabilat and on the right bank of the Tigris, the statement says:

"The full list of our captures for the two days, including those already reported, is 20 officers, 667 men, one gun of 5.9 calibre, 14 Krupp guns, two machine guns, 1,240 rifles, a quantity of hand grenades, 200 rounds of gun ammunition, 540,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, four limbers, 240 trucks, one crane with spare wheels, and other stores, and sixteen engines."

Turk Admits Retreat.

Constantinople, April 25.— An official statement issued yesterday by the Turkish War Department regarding military operations in Mesopotamia and southern Palestine says:

"After inflicting heavy losses on the enemy on the right bank of the Tigris (Mesopotamia) and repulsing all his attacks, our troops retired according to plan to new positions north of Sama.

"In the neighbourhood of Gaza (southwestern Palestine) on Sunday afternoon the artillery fire became intense. On Monday morning it weakened and the day passed in general tranquility."

THE HOME GARDEN

(Sweet Corn)

(Conservation for April)

Yes, in the poor man's garden grow
Far more than herbs or flowers,
Kind thoughts, contentment, peace of mind,
And joy for weary hours.
The Poor Man's Garden.

From the cares of business and the nervous strain of the office, the backyard garden offers a relief which is not sufficiently enjoyed. Open air exercise is essential to good health. To what better end could this effort be devoted than the cultivation of the backyard garden.

It requires but a small area of land to supply a table with green vegetables. These may be had crisp and fresh and, on this account, much more of such food will be used, to the great advantage of health.

The product of the home garden relieves to that extent the demand upon the general supply. "Self-preservation is the first law of nature." Do not abuse that law by expecting others to provide your food supply when you are capable and have the facilities for growing at least part of your needs.

THE NEMESIS OF AUTOCRACY

(By R. CALDWELL)

Events of world-wide importance are succeeding each other rapidly, and among those of recent date none is more startling than the sudden destruction of an ancient barrier of tyranny and reaction, rotten throughout, and resting on a foundation of corruption and fear. Reaction may be powerful to obstruct and delay, but it can never destroy those forces by which it will itself be destroyed, and which, like a flowing stream against a dam, increase in strength by the very obstacle which opposes them. History shows that the fienal catastrophe is overwhelmingly sudden, and the barriers of tyranny and oppression snap like matchwood beneath the strain. Although we in England who live under free institutions of our own choosing, are happily spared from immediate contact with such events, they closely affect our destiny, and never more so than at the present time. Example is infectious, and what has happened in Russia may hppen elsewhere. Already the Socialist organs of Germany are pointing the moral. In spite of wide differences, the repressive influences of the ruling caste constitutes a point of vital resemblance between the two countries, and it need be a matter of no surprise if the Germans are fired to action by the Russian example.

The history of Germany may be said to have begun with the reign of Frederick the Great, and that monarch, according to Macauley, "drilled his people as he drilled his Grenadiers." The general principles of Frederick's methods have remained in force up to the present day. The whole history of the country shows its success to be dependent on this drilling process which crushed individual thought, reduced the people to the condition of mere pawns in the game of national aggrandisement, and thus made the basis of victory rest, not on the soul of the nation, but on its slavish submission to the tyranny of irresponsible rulers.

The German system make it inevitable that the country must stand or fall by the competence or otherwise of autocratic leaders to guide the national destinies, the British or American system rests upon the will and character of the people. While Germany can express no national will properly so called, our national will finds its expression in our chosen representatives, and national spirit thus ensures a continuity and general sanity of national action.

The German system of intellectual repression has produced strange mental distortions and possibly none much stranger than the national reverence accorded to the frenzied vulgarity of the Imperial Master. More serious by far are the frightful moral perversions expressed in those acts of obscene outrage and cruelty which have roused the civilized world to a universal outburst of anger and disgust. There is no doubt that this intellectual tyranny is part of a national policy designed, irrespective of the requirements of truth and justice to instil and foster those conceptions which are best adapted to serve reactionary interests. The results of the system are now obvious enough, in the weakening, through a vitiated public education, of all natural sense of proportion and faculty of common reason, and so leading to the actual debasement of national understanding. If any proof of this is wanting, it can be found with ease in the transparent knavery and blundering falsehood of German statecraft, and in the lind error of judgment which led its diplomatists to gauge the intellects of other countries, and notably Great Britain, by standards peculiar to their own.

Such a system of mental tyranny must naturally depend on autocratic rule, a dangerous system of Government at best, and doule dangerous when the presiding genius unites a maniacal ambition with instincts worthy of a barbarian.

His crazy dream is now shattered for ever, and Germany finds herself faced with the naked truth, which indicates with merciless accuracy her irredeemable failure, her economic downfall, and her unnumbered list of ineffaceable crimes. Years of persistent toil, years of persistent plotting, treachery without measure, and national resources poured out like water, have achieved results for which a deluded people may before long exact a stern account. Among other indications of the German popular awakening is a speech of the Chancellor which followed immediately the reception of the news of the Russian revolution. Highly placed officials of the Germans are not remarkable for any personal sympathy with ideas of national freedom yet in the Chancellor's words those ideas are openly advocated, and a solemn warning uttered against any further attempt to delude the nation into accepting the shadow of liberty by such means as the shallow semlance of an extended franchise. This warning can only have been inspired y fear, fear of the gathering storm of resentment which fair words may allay, but which violence may precipitate.

The German people are what their system of government has made them, and with the destruction of that system, a newer and better people may arise, purged from those faults which have made them odious throughout the world. It is folly to attempt to foretell the future, but it is fair and reasonable to entertain a hope that under the influence of a great example, the German people may be suddenly aroused by a passion for liberty, to pull down the discredited idol of cruelty and brute force and lay it for ever shattered in the dust.

RUSS AGRARIAN TROUBLE

Peasants Are Driving out Landlords and Causing Disturbances.

LONDON, April 26.—Despatches from Petrograd report that the revolutionary spirit is manifesting itself in the rural districts of Russia, bringing the long-standing agrarian troubles to a head, notwithstanding the organization of food committees which are doing their best to make the peasants understand that the land question cannot be wisely settled until the constituent assembly is elected. Soldiers visiting their rural homes, with or without leave, spread the news of the revolution, and lead the peasants against the landowners. This is chiefly the case in the Saratov government, where the peasants have proceeded to take possession of the lands and drive the landowners away. The peasants announced that they will undertake the spring sowing themselves, but owing to lack of seed this is impossible.

Peasants' conferences, to which delegates are sent from even the smallest communes, are being organised in every province of Russia. One characteristic resolution demands that all land which private landowners cannot now must immediately be surrendered temporarily to the peasants, soldiers' wives to receive shares free and others at moderate rent.

Bessarabian peasants in one instance sacked a country house and estates belonging to a rich family. The peasants of the Tambov government surrounded the houses of the landowners and compelled them to sign documents surrendering their lands.

In some part of Bessarabia the country people are highly reactionary, and in one district, especially the Odessa, military authorities have taken strong measures to suppress a counter-revolutionary movement.

GARDEN CLUB MOVEMENT HAS SPENT ITS ENTHUSIASM ALREADY

The greater garden movement is lagging, and with the exception of some individual effort that has been aroused is likely to peter out to the ordinary proportions of the average spring planting work.

Many of those who might enter into this movement have gardens in the south end which they will not use because of their own work in munition factories. Others are indifferent, and the general enthusiasm which was apparent several weeks ago seems to have entered upon a total eclipse.

In the meantime potato stocks are decreasing and there have been no reported receipts in the city lately, although a carload is expected shortly, and others have been ordered. But ordering is the easiest part of the business these days. The grocers are asking as high as 75c. a peck, and hundreds of consumers are buying in half peck quantities. One grocer who put in a large stock last fall is reported near the end of his resources. With a moderate depreciation of his stock due to rots he should have realised a considerable profit. But this case is an exception. For months past most of the grocers have been buying in small quantities and have been forced to dole out their limited supplies in mere peaks instead of bags or bushels.

Although the Garden Club movement is showing scarcely more life than a red herring there has been a fair response from householders who are utilising their back gardens. Local plowmen are busy in all directions, in many cases working until dark. To that extent therefore, there will be a greater effort than usual, but many others who should have entered upon the work have become apathetic.

It is not too late yet to get under way. And the available ground for the mere asking has been scarcely touched. Citizens should remember that they must not place too much dependence upon the farmers who will be fully employed with the grain crops and dairying, without attempting to put in what they regard as only an incidental crop of potatoes.

Blown Up Four Times He Decides To Rest

NEW YORK, April 26.—Arthur Hadley, who had been pursuing the spectacular occupation of catching and destroying Prussian mines in the North Sea, the Irish Sea and the British Channel ever since the beginning of the war, came to his country yesterday to allow all that remains of him to rest up a bit among friends here and in Canada.

One 800-pound contact mine, which went off "without warning" while it was being taken aboard the scout steamship Centipede, in the North Sea, in January, 1916, carried away part of Hadley's jawbone.

The trawler Grace McRae struck a contact mine in December 1915, and was reduced to splinters. When Hadley was picked up, hours afterward, he found that three of his fingers were gone. More recently he was blown up with the trawler Gail, but suffered only minor injuries. More serious was the result of the blowing up of another trawler, the Commodore Bradford. It cost him a large section of one of the principal bones of his left leg, which has been replaced by a silver brace.

When he feels rested, he says, he will return to lassoing and shooting mines. "It is so much more exhilarating and exciting than to be cramped up in a trench," he said.

KNIFE ON CORNS CAUSES LOCKJAW

Tells How to Loosen a Tender Corn So It Lifts Out Without Pain.

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called freezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn, the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out with the fingers.

It is a sticky substance which dries the moment it is applied and is said to simply shrivel the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. It is claimed that a quarter of an ounce will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You are further warned that cutting at a corn is a suicidal habit.

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—It has been said that there will be no occasion for the celebration of the Treaty of Ghent, which was deferred more than a year ago on account of the war, for the hundred years of peace will be merged in, and become the precursor of "the thousand years of peace," of which Tennyson sang three quarters of a century ago.

"The Song of Universal Brotherhood," a poem by Nellie E. Dashiell, although written in the last quarter of the past century, is peculiarly applicable to the sentiment that is waging the present conflict by our Allies with the atrocious Huns in the name of a common humanity, a poem of high order, proclaiming the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

It has been variously expressed by the reviewers that this poem is one of the finest poetical gems that has ever come to our notice. Here are extracts from some of the reviews: "An inspiration of the dawn of which poets have sung." "In these troublesome days when the air is vibrant with discords, this song of brotherhood speaks right to the heart." "It compares life to an ever widening stream in its course from the mountain brook to the great river emptying into the sea, following it from its source in the dark past to the gloomy present, and down the steps of time to the bright future."

The author's ancestors were of French origin and came across to England with William the Conqueror, where they settled for many centuries. More recently one branch of the family tree migrated to the Southern States with other leading English families and settled on the eastern shore of Maryland, opposite to Baltimore, which was called after Lord Baltimore. The blend of her inspiration comes through her French-English-American ancestry, and breathes the pure spirit of the times as manifested by our Allies in the present struggle.

The poem's reference to the conflict of arms is applicable to the poems in world war. The concluding verse, although not referring to our flag, describes it faithfully.

Here it is:

And dear to our hearts is the flag of our nation,
As proudly we watch it unfurl to the breeze—
How gladly we welcome with loyal devotion,
Our royal old banner afloat on the seas!
For does it not stand for the right of all people?
Its honourable conquests, our patriot pride—
'Tis honoured on mountain crest, ocean and steeple,
This flag for whose safety our brothers have died.
But dearer than this is the cause universal,
Including our kindred of every tongue:
Ho! ring out the tidings of ceaseless rehearsal,
For this is the dawn of which poets have sung.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

LONDON, April 26.—Germany is not likely to attempt any big offensives on the Russian or Italian fronts as long as she is kept busy on the Western front, in the opinion of General F. B. Maurice, Director of Operations. The present Allied attacks, he said, differ from the battling on the Somme by reason of the continuous flow of guns and ammunition in the present case, and the restoration of the Allied air supremacy.

AMSTERDAM, April 26.—Thanks to the "Heroes of Arras and the Aisne," and hopes of an early peace, were expressed in a telegram sent to the main Reichstag committee to-day to Field Marshal Hindenburg. Despatches from Berlin said message, "Promised the entire German people would devote all their strength to the country's defence until the peace which it was hoped would come soon, arrived.

THREE-DAY MOTOR SHOW FORMALLY OPENED BY MAYOR DUFFUS

fus. The Mayor referred to the praiseworthy objects of the Show and commended the exhibitors upon the good showing they had made. He was followed by Lieut.-Col. Walker, Officer Commanding the Canadian Defence Force, who spoke in the interest of that particular unit.

All arrangements have been completed for the big parade this evening which will start at seven thirty o'clock from the Market Square. Two big trucks have been secured from the Canadian General Electric Company to carry the two bands, which will lead the parade. Bicyclists as well as motor car owners will take part in the parade.

County Council Invited.

The members of the County Council have been invited to attend the Show and incidentally look over the road model exhibit, which is one of the finest ever seen in Peterborough.

A series of road models has been prepared for exhibition purposes by the Ontario Department of Public Highways, as a means of showing various processes of road making, ancient and modern. Of historical interest are the models of the Appian Way, an early Roman Colonial road, and the early types of road built by Macadam and Telford in England and Scotland, and by Tresakuet in France. Modern roadmaking is illustrated by models showing the use of the tog drag, construction of a bituminous pavement, a concrete road, a brick road, a modern macadam road, the resurfacing of old roads, the cheap construction of township roads and town street improvement.

Early Stone Roads.

These models illustrate the changes in the ideals of road builders from the days of the Roman Empire to the present. Early stone pavements appear to have been constructed with little regard for drainage, the body of the road being made sufficiently heavy to support the weight of traffic by virtue of its mass. This principle was followed in Europe to the end of the eighteenth century. Early in the nineteenth century Macadam revolutionized road building methods by introducing the principle of adequate drainage, thereby furnishing a dry, solid, earth subgrade possessing considerable supporting power, on which a lighter stone covering could be laid. The object of the use of broken stone is threefold; to provide a hard, smooth surface with a minimum resistance to traffic, to form a water-proof covering for the subgrade; and to distribute the weight of traffic over the subgrade. In all types of road constructed at the present time, thorough drainage coupled with a durable surface are the cardinal principles, the only exception being found where drainage is impracticable, and where a massive body of stone or other material must still be employed.

The models in this collection are accompanied by descriptive cards showing the principal steps in the construction of each type of road.

Will Give Government About Three Months To Prepare For Death

All the Reciprocity the Borden Government Wants is Enough to Tide it Over the Next General Election—The Farmer is the Producer—The Consumer Gets No Relief This Side of the Grave.

OTTAWA, April 26. —The present session of Parliament finds the Central Figure Sir Robert Borden, absent and the still more Central Figure, the Honorable Bob, absent with him. Sir Robert expects to be away until the middle of May, but the Honorable Bob will probably take the next boat. A general election is said to be impending and that is one thing which the Ministers of Elections does not care to give about treatment.

The Honorable Bob wants to get back to see how his free wheat trick is coming on. The statement was given out that the Prime Minister and his visiting colleagues were consulted by cable before the Order-in-Council was issued, but that is a story to tell to the marines. As a matter of fact, free wheat was decided upon more than a year ago—it was the card up the Honorable Bob's sleeve—and the only thing waited for was the psychological moment to play it. With the end of the war fairly in sight, a general election looming on the horizon and the Borden Government's profiteering friends glutted with riches, squeezed out of a long suffering people, the psychological moment would seem to have arrived. At any rate, they are playing the card.

The milling interest is so rotten with money that the Borden Government can afford to slap it on the wrist. Whom the Borden Government loveth it chasteneth—but not so as to hurt. The millers being the smallest group of monopolist middlemen, the Borden Government naturally sacrifices them first. It will be a long time, one ventures to predict, before the Borden Government gets back to the packers' trust, of which the great and good Mr. Flavelle, that idol's eye of the Borden Administration, is the captain. Or to the Canners' Combine, in which Lalor, M.P., and Marshal, M.P., two Conservative stalwarts, are leading beneficiaries. Or to the Tin Trust, of which Sir Edward Kemp is the dictator. Or to the Shoe Trust, in which Sir Herbert mes is an influential participator. Or to the Woolen Trust, in which John Stanfield, M.P., lately Conservative Whip, is a prominent figure.

The Borden Government's friends, it will be observed, are posted at all the strategic spots where the people's dollars show their heads. It is owing to their conjoined, concerted and patriotic efforts that the weekly cost of living for a Canadian family, which was $14.16 in 1914, is now $16.78 and still going up. In the food budget alone the Canadian workingman pays out fifty per cent more than he did two years ago and, meanwhile, his wages have gone up two per cent.

The Western farmer, so far as he is represented in Parliament is not in much danger of being caught with the Borden Government's chaff about free wheat. He figures out that a government which kept him out of ten cents a bushel on his wheat for six years, but had no compunction about letting its shell-making friends grab eight hundred per cent. profit the first crack out of the box, has very little real love for the farmer. All the reciprocity the Borden Government wants is enough to tide it over the next general election. Too much, as Mr. Shakespeare remarks, is enough.

And at that the Government isn't doing anything for the consumer. The farmer is a producer, and heaven knows he has been kept out of his right to a wider market long enough. But the consumer, poor wretch, he gets no relief this side of the grave—no relief except dilatory commissions on the High Cost of Living and soft words from Mr. Crothers. England has regulated food prices. Australia has regulated food prices; all the belligerents near or remote have regulated food prices—all, that is to say, except Canada, which gave the Borden Government full authority to do so, but the Borden Government preferred not to act. Several times in the last three years deputations of the people have come to Ottawa crying for bread and always the Borden Government has offered them a stone—a soap stone perchance—a soft soap stone.

Rumour has it that the Borden Government may be reconstructed, after which, following some great war victory, it will go to the country with flags and loud acclaim. Reconstruction, as it were, to be followed by destruction. The only thing against this theory is that those who are picked out to quit, Dr. Roche, Mr. Burrell, the three Nationalist cabinet ministers, are not willing to be reconstructed. Mr. J. W. Flavelle, from whom all blessings flow, is mentioned as one of the strong men to be taken in. We would be pleased to hear how the bacon eaters of Canada regard any closer connection by Mr. Flavelle with public life than he has already. All those in favour of Mr. Flavelle, say "Aye." The noes seem to have it.

The corridor gossip is that an extension is the first thing Premier Borden will ask for when he gets back. It will be up to Parliament to decide whether the Borden Government wants an extension to do good or to do as it has been doing—spending a million dollars a day, a considerable part of it being flung to the birds. The Borden Government may take the ground that it can extend its own life by using the majority which it now has in both houses. This would be a hard jab at the constitution, but the Borden Government has a come-back for that too. They may put up the argument that what they do in a crisis to the British North America Act is their own affair because the Imperial Parliament may not be sitting at the time when they need to, to ratify their amendments. They may put up this argument—and they may not. They would hardy have the perve. However, it has been broached by their friends.

The good guessers believe that the Government will defer its request for an extension until the dying moments of the session. If their request is refused they will shiver on the brink all summer and go to the country in September. The present extension is good until October 1st. The session will probably last to the middle of June. This will give the Government about three months to prepare for death. All too short a time, considering the sins it has on its head.

Another matter from which the Government expects to acquire merit is the decision to grant three months' pay and allowances to all soldiers honorably discharged. Considering what the soldier has done for Canada, this is a stingy bonus. It will amount perhaps to one hundred and fifty dollars per soldier. Many a profiteer has got away with his millions. Colonel John Wesley Allison, Sir Sam's friend, could afford to give his stenographer $105,000 for a present.

Considering interest centres around the bill for the nationalization and consolidation of the Grand Trunk, the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Canadian Northern, the Intercolonial and the National Transcontinental. It is hoped that the debate will rip the railway question wide open. Rumour has it that one of the railways is not as keen on being nationalised as the others. The C.P.R., too, will take a certain contingent interest in the discussion.

Belgian Nation's Life Hangs On One Thread

Relief Must be Continued at all Costs, writes U. S. Legation Secretary for it is the one hope held on existence for the Belgians.

MONTREAL, April 26.—The Belgian Relief Commission's branch in New York has forwarded to the Belgian Relief Committee in Montreal a copy of a letter just received from Christian A. Herter, who is practically "the last man out of Belgium," in which he says the life of the Belgian nation hangs on a thread, and that thread is the relief carried out under the direction of the Belgian Relief Commission. Mr. Herter was attached to the United States Legation in Berlin, in the early part of the war, and at the time when diplomatic relations were broken off with Germany he was secretary of the American Legation in Brussels.

He states that there were thrilling scenes in Brussels on the day that America broke off diplomatic relations with Germany, and the one thought that seemed to be uppermost in all minds—Belgian, American, and German—was "What is to become of the Belgian Relief Commission." Nothing else seemed to matter but the great vital question of feeding the seven imillion people in Belgium and the additional three million French people in the occupied portion of France.

"The members of the Commission itself," continues Mr. Herter, "showed a beautiful spirit. There was not a man who was not willing to stick to his post regardless of discomfort and danger, and at the same time there was no thought of self, provided the work of keeping a nation alive could continue. Those men realised what a discontinuance of relief meant, and each was doing his utmost to keep the noble work going, regardless of cost. At this moment the need of feeding Belgium is more important than at any time except in the first few months of the war. As you know, Germany is absolutely incapable of feeding ten million extra mouths, even if she so desired. There is but one alternative, if the service of the Belgian Relief Commission should cease—starvation."

It has been arranged that several Americans shall remain in Belgium for a month or two to instruct the new Dutch Comissioners in their work. Meanwhile the work is going on smoothly and the Dutchmen are taking hold splendidly. There is only one drawback — the need of more money. Feeding seven million people is an enormous task, and receipts are away behind the necessary expenditures. The lives of Belgians depends on individual generosity in Canada and elsewhere. Send along a subscription for this noble work to the Belgian Relief Committee, 50 St. Peter Street, Montreal, or to any local committee.

U. S. Flag Carried With Union Jack by Forestry Units at Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, April 26.—An historic incident was observed as the forestry units marched along Main street to entrain for the east. Held high above the heads of the men was the Union Jack, alongside it the Stars and Stripes. It is believed they are the first Canadian troops on their way to the battle front to have carried the United States flag with the British ensign.

Mongolia Sinks Sub. With 1,000 Yd. Shot

Fires First Gun in War on Behalf of the United States

OIL SEEN ON WATER

Periscope is Battered and Shell Does Not Ricochet, a Sure Sign.

LONDON, April 26.—Captain Rice, of the American steamship Mongolia, which has arrived at a Brititah port, told the Associated Press that the Mongolia had fired the first gun of the war for the United States and sunk a German submarine

The submarine, Captain Rice said, was about to attack the liner, in British waters on April 19. He declared there was absolutely no doubt that the U-boat was hit, and that there was every reason to believe it was destroyed.

Clean Hit at 1,000 Yards.

The naval gunners on board made a clean hit at 1,000 yards. The periscope was seen to appear battered even more pertinent a fact as regards the ultimate fate of the submarine was that the shell disappeared immediately after the hit was made. The captain stated that a shell always ricochets in the water and can be seen again unless it finds the mark. Oil also was seen on the water after the submarine disappeared.

The Mongolia was going at full speed and was a long distance away when the spray and foam subsided, but from the bridge the officers observed the spot through their glasses, and they are confident the submarine was sunk.

New York, April 26.—The steamship Mongolia, a vessel of 13,638 tons, owned by the International Mercantile Marine Company, left an American port for England on April 7, on her second trip since Germany's submarine declaration of Febraury 1.

COUNTRY FACES TWINE SHORTAGE

BRANTFORD, April 27.—A shortage of binder twine faces the continent. The supply of shipping to transport hemp from Manilla is small and German ships will be utilized. This, however, will not do away with the difficulty of getting shipments east owing to the railway car shortage. The Brantford Cordage Co. stocks are getting very low. It has 140 carloads of hemp at Pacific points which it cannot bring east owing to the railway embargoes. If the trouble continues the West will be seriously affected.

TO HELP FOOD PRODUCTION

A Great War Necessity—Everybody Should Help Speed Up—What the Shoe and Leather Trades Can Do To Help—A Serious Situation

(From the Shoe and Leather Journal)

To most city and town people the agitation about the scarcity of farm labour and the excitement about a food crisis is mere newspaper talk, but to those closer in touch with agricultural conditions the famine scare is no bogey. This year is going to witness a serious situation in the production of all kinds of farm produce.

There are farmers who are unable through the impossibility of securing adequate help to put in certain kinds of crops at all, and most of them are putting in as little as they can of important food products.

The depletion of the country's supply of farm labour through the war is serious enough, although perhaps not sufficient to bring about a serious impasse. But wages for ordinary unskilled help in the cities and towns where munitions are being made have risen to such an extent that it is impossible to keep men on the farm. When they can get thirty to forty cents an hour for comparatively easy work they naturally turn their backs upon the more strenuous kinds.

There must be some way of helping the farmer out or we shall face the inevitable aftermath of war, if we do not seriously hinder the results of the war by putting the men who fight for us on half allowance of food. In this greatest of all wars science has eliminated the usual concomitant of pestilence, it remains to be seen whether scientific management of agricultural production shall obviate the twin evil of famine.

The work of the "National Resources Committee" should be backed up by all who wish righteousness and truth to prevail in this great conflict. There are men who cannot take their places on the firing line who ought to do their part in providing those who fight with the necessaries of life. There are few men, young or old, who cannot give a portion of their time to this serious matter of food production without even interfering with their ordinary work. The Toronto Board of Trade has inaugurated a scheme by which the usual vacation of office and warehouse employees will be extended a week without pay, so that those who desire may offer their services to farmers needing help. The plan calls for the payment of the same wages by the farmer as the soldiers receive on active service, namely, a dollar and ten cents a day and board. Rightly handled this scheme ought to afford a measure of relief, although it will no doubt be attended with some necessary friction.

During the two months of summer when there is very little business doing in retail stores, throughout the country, and when the pressure is at its greatest upon the farms, no doubt a good many clerks as well as proprietors could be well spared from the stores to take a hand in the harvesting of the crops. It should be put up to them in the strongest possible manner that this help is as much a matter of duty to the country as taking up a gun and crossing to France.

We would go a step further and make the suggestion that stores in rural parts might close for certain days during the week to permit employees or proprietors, with or without experience in field work, to take hold of this pressing matter of getting everything possible out of the land. It would be no doubt appreciated fully by farmers, who would not only reserve their trade for such stores during the days set apart for business during the summer, but co-operate later by regular patronage.

We have now quite generally the Wednesday half holiday, why not make one or even two days a week this summer "Farm Day," when "all hands" could turn out to gather and house the crops. No doubt the shoe trade would join in a movement of this kind.—Shoe and Leather Journal.

The Great Need For Rich Red Blood

To be perfectly healthy the human body requires a constant supply of new rich blood. Nearly all the ills from which people suffer arise from one cause—poverty of the blood. If the blood is rich and strong it absorbs nourishment from the food which passes into the stomach and distributes that nourishment to the brain, nerves, muscles and every part of the body. When the blood is weak and poor in quality it cannot do its natural work of feeding brain and body—hence weakness and disease.

Headaches and backaches, loss of appetite, poor digestion, nervous irritability, pimples and unsightly blotches on the skin all indicate that the blood has become impure, that it is not doing its appointed work, and that your condition if not remedied will grow worse and worse. To bring about a perfectly healthy condition no medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Their one mission is to make new, rich red blood, which reaches every part of the body bringing with it new health and increasing vitality. Thousands testify to the truth of this statement, many of whom may be found in your own neighbourhood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may be had from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

STEAMERS RUN BLOCKADE.

20 Arrive in American Ports, Including Four of Largest Afloat.

NEW YORK, April 25.— The Associated Press says twenty steamships runners of the German submarine blockade, arrived at this port to-day and thus made available about sixty thousand tons of space for cargo to Europe. Four of these vessels are among the largest merchantmen afloat. The 32,120-ton passenger ship, built for the Holland-American Line in England, and [illegible] by the British Government in 1914 for war purposes, arrived under a White Star Line name.

SIX SONS ENLIST; TWO OTHERS TO DO SO.

HOUSTON, Texas. — Six of the eight sons of Mrs. Della Tate are serving their country now, and the two others will enlist as soon as they can make provision for their wives.

Mrs. Tate herself announced these facts at the navy recruiting station as William F. Tate signed up for the navy. The services of the Tates are shared equally by the army and the navy.

The Last Chance

In his last address on the second coming of Christ and the succeeding events on the earth, Evangelist Harper gave a solemn warning to all present last night in Gospel Hall to prepare to meet God.

Taking his text from Rev. XX, the speaker spoke of the millennnial reign of Christ over the earth. Said he, "'Twill be a great day when the curse will be removed and all nature will share with redeemed humanity the beneficient reign of the Lord Jesus." He then spoke about the loosing of Satan from his prison, where he is to be bound during this millennium and the revolt he will lead against Christ and the Saints, resulting in Satan's defeat and doom.

Following this the great White Throne judgment was described, where all the wicked dead are judged and from which they descend to their eternal doom even the lake of fire.

Quoting Verse 15 of Rev. XX, and Jno. III:16, the speaker cried: "In which whosoever are you—the whosoever of salvation or the whosoever of condemnation?"

But two more nights remain of this special series of meetings. All should avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing this young evangelist tell forth the story of the Cross.

KEEPING AID FROM BANDITS.

MEXICO CITY, April 24.—Practically all of the peaceful inhabitants of the country districts of Morelos have been transferred to other states and given new locations in the state of Mexico, the Federal district and Puebla. By this plan General Pablo Gonzales, commanding in Morelos, has prevented the Morelos bandits from receiving or taking aid from the country people. Work is being provided for the refugees.

OSGOODE HALL DECISION.

Before the Honourable the Chief Justice of the Exchequer.

Ferguson vs. Ferguson.

Order made on application of defendant for sale of the plaintiff's lands for satisfaction of arrears of alimony and costs, reference to Local Master at Peterborough, C. W. Kerr for the defendant, no one appearing for the plaintiff.

Judges' Chambers.

Before Middleton, J.

Re Canadian Peat Co.—P. E. F. Smily, for a creditor, moved for leave to appeal from order of Local Master at Peterborough. F. D. Kerr (Peterborough) for purchaser, J. Wearing (Peterborough) for liquidator.

Judgment: The creditors' claim is $62.70 out of some $7,000, so that his share, if he succeeded and his success brought about the increased price, would be a very small sum. Sentiment and not the money in question prompts this motion. . . . When the right to prolong litigation is lost and an indulgence is asked, the applicant must show, among other things, some substantial question having an appearance of merit. When this is not shown, then those who have slumbered upon their rights until some "statute of repose" has run waken too late. Motion dismissed, with costs fixed at $25 to each respondent.

NO SUNDAY GOLF.

STRATFORD, April 26. — By a vote of 57 to 53, the shareholders of the Stratford Country Club, Limited, voted to defer consideration of Sunday golf until the war has been won by the allies, defeating a resolution to have the ban against playing on the Sabbath lifted.

A POETIC ARGUMENT FROM THE FIRING LINE

Signaller Palmer L. Wiley, of Peterborough who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion and is now in France sends the following verses home to his father. Evidently some of the Signallers had an argument over their respective home towns and here is the result:

OUR ARGUMENT

LAMB.—
I come from Galt, said Lambden;
the fairest o fthe fair.
You'll find no other city
That with it can compare.
Its streets are clean, and stately
Its many buildings rise.
Its citizens are healthy and wealthy too, and wise.

HASTIE.—
Oh, shucks, said Corp. Hastie
My friend you're full of prunes,
I visited your city, and found it filled with coons,
Its streets took more like cow-trails
As wide as cow-trails too,
'Tis just the width you'd look for if visiting Peru.

If you would see a city,
a city worth a name?
Come with me to Prince Albert a town of world-wide fame,
It sprang from a mere nothing, until to-day it stands
The finest city of the west the pride of many lands.

LAMB.—
'Oh, do shut up, said Lambden
dry up, for goodness sakes,
The very name 'Prince Albert' gives anyone the shakes.
Why should you slam Prince Albert
now that poor man is dead?
It ought to be, as it was meant,
a cemetery instead.

HEWITT.—
Each night I lay sleeping and visions come to me,
I see the fair St. Catharines
'tis there I long to be,
Oh, city of the blessed saint your name my bosom thrills.

WILSON.—
'St. Catharines' you poor mut;
(Said Wilson in reply
As Hewitt wandered in his mind)
I'd hate my dog to die
In such a rotten place as that
The dumpshole of the East,
A town that never was or will be, fit for man or beast.

'St. Thomas' lead me to it (Full oft' in days gone past
Have I exhaled its splendor)
Long may its beauty last.
Symetric, Spacious, Pompous,
Nestling amongst the green,
The garden of the country
The grandest ever seen.

POULTON.—
Then what about Toronto?
Could anyone compare
Your messy little pot-holes with that grand city, where The finest architecture on every hand appears;
You couldn't match Toronto
In twice 200 years.

CRUMP.—
In twice 200 minutes or less, I guess you mean,
Its evident, you silly mutts
you've not to Oshawa been.
To Oshawa, where street lamps shine
and metal roofs abound;
No smarter city for its size
In this broad land is found

WILEY.—
'Tis left for me to say it,
You've missed it, one and all.
The buildings are not pretty nor are they big and tall—
But Peterborough truly a charm bears, all its own;
I'd like to be at home to-night and hear the gramophone.

TWILLY.—
Oh, children cease your chatter
'tis clear you have not seen (Or read of, for that matter of all choice spots, the Queen.
Do not another moment lose
Get wise to Swan River (Man.)
Where all nature sings,
One lists, and then on joyful wing
With eyes turned heavenward and heart attuned like birds of paradise, through fields Elysian——BANG.

AN OLD STORY.

This is not the first time a drive has been made upon the British merchant marine. In the war of the Spanish succession, at the beginning of the eighteenth century, according to a historical summary at Paris England lost 1,300 vessels. In the Seven Years War, in the period between 1756 and 1760, she lost 2,500 ships, and during the Revolution, when the French Government concentrated all its naval efforts on attacking commerce, the French seized 2,400 British ships out of 16,700; but by 1800 the British merchant marine had risen to 17,900 ships.—New Bedford Mercury.

GALSWORTHY SEES DEMOCRACY VICTOR

Voices "Thankfulness That We Are Now Allies in Deed as Well as Thought."

SENDS GREETING TO LODGE

Hopes for True Comradeship Between England and America —Despots' Doom Sealed.

John Galsworthy has addressed the following open letter to Senator Lodge through The New York Times:

My Dear Senator Lodge:

The great news from America moves me to this slight and inadequate expression of heartfelt thankfulness that we are now allies in deed as well as thought. The coming in of America and the Russian revolution, taken together, give one for the first time a feeling of reality and hope—not so much as to the material issue of the war, though it must greatly hasten victory, but of the achievement of great and lasting benefit for the world out of all this tragedy.

In the early days of the struggle I thought "if only despotisms go down in the wreckage of this war, its horrors will not have been quite in vain," and now for the first time one is able to believe that they will one and all go down, and democratic Europe be born. At last one is able to see some real chance for a league of democracies that shall seek peace and pursue it. That great saying, "The world must be made safe for democracy," should now be the motto for us all, with its corollary that only in a world safe for democracy can peace be even reasonably secured.

We owe to you and to Russia a renewed sense and coherence in our cause. The idealism which was and is implicit in that cause was oozing out under the bitter pressure of this endless struggle. Some of us were beginning to fear that in the end democracy would be forced to the continued use of autocratic militarism, even after the victory had been won; what we, conquering in substance, should be conquered in spirit, and the world set definitely spinning backward. That fear is at an end; the relief is intense. To you and to the Russian revolution we owe that relief, in the certainty that the military caste of Germany is doomed.

No Hatred for the German People.

Many of ourselves and a still greater number of Germans, especially of German writing men, contemptuously deny that there should be any dissociation of the German people from the German military caste. None the less your President was right in making that distinction. Here is a little true story:

A French woman of the invaded countries is sleeping in a room with her two young daughters when the Germans enter their village. An officer knocks and demands lodging for thirty-five men. She shows him other rooms, stables—in fact, plenty of accommodation.

"That won't do," and he ordered seven men to sleep in the same room with the mother and the girls, but behind his back his men are shrugging their shoulders, as if saying: "This is quite unnecessary," and when he is gone they leave the room of their own accord and go to the stables.

The woman who was telling my informant this story added:

"It is not the men who are bad. The men are like ours—the same everywhere. It is the officers, their chiefs—or rather, it is their law."

It has been this discovery from the first days of the war, that their chiefs and their "law" are noxious in the modern world, that has turned so many of us humanitarians and peace lovers, who had not a speck of original ill-will to Germany, into believers that this "law"—this philosophy of death—must go down if the life of nations is to be again worth living.

You stand with us now in the great task of seeing that it perishes. And out of our new-found brotherhood in arms—strange that is the first time America and England have fought side by side in a big struggle — may not a wider friendliness be born between our countries?

Why Cousins Are Not More Friendly

I know that many of us and many of you have for each other's country the friendliest feelings; but a Winter's sojourn in France has shown me more clearly than ever before why there is not, as a rule, much love between you Americans and ourselves. We English lack the quickness and charm which makes of the French the people with whom all others can get on, or, at all events, put up with. We English have many good qualities, but, alas, our defects to outer eyes outweigh them. We are, I fear, rather an ungracious lot, and the more there is to a man—the more backbone he has, the more strongly this particular characteristic of ungraciousness comes out. Then, too, we are bone-competitive—and so are you. Two of that kidney never did agree too well.

All the same, Britain and America, beneath all difference and disgruntlement, do really want much the same thing for the world. Both want liberty and life by the light of individual self-respect rather than by rules framed and hanging. Both want humanity of conduct, fair play, and peace. And wanting these things, it will be a million pities if the little present rubs and ranklings of history and your resentment of our "side," (which is generally mere gaucherie) of our stolidity, and cocksureness, and our dislike of your superior talkativeness and hustle and your cocksureness, are to stop the growth of that true and deep comradeship which ought to lie between our nations.

After all, nations are more than half made up of climate and geographical circumstances. What you are impatient of in us, what we are inclined to quiz in you, it little more than the result of our respective damp and drought and other conditions, over which we have no control. If we persist in gazing at the shadows of our mutual discontents, what priceless substance we shall be missing! Failing a real understanding and friendship between us, the world will lose a great equilibristic force and be ever on the brink of trouble. The health and happiness, not only of our two nations, but of all others, will depend more and more as years go by on the union of our ideals, our feelings, and our wills.

Back of all else is a certain majestic commonsense in you Americans, and something not very dissimilar in ourselves. We may go on saying in an airy way that we can't stand each other, but I trust and believe we shall find it ever harder to do without each other, ever easier to see that we are made for friendship in this imperfect world.

Deprecates the English Manner.

Though I am sure that any edginess between us is far more an affair of manner than of anything else, that is not to suggest that our mutual intolerance is a trivial matter. On the contrary, I rather think that manner is the most potent of all causes for dislike, and I heartily wish we English could improve ours, for I think we are most to blame. Nations so rarely have a chance to dive below manner, and find out what lies beneath. The French have dived since the war began, and have found out they can tolerate us a little. Perhaps that chance has now arisen for America and England, and we are destined in the coming months to see each other as we really are—the Lord preserve us from finding out that we are worst than we thought.

At all events, we both have a sense of humour. Let us seek in that the ointment for our sore places. There is no need to take the outward and visible sign of the Englishman too seriously. I was told in France of one of your pro-ally compatriots who, watching some English officers coming down the steps of a certain famous building not long ago, exclaimed: "I can't 'see' those fellows!" I feel I know exactly what he meant; but under all that he couldn't "see" there is a fundamental something that most of you Americans would put out a hand to.

I hope we may soon be in some tight places side by side; then we shall know, perhaps, that we might have smiled at each other's follies instead of being sore. Where two races have grit and humanity and humour they are brothers under the skin, and that this shall be made plain before the world is a year old I devoutly trust, and so, I hope and think, my dear Senator, do you.

At any rate, the ardent thoughts and good will of the Englishman who writes these words go out to you and to your great country at this hour, which for you all must be fraught with such tumultuous, strange feelings—fraught, too, with the future welfare of the whole world. May the stars be bright above America!

I am, my dear Senator, most cordially yours,

JOHN GALSWORTHY.

New York Enthusiastic Over "The Whip"

This Wonderful Photo Play to Be Seen Here on Friday and Saturday, May 4th-5th

When "The Whip" was first shown privately in New York City to a little group of leading film men, the verdict was unanimous that here was a wonderful picture.

"It has everything that a motion picture should have," said one man, "and none of the things that a motion picture should not have. It has snap, dash, fire, romance, youth, thrills, excitement, big scenes and splendid actors. It is staged on a lavish scale. It has been superbly directed and the photography is perfect. This is a wonderful production."

This opinion is being echoed by the hundreds of thousands of people in all parts of the country who are seeing this remarkable production. They are being immensely entertained by the consistently, intense and wholly pleasing story; they are being thrilled by the exciting train wreck and the automobile wreck and the exciting horse race at Saratoga, and they are leaving the theatres after seeing "The Whip," declaring that it is the biggest motion picture in the world.

The people of this city will have the opportunity of adding their chorus of approval to the general verdict of all people who like a good entertainment for "The Whip" is coming here. This supreme offering of filmdom will be the attraction at the Grand Theatre on Friday and Saturday, May 4th and 5th.

SOME CHEESE FACTORIES HAVE NOT OPENED YET

Held up by the Difficulty of Securing Certain Supplies for the work

Reports fro mthe cheese factories indicate that the makers are having some difficulty in securing supplies, and in consequence some of the factories have been prevented from commencing operations for a few days. Instead of the rennet that was formerly imported from the Netherlands and which was obtained from the stomachs of calves, the cheesemakers are using "curdelac," a new material with similar effect. It is obtained from the stomachs of pigs.

Even though skirts are mostly hanging straight there is always fullness. Marine blue and navy blue will be combined with beige, stone and fawn color.

RAILWAYS TO ASK GENERAL RATE INCREASE

The Canadian railways are about to make application to the Board of Railway Commissioners for a general increase in freight rates. The increase asked for will be, it is understood, fifteen per cent, while a fifteen per cent. increase in passenger fares will also be requested.

This action has been rendered necessary by the staggering additions to operating expenses which the railways are facing. Every commodity used by the roads has shown large price increases, labour costs have reached a new high record and equipment is costing twice as much as in former years.

Fuel coal will cost the Canadian railroads several million dollars more this year than in 1916. The consumption of coal by the Canadian roads is approximately 25,000 tons a day, or more than nine million tons a year. For this coal the railways will have to pay, during the next twelve months, a much higher price than at any time in their history.

The railway coal contracts with the mines run from April to April, and new agreements just entered into call for an increase in price of about one hundred per cent.

In addition to the high purchase price, the Canadian railways must pay to the Dominion Government a duty of fifty-three cents per ton on locomotive fuel entering Canada, and a seven and a half per cent. sur-tax. This latter tax was part of the War Revenue Act of 1915, and is based on the value of the coal. With the doubling up in the price of coal, this sur-tax will automatically increase and prove a heavy additional burden.

It is estimated that the increased rates proposed on freight and the increased passenger fares will be insufficient to meet even the increase in fuel costs which the railways must pay.

The railroads also use millions of dollars worth of other products, the prices of which are steadily mounting. The price of locomotives has increased ninety per cent.; passenger cars, fifty per cent.; freight cars, fifty per cent., and rails ten dollars a ton.

Since the beginning of the war, the railway pay rolls have shown marked advances. There has been a general increase in the wage scale and large expenditures on additional labour have been necessary to maintain efficiency, with many thousands of skilled employees enlisting, and others engaging in commercial pursuits where opportunities are considered larger and more profitable as a result of the great activity and prosperous conditions existing in the business world.

Evidence will be presented to the Railway Commission to prove beyond doubt that the railroads cannot meet the pressure on their revenues resulting from these greater costs. Canadian railroad officials state that a reasonable increase in freight rates would not in any way burden the community but in reality prove a national economy in that it will assist them to give the efficient service which the nation's business demands, and which would not otherwise be possible.

The railways take the grounds that they are the only concerns in the industrial world that are at present selling their product at the old rates and at the same time paying more for everything they buy than they ever did before. The new and unexampled conditions, particularly in regard to price of fuel, existing in 1917, make the wiping out of the favourable revenue showings made last year a certainty if increased rates are not promptly granted, and a refusal of such an increase would, the railway executives state, cripple the railways.

The railways of the United States are also asking general rate increases, and expect to place new tariffs in effect from June 1st, next, with the permission of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The conditions of railway operation on both sides of the international boundary line are similar except that the Canadian lines must meet the heavy duty charges on the large quantities of fuel and many other classes of supplies used.

GOVERNMENT'S ORDER IN COUNCIL BLOCKS COST OF LIVING PROBE

City Attorney Reports to Montreal Board of Control That the Federal Government's Action in Adopting Order-in-Council to Probe High Cost of Living Annulled the Criminal Code on Price-Boosting and Took Initiative in All Actions Out of Hands of Ordinary Consumer

MONTREAL, April 27.—That instead of helping the consumer the recent order in council of the Minister of Labour ostensibly giving municipalities the power to investigate and deal with the high cost of living within their precincts really assists the traders to the disadvantage of the purchaser is the substance of a nine page report on the cost of living which was submitted to the Board of Control yesterday by the chief attorney, Mr. Charles Laurendeau, K. C. The lengthy report, which was prepared by Mr. Paul Emile Lamarche, K.C., goes very fully into all the correspondence that has passed between the City Hall and the Minister of Labour relative to the cost of living during the past few months and not one of the least interesting of the opinions of the city legal advisers as set forth in the report is that under the cost of living order in council it is no crime for a storekeeper to demand exorbitant prices for his goods.

When the question of the high cost of living was taken up at Ottawa, the report says, the passing of the order in council annulled section 498 of the Criminal Code which gave the ordinary consumer the privilege of taking action against dealers charging exorbitant prices for food or other commodities.

Minister Only Can Act.

Furthermore as a result of the passing of the order in council at the instance of the Minister of Labour the law of the consumer was complicated in such a fashion that only the Minister of Labour could take action in regard to high food prices. Continuing the report points out that the city of Montreal under the term of the order in council could not take action against traders who increased their prices since proof which could be obtained by the officer of the labour department was established that there was a conspiracy in restraint of trade or that the trader against whom action was proposed had in his warehouses more goods than the normal condition of his books showed that he could carry.

All possibility of an individual taking action against a food price booster disappeared with the passing of the order-in-council which, the city attorney's report proceeds to point out gives to the Minister of Labor and to the Minister of Labor only the power to make an investigation of such a character than proof of conspiracy or of overstocking could be established.

Blames Board Too.

The Board of Control is found to blame in a minor detail for the lack of action taken in connection with the cost of living. This neglect is established in the commencement of the attorney's report, where it is pointed out that the Board of Control did not as advised by the Minister of Labour ask the City Council to adopt a resolution before sending complaints regarding local high food prices to Ottawa. In the second of the excuses given by the Minister of Labour for failing to take action the city attorneys point out that if the Minister could not as he stated, proceed with an investigation because he did not have certain information collected by the city's high cost of living committee a line to the city clerk would have brought him the information desired within twenty-four hours.

In the third point raised by the Minister regarding the information gathered on local food prices the city attorney points out that municipalities were only allowed by the order-in-council to ask traders four questions. The answers to these questions could not in any way establish a misdemeanour and again the lawyers report it is only the Minister of Labour who can now deal with the food situation.

It is expected that the first action of the Board of Control in connection with the report will be to forward the document to the City Council for the information of that body, generally and to reply particularly to several questions raised by members of the Council regarding the cost of living.

Mayor Martin will bing the report before the House of Commons.

Suggests That America Send 300,000 Workmen To Make Victory Certain

If Behind Every Division or Army Corps There Were a Regiment of Well Equipped Workmen in Readiness, New Roads, Sites for Batteries and Ammunition Depots Would Spring Up Almost Instantaneously—Could Take the Enemy By Surprise.

A WAR OF MANOEUVRES

PARIS, April 27.—"Three hundred thousand American workmen on the French front would give us victory," declares a military writer in L'Intransigeant. "If the United States proceeded forthwith to dispatch several hundred thousand troops to the firing line, the result would not be in proportion to the sacrifice.

"The new feature of the present war is the preparation of the battleground, which formerly was effected in time of peace. Strategic railways, fortifications, etc., used to be the pivots around which military events revolved when war was declared; but to-day this is different. Military works are destroyed when armies retreat. When they advance it is necessary to construct others as quickly as possible. As soon as the troops halt, digging and the erection of obstacles begin. When an attack is decided upon, the ground must again be prepared, so as to enable the simultaneous use of the greatest amount of material possible. Lack of sufficient organisation entails the failure of the projected stroke. Except for certain specialists, combatants to-day must organize the ground themselves, and necessarily the output of their work is relatively restricted.

"If behind every division of army corps there were a regiment of well-equipped, resolute workmen in readiness, new roads, new railways, sites for batteries, depots for ammunition, food, and so forth would spring up almost simultaneously, and the whole front would be organised offensively in a remarkably short time. Then we would take the enemy by surprise. Then we would carry on a war of manoeuvres by means of interior lines, and the Germans would be obliged to disperse their reserves, not knowing on what points of their front the blow would fall.

"What is needed is an army of workmen of 300 battalions, and this army the United States could give us at the beginning of this Summer. Once this force had had a taste of trench and camp conditions and had learned the mechanism of a campaign, besides having been under fire, it could be sent to instruction camps to complete its military education, so as to turn the workmen into fighting units, which would be accomplished rapidly after the practical experience already gained. Meanwhile, a second army of American workmen would take their places. That day the Boches would not escape us."

Skill of British Women Workers Truly Amazing

LONDON, April 26.—Those who still cling to the idea that the women munition worker is a mere attendant upon a machine, engaged in repitition work and incapable of taking the place of the skilled artisan, are being given a tangible proof that there are many thousands of woman mechanics in this country, doing delicate and difficult work that, in times of peace, only the exceptional expert was thought capable of doing. This proof is being furnished by an exhibition that the Minister of Munitions is giving.

Engineers agree that the making of a rotary aircraft engine is about as severe a test as exists of skilled artisanship. Such engines are being produced to-day by women. Steel cylinders are exhibited that are machined down to one-thousandth of an inch and with an accuracy of balance that is reckoned to the fraction of a gramme. A pump used in a rotary aircraft engine is shown that is a miracle of delicate construction, and is made entirely by women. It is a war invention and has never been made by man labour. The degree of accuracy here is .0004 of an inch, and a notice attached to the exhibit adds that "in every case the operator sets and grinds her own tools."

Even greater accuracy is achieved in the various gauges that women workers are making. There is on display one cylinder gauge for a sixty-pound shell. This gauge had been ground to a limit of three ten-thousandth of an inch. And this is but one exhibit in a whole section devoted to idea, gauges, and tool cutters of every kind. A manufacturer who was attending the exhibit was heard to exclaim:

"I never thought I should live to see twist drills made by women."

There are few cases of repetition work, most of the exhibits being of pure handicraft, very often of a kind that, before the war, England had to look for abroad. A striking example is the optical section. As far as lense making was a British industry before the war, it virtually was a monopoly of a few French and German workmen imported especially into this country. Now English women are turning out lenses and prisms of an angular accuracy of, three seconds or less that are said to challenge the best work of France or Germany before the war.

Not only a few exceptional women have attained this skill, but there is an army of them engaged in all these kinds of expert work and earning high wages. And the astonishing thing about it is that it has all come about since 1915. These tens of thousands of skilled women artisans have had an apprenticeship of months where men have had years.

SPIKE ANCIENT WHITE HOUSE CANNON

WASHINGTON—"They've spiked the guns in the vicinity of the White House."

This bit of information set Washington agog the other day.

Lafayette Square, directly across Pennsylvania avenue from the White House, contains an equestrian statue of President Jackson. At the base of the statue are four cannons of the Civil War type. They have been there for years, having grown green from the weather.

The cannons are mounted on old time 2-wheel carriages, and can be easily moved. This fact caused Colonel Harts, the President's military aid, who is also superintendent of the Capital's parks, to take steps to see that the cannon in Lafayette Park were put out of business.

"It would be an easy thing for some person to load up one of those old timers with black powder and a ball, point it toward the White House and touch it off," declared an army officer who happened to be passing through the park while the guns were being spiked. "Considerable damage could be done with one of the four."

The guns have been spiked by loading the muzzles with wood and then sealing them over with lead. There are also numerous guns used for decorative purposes about the base of the State, War and Navy buildings. Most of these guns, which were captured from the Spanish in the war of 1898, are already spiked. Those that are not will be shortly, it is understood.

Nowhere is a woman's character more clearly shown or her talents given more scope for cultivation than in home making, and in no sphere is the true woman more content and happy than in housekeeping. Home is indeed the "dearest place" on earth when rightly made, and the memory of which remains with us until death, and will do more to protect and restrain its inmates than the grandest and most eloquent sermons from the most gifted ministers and orators. In short, home is the kindergarten of all Christian work and influence, the starting point of all beautiful thoughts and deeds.

One to-day is worth an eternity of yesterdays.

Two Otonabee Boys Killed

PTE. ORDE KILLED.

Mr. Richard E. Orde, R. R. No. 8, Otonabee, received the tragic news yesterday, that his son, Pte. Frederick Henry Orde, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, was killed in action on April 9th. Pte. Orde was born in Otonabee twenty-three years ago and had lived all his life there. He enlisted in the 93rd in the spring of last year and after going overseas with that unit was transferred to another Canadian battalion. It is a tragic coincidence that out of four Zion, Otonabee boys who enlisted in the 93rd Battalion, three, Pte. Orde, Hawkins and McGregor, were killed in the same battle. The fourth, Pte. Harry Pickle, has not yet appeared in the casualty list.

PTE. HAWKINS KILLED.

Another well known Peterborough boy, Pte. Bruce Hawkins, son of Mr. John Hawkins, of Otonabee, has been killed in action, the sad news arriving yesterday. Pte. Hawkins was born in Peterborough and had lived practically all his life here, his father removing a few years ago to Otonabee township. Pte. Hawkins was well known to baseball fans as a southpaw pitcher, having performed in the box for a number of local teams. He was the twirler of the 93rd Battalion team after joining the Peterborough County Battalion. Pte. Hawkins was married shortly before the 93rd left Peterborough. He is the second son of Mr. Hawkins to give his life for the Empire, his brother, Pte. Roy Hawkins of the 21st Battalion, having been killed last year.

Chints coverings to protect the limousine cushions from summer dust are already appearing. The chints having a light ground, with large flowered patterns, is in favour with a number of period patterns.

Public Opinion

BY-PRODUCT PAINTS.

(Wall Street Journal.)

Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washington uses 20 to 25 miles of 22-inch cloth a day in wiping surplus ink from plates used in engraving stamps and bills. A cloth can be used only once. A company in Relce, Va., buys these rags, and from them, by a patent process, recovers 3,500,000 pounds of ink a year. This ink is in four basic colours of black, green, red and orange, which have all passed the severe test of the Bureau of Engraving for purity and permanency of colour.

From these four basic colours this company makes practically all shades of paste and by addition of linseed oil and volatile driers, ready-mixed paints as well. The company is the sole owner of the patented process by which the colour products are recovered and claims to be able to produce paint colours at lower prices than any other manufacturer.

THE ROMANCE OF THE DESERT CAMPAIGN.

(Toronto Globe).

The Romance of the Desert Campaign in the Near East has yet to be written. How the British pushed their way from Suez toward Beersheba, laying the steel rails as they went, has been told in official dispatches. Thousands of Egyptian natives were organized as a labour corps under British officers. Then east from the Suez Canal, at the rate of a mile a day, the steel rails were projected, while alongside was built a macadamized road capable of bearing the heaviest military transport waggons. Vast numbers of camels with twelve gallon tanks on their backs carried the water, the water transport for a single brigade being a mile long. Over the desert this wonderful army of railroad builders and fighters moved, occupying Al Arish, and planting the British flag at Maghdala and Rafa. There is water in the northern part of the Sinai Peninsula, but it is salt water, which in the summer heat dries into sheets of solid salt as white as snow. The nomadic Bedouin is the native of this territory, the fruit of the date palm supplying him with food.

LIQUOR AS WASTE OF TIME.

(Chicago Tribune.)

The stock horrible example stories of the prohibitionists are confined chiefly to a recital of what booze makes men do. It makes them commit crimes, beat children, desert wives. Of course these things happen, but it is impossible to convince drinking or non-drinking men that these are inevitably consequences of booze.

The really important effect of booze is not that it makes men do dangerous things but that it prevents them from doing useful things.

A couple of bottles of beer will, for instance, divert a student from reading William James to reading Nick Carter. They will divert a business man from studying reports to drowsing over the newspaper.

What seems to be harmless wine bibbling is harmless generally in its positive effects. It does not generally send men into bad company, or insane company physically. He is rarely found actually lying in the gutter. But in his mental activity he is too often found there. He spends his time out of business hours on trash because trash requires little mental alertness. He goes to a poor movie because he has not sufficient energy to read a good book.

Booze beguiles us into wasting time. That is the chief indictment against it.

PASTOR IN DIVORCE SUIT HAS SON AGAINST HIM

The Rev. Robert James Elliott, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Revere, Mass., formerly of Havelock, Ont., testified in the East Cambridge Court in his suit for divorce. He alleges cruel treatment. His wife, who will contest the suit, had filed a cross libel charging cruel treatment and unfaithfulness, but at her counsel's request this was dismissed. Roscoe Elliott, an elder son, testified against his father, and late in the day Mrs. Elliott took the stand to refute her husband's allegations. The Elliotts were married in Havelock, Ont., June 3, 1896. Of their two children, Roscoe, 18, is a Dartmouth College student, and has enlisted in the Naval Reserve. Raymond, 16, is a High School pupil. Mr. Elliott testified that the trouble in his home started about twelve years ago, when Mrs. Elliott accused him of paying attention to other ladies.

The case is in progress.

ABOY CRAWLING ON BATTLE FIELD HALTED GUN FIRE

FRENCH AND GERMANS CHEERED AS TEUTON SOLDIER RESCUED CHILD FROM PERILOUS PLIGHT.

Edgar von Schmidt-Pauli, a Prussian cavalry officer, who is on the western front, has written for the German newspapers the following remarkable incident which he and his men witnessed recently:

"Donnerwetter — what a hellish noise! Above me shells are hurtling, and all around me is the rat-tat-tat of machine guns.

"It is just before dawn, and the fog is so thick that one can scarcely see a yard ahead. All we known is that our troops during the night stormed and captured the French village over yonder. I want to see how our left wing is situated, and therefore ride to the village where the enemy's bullets are falling as thick as hailstones during a heavy thunderstorm. The fog continues thick but it is not cold.

"I find a shelter where other cavalrymen are taking a little rest, and at once proceed to get some needed sleep myself, ordering the lieutenant to rouse me in case of necessity.

WHEN SHELL FIRE CEASED.

"Suddenly I am awakened by a peculiar, uncomfortable stillness—as is the case often where a sleeper is awakened either by a sudden noise or the cessation of noise. As I emerge from the dugout the lieutenant winks at me somewhat mischievously, and points directly in front of him. Carefully I raise my head over the top of the trench to get a view of things.

"The sun has risen and the fog has disappeared. In front of us is a meadow, and there, midway between our trenches and those of the enemy, is—God, it is impossible, it must be a delusion!—a Fata Morgana; but no—there in the middle of the field, crawling hands and knees, is a little child, a baby. It apepars to be perfectly happy and contented, and seems to be enjoying itself. Not a sound is to be heard, not a shot is fired. Every man has become dumb with amazement.

A BABE ON THE BATTLE FIELD.

"'A child has fallen from heaven!' cries one of the soldiers near me.

"Well, that is about the case for where else could that child have come from?

"Before my weary brain can summon up any convincing reasons how that child got out there — whether some poor mother lost it in the panic due to the battle of the night before—a German soldier jumps out of the trench and runs to where the child is crawling about. Absolute stillness prevails in the trenches, and only to our right, from which this extraordinary sight is hidden by a clump of trees, is the sound of gun fire heard.

ALL EYES ARE ON THE CHILD.

"And this spot, which all through the night has been a veritable inferno of shot and shell, is now like some peaceful island or a cool friendly oasis in a burning desert.

"Over there in the enemy's trenches we can see the helmets of the Frenchmen as they peer over the sides. No one is any longer thinking of the enemy or of the war or of danger. All eyes are on the tall soldier and the child which he is approaching and as he picks up that little, frightened, helpless piece of humanity, and fondly takes it in his arms, a laugh, a low friendly laugh, passed along our entire column. The laugh is infectious, and we can feel how it is going along the ranks over yonder.

CHEERS RENT THE AIR.

And suddenly—what are they going to shoot? no, on the contrary, a great wave of applause with shouts of 'Bravo!' from thousands of French throats breaks the stillness. Then, as the soldier jumps back into our trench with the child safely in his arms, our ranks, too, burst into a triumphant shout which passes all along the line.

"Even for some time after not a shot is fired. It is as if we felt ashamed of ourselves, and no one touched a gun while that child was in our midst.

"When the firing did start it was rather desultory and indifferent, and there was nothing very dangerous about it. That little child had worked a wonderful change in the hearts of both friend and foe that morning."

GREAT WORK UNKNOWN.

London Office Keeps Records of All Sorts for Centuries.

Unknown to the millions who pass through the city of London every week, a work of unparalleled magnitude at what is known as the public record office in Chancery Lane has been going on for a number of years. In this office there are twenty-five miles of shelves, all full of historical material, going back through the centuries as far as "Domesday Book."

It costs over £26,000 a year to keep up the record office, the keeper of the records being the master of the rolls. The office was established by the public records act in 1838, and the records were taken there from the Tower, the Chapter House, Westminster, the Rolls Chapel, and elsewhere. Ever since that time the office has been constantly receiving accretion from the law courts, the government departments, and from various other quarters.

All sorts of records are kept, legal, historical, geneological, statistical, and so varied are the contents of the office that antiquarian research of almost every kind can be made. There you will find the records of the Star chamber and the old wards and liveries. State papers, domestic, colonial, and foreign, formerly preserved in the state paper office in Whitehall, are also to be seen there. Usually fifty or sixty students are seen working in the record office every day, and at any time there is the fascinating thought that one of them may make some interesting discovery. — "Tit-Bits."

AGED KINGSTON WOMAN

Tells How She Recovered Her Strength

If the elderly people in Kingston could only realize what Vinol would do for them we would not be able to get enough to supply the demand. Following is a letter received from Mrs. A. E. Carson of this town. She says:—

"I am 63 years of age, and had been ailing for a long time with indigestion. I got run down, was weak, dizzy and could not sleep at night. I consulted two doctors who said I had hardening of the arteries and at my age could not expect to be strong again. My daughter would give me no peace until I tried Vinol, as it had done so much for her. I have taken five bottles and my health and strength have come back, so I am able to do all the housework for my family of four, and I am recommending Vinol to all my friends."

The reason Vinol is so beneficial to old people is because it contains the very elements needed to replace declining strength with renewed vigor, viz., beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates, glycerophosphates and a mild tonic wine.

We want to ask every elderly person and every weak, run-down or debilitated person in Peterborough to call at our store and get a bottle of Vinol, with the understanding that we will return your money if it fails to benefit. AS CHIEF OF ZULUS.

Solomon Recognized by Prime Minister of Union of South Africa.

LONDON, April 24—General Botha prime minister of the Union of South Africa, has recognized Solomon, the hereditary chief of the Zulus, as administrative head of the tribe, a step which, students here expect, will bring about peace between the warring natives in the British colony.

How Solomon was given the task is interesting. The prime minister, who is also minister of native affairs, summoned Solomon—son of the once famous Dinizulu and grandson of Cetewayo—and informed him that he had decided to appoint him to administer the Zulu tribes. General Botha told him that he was being sent back to his father's district "to maintain peace and not to make trouble. You must understand very clearly that you are not being sent to raise military kraals or impis. I want peace now and rest for the Zulu nation."

Solomon is to be directly responsible to the government for the tribe, and he was urged to promote education and do everything possible to improve its position and character.

HIS SMUGGLING TRICK.

A Mexican Trader's Way of Evading the Customs Inspectors.

There are ways of evading duty down on the Rio Grande impossible to the port of New York. The Mexican found a way. He was a merchant just on the other side of the Mexican border. He had two vases which had caught the fancy of an American customer, but they were dear, and with the duty added—not to be thought of. The customer told the Mexican so. The Mexican fell $5. But the price was still too dear. The Mexican fell again. But still there was the duty staring the customer in the face. Then suddenly, without explaining how, the Mexican guaranteed that the vases should be delivered free of duty on the other side of the Rio Grande—next morning at breakfast time.

"And," the Mexican add in a characteristic manner, "I will be there to collect."

At breakfast next morning, as the customer was eating leisurely, the Mexican appeared.

"Where are the vases?" the customer inquired.

"In the next room, senor," replied the Mexican, smiling blandly.

"And the duty?"

"There is no duty, senor."

"How in thunder did you manage it?" asked the American, amazed.

"I paid a greaser a dollar, senor. With the vases strapped to his back, he swam the Rio Grande. See, senor"—hurrying to bring in a vase from the next room and touching it gently with his finger—"they are whole, perfect."

MOTHER OF FOUR CHILDREN

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her Well and Strong.

Lincoln, Illinois.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for ten years with good results and I have four healthy children. This summer I was in a very run down condition and the very hot weather seemed more than I could stand, but I commenced taking your Compound in June and from then until September 25th, when my last baby was born, I got along much better than I had before. My baby was a girl and weighed 14 pounds at birth, and I recovered very rapidly which I am sure was due to your medicine. I am well and strong now, nurse my baby and do all my work. I had the same good results with your medicine when needed before my other children came and they are all healthy. My mother has taken your medicine with equal satisfaction. She had her last child when nearly 44 years old and feels confident she never would have carried him through without your help, as her health was very poor."—Mrs. T. F. CLOYD, 1355 North Gulick Ave, Decatur, Ill.

Expectant mothers should profit by Mrs. Cloyd's experience, and trust to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A JAPANESE MODERNIST.

Urged to Dropping of Quaint National Customs.

Mr. Saito Man, a Japanese essayist, picked up recently, in Tokio, a block-printed vernacular book, published January, 1873, entitled, "Civilisation and Enlightenment," lauding the "western" ways then newly popular in Japan, and quotes literally from it to show how marvellous has been the advance in Japanese ways in that less than half a century. The chapters include:

Why we should abandon the queue.

Why we should wear such clothes as are fit for work.

Why we should always put on hats.

Why we should put on boots.

Why we should build strong houses.

Why we should not dislike eating meat.

Why we should revere the gods.

Why we should not believe in miracles.

Why there are no ghosts in this world.

Why foxes and badgers do not bewitch human beings.

Why we should not worship every worthless man as a god.

On the matter of wearing hats, the author says:

"The peoples of various nations wear various kinds of hats on their heads. That is a good and proper custom. The only people in the world who do not wear hats are the Japanese, and we should be ashamed before the rest of mankind. But this is only a modern habit, for till two or three hundred years back the Japanese of all ranks, farmers, mechanics and tradesmen, had worn eboshi (head gear like a coronet), but later on the lower class people of various vocations were forbidden to wear eboshi, so that they might be differentiated from those of higher classes. . . . Japan is the only country whose people wear nothing to cover the nakedness of their heads. . . . . The one thing we do not understand about the foreigners wearing hats is that they take them off when they salute one another. It seems to us that they should keep their hats on their heads when they salute. Suppose you are naked and a friend enters your room, then you will surely wear clothes before greeting. However, the foreigners are a reasoning people and must have a good reason for taking their hats off when they meet one another."

In the matter of reasons for eating meat he is just as cogent. "Many people," he says, "eat meat to brag of it, though they dislike it at heart. Such people are secretly afraid of visiting temples and shrines after eating meat."—East and West.

Courtesy and Work.

When I want to find fault with my men I say nothing when I go through their departments. If I were satisfied I would praise them. My silence hurts them more than anything else in the world, and it doesn't give offense. It makes them think and work harder.

Many men fail because they do not see the importance of being kind and courteous to the men under them. Kindness to everybody always pays for itself. And, besides, it is a pleasure to be kind. I have seen men lose important positions, or their reputations—which are more important than any position—by little careless discourtesies to men whom they did not think it was worth while to be kind to.—Charles M. Schwab in American Magazine.

"TRUCK AND TRADE."

Whereas this, and because of that and inasmuch as the other, and in consideration of something else, and for divers other reasons, equally clear and comprehensible, it is ordained that what Canada most needs is much more truck and trade with the Yankees. What a queer world it is!—Journal of Commerce.

PIMPLES and BOILS

ALL OVER FACE AND BODY

When the blood becomes impure you will find that pimples and boils will break out all over the body, and although they are not dangerous trouble, they make you appear unsightly both to your friends and yourself.

Burdock Blood Bitters will cleanse the blood of all the impurities and poisons which cause the skin to break out in these eruptions.

Miss Sylvia Swanson, Theodore, Sask., writes: "I am letting you know what great value your B.B.B. has been to me. A year ago I started to grow pale and weak, the cause being bad blood. I got so many pimples and boils all over my face and body that I would not let strangers see me, and I used to avoid company. I tried many remedies but all seemed a failure. I read about how good your B.B.B. had been to thousands of people so I got a bottle and after I had finished the second one my pimples and boils had all disappeared. People thought it a miracle how well I looked.

"Your grand old remedy sure has been as good as gold and better, to me".

Burdock Blood Bitters has been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont. See that our name appears on the wrapper.

The Land of the Kurds.

Kurdistan appeals to the archaeologist. It was ruled successively by the Persians, Macedonians, Parthians, Sassanians and Romans and is exceedingly rich in antiquarian remains, most of which are still unexamined. The Kurds are a wild, pastoral, partly nomadic people, are mostly Mohammedans and are very hostile to Christians, their cruel massacre of the Armenians being only too well known. Kurdistan belongs to both the Turkish and the Persian monarchies, though chiefly to the former.—London Chronicle.

TITLES IN RUSSIA.

Where There Are Only Two Classes, Nobles and Peasants.

Contrary to the laws existing in England and Sweden, in Russia when a lady belonging to a titled family marries a Russian gentleman without a title she takes her husband's name entirely, and the only right left to her of her former title is to write on her visiting cards and official papers "Mrs. So-and-so, born Princess, Countess or Baroness So-and-so." Her children are called by their father's name. There are only a few exceptions to this rule.

In Russia no middle class or gentry are known. There are only nobles and peasants. The czar, however, grants sometimes for special merit the right to be styled a nobleman and also for the same reason the titles of count and baron and occasionally that of prince.

All those merchants who have kept their firms always flourishing for a hundred years have the right to receive the foreign title of baron. This law was made by Peter the Great over 200 years ago, but the merchants very seldom accept this title and generally decline the privilege.

In former days when the peasants were still slaves they had no family names, but were called by their father's Christian name. Peter's son was called son of Peter—in Russian Petrov; so also Smirnov—Simon's son; Ivanov—Ivan's (John) son, and so on. When slavery was abolished and the emancipation proclaimed by the Emperor Alexander II, they all kept these names. Since then many of them have received the right to belong to the class of nobles.

The Russian clergy, belonging to the class of peasants, for it very seldom happens that nobles become priests, have special family names. Their names mean always a feast day or a precious stone or something connected with the church. In former days the clergy was a class apart, and a son of a clergyman was bound to be a clergyman, and when they first entered the church they chose a name for themselves.—London Answers.

ROCK OF GIBRALTAR.

The "Key of the Mediterranean" Has Had a Stormy History.

England has been in possession of the rocky promontory of Gibraltar since 1704. From that time to this it has been a crown colony under the administration of a governor. By reason of its important strategical position it is called the "key of the Mediterranean."

Gibraltar has had a stormy history. In 711 the rock was taken by the Arab chief Tarik, who called it Jebel-al-Tarik (Hill of Tarik) and built a fortress on the promontory. Part of these ruins is still extant. In 1309 it was taken by the Castilians, only to be recaptured by the Moors in 1333. It was held by them until 1462. Following the taking and sacking of Gibraltar in 1540 by Barbarossa, extensive military works were built there by order of Charles V.

In 1704 the promonotory was captured by a combined force under Sir George Rooke and the Prince of Hesse-Darmstadt, fighting for the Archduke Charles of Austria. The moment it fell into their hands the British admiral threw off the alliance with the Austrians and took complete possession of the works.

British possession since that time has been unbroken, although it was under a Spanish siege for nearly three years and eight months, beginning in 1779. Twice the garrison was on the point of falling because of the starvation of its defenders.

Kings on the Battlefield.

From earliest times English kings have loomed large in the military history of their country. William III., at the end of the seventeenth century, was perhaps the greatest military genius that has ever occupied the English throne. The historic and noble defence of the Netherlands which occupied his life is now only threatened with comparison by King Albert's heroism.

The Hanoverians saw this change in kingship firmly established. Yet in 1743 George II. accompanied his army in the field, and was the last reigning King of England to do so. Then, at Dettingen, in Bavaria, he personally led an army of English, Hanoverians, and Austrians to victory against the French, who were in superior force under the Duc de Noailles.

Pepys at a Banquet.

People probably eat more judiciously today than they did when Samuel Pepys wrote the following account of his holiday menu:

"We had a fricasee of rabbits and chickens, a leg of mutton, boiled; three carps in a dish, a great dish of a side of lamb, a dish of roasted pigeons, a dish of four lobsters, three tarts, a lamprey pie—a most rare pie—a dish of anchovies, good wine of several sorts and all things mighty noble, to my great content."

The striking thing about this feast, which was probably a typical one of its day (1663), is that it is composed almost entirely of meat and fish, relieved only by pastry and wine. If there were any vegetables in it Pepys did not consider it necessary to mention them, and it is possible that there were none. Potatoes were hardly known in England at that time, and many other vegetables now considered necessaries were either not known or were rarely used.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back its Natural Colour, Gloss and Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is, to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Suphur Compound no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This perparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

THE ZEPPELIN FAILURE.

These Aircrafts Accomplish Nothing of Military Value.

According to a report which comes from Zurich, the aerial experts of the German General Staff have advised against the construction of any more Zeppelins, upon the ground that they are too unwieldy, too vulnerable, and too susceptible to the weather. Their recommendation will generally be recognized as sensible and its adoption may be assumed. It is believed that the use of the Zeppolins is chiefly attributable to the Emperor's orders or advocacy, and there is no doubt that they have sadly disappointed the high expectations which their introduction had aroused. The supposition was that they would prove incomparable instrumentalities of "frightfulness" and devastation. London and other British cities were to be destroyed by their agency, and there were some who imagined that they were to be employed with deadly effect against the British fleet.

All such calculations have completely miscarried. The Zeppelins have accomplished nothing of any military value. Not a ship or a fort has suffered from their activities, and the idea that they would create a panic in the United Kingdom and terrorize the British people into suing for peace has been proved entirely fallacious. They have had a precisely contrary effect. It has frequently been recorded that nothing served better to stimulate recruiting than a Zeppelin visitation. When one of the big balloons came along and killed a few men, women, and children with the bombs it dropped, so much popular indignation was aroused by the shameful outrage which had been perpetrated that many a man who had put off enlisting hesitated no longer, and thousands of recruits were added to the ranks. Every bomb that was dropped materially helped to increase the strength of the British army.

EVOLUTION OF PIANO.

Legend of Discovery of Music in Tightly Drawn Strings.

The piano is a stringed musical instrument. The name pianoforte comes from two Italian words meaning soft and loud because the notes of this instrument can be made both soft and loud. We must go far back into history to find the earliest traces of stringed instruments, and even then we do not know where and when they originated, for there seem to be no records which help us to trace their origin. We know that the Egyptians 2,400 years ago had stringed instruments, but we only know they had them—not where they got them or who made them. There is a legend that the Roman god Mercury, while walking along the Nile after the river had overflowed its banks and the land had again become dry, stubbed his toe on the shell of a dead tortoise. He picked it up to cast it aside and accidentally touched some strings of sinew with his finger. A musical note was produced and Mercury, after trying to find a cause for the musical sound, twanged the string again and discovered the music in tightly stretched strings. He set about making an instrument, using the tortoiseshell as a sound-box and stretching several strings across it. This is only legend, but, if we examine the lyre, an instrument of the early Greeks, we always find the representation of a tortoise on it.

The harp was probably the first practical stringed instrument. Its music was produced by picking the strings with the fingers or with a piece of bone or metal. The next step was the psaltery, which was produced in the Middle Ages. It was a box with strings stretched across it and represented the first crude attempt at using a sounding board. A larger instrument of the same sort, which appeared at about the same time, was the dulcimer. Both the psaltery and dulcimer were played by picking the strings with the fingers or with a small piece of bone.

Then came the keyboard, first used on stringed instruments in what is called the clavicytherium. This consisted of a box with catgut strings arranged in a semi-triangle says the Book of Wonders. On the end of each key was a quill which picked the string when the key was operated.

After this came the clavichord. It was built like a small square piano without legs. The strings were made of brass, and on the end of each key was a wedge-shaped piece of brass, which picked the strings. The elder Bach composed his music on the clavichord, and that is why his music is full of soft and melancholy notes. The clavichord produced only such notes.

The next steps brought the virginal, spinet, and harpsichord. The strings on all three were of brass, with quills at the key ends for picking the strings. The virginal and spinet were very much alike. The harpsichord was larger and was sometimes made with two keyboards. These instruments had notes covering four octaves only.

The arrangement of the strings in the harpsichord came one step nearer to our piano. It had five octaves of notes, and there were at least two strings to each note, instead of only one, as in previous instruments. The first real piano was made in 1709 by Bartholomeo Christofori, an Italian. He invented the little hammers with which the strings are struck.

Durable Fox-Hounds.

Protest against the fox-hound in England grows because he eats so much of what would serve as human food. He is certainly a gross feeder, and this makes it all the more astonishing that he runs so fast and so long. He easily outlasts the greyhound, and it is very doubtful whether there is any other canine species which he cannot outstrip at short distances. Many a fox-hound has been timed to cover a mile under two minutes, and in 1795 a record was established on Newmarket Heath by a fox-hound bitch, Merkin, which in a trial ran four miles in seven minutes and a half.—London Chronicle.

MAYOR OF HAMILTON HEARS FROM SERGEANT

Shouts Patriotism But His Acts Do Not Correspond With His Words.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 26.—Sergeant James Lindsay, the well-known recruiter, caused a stir outside the City Hall to-day just as Mayor Booker, the Controllers, Aldermen and others were piling into automobiles to start for Toronto with the highway deputation.

Approaching the Mayor, Lindsay said: "It is very well for you to be shouting patriotism from the platform and it looks nice in print, but it is inconsistent to find you surrounded with a lot of men fit to be at the front and who should be there. I could pick a couple of dozen fit young men out of this crowd and I will bet not one of them has tried to pass the doctor."

CONSTANTINOPLE RICHEST CITY IN HOARDED GOLD AND GEMS

The richest city in the world in hoarded treasure probably is Constantinople.

Hidden away in the imperial treasury, idle and unproductive, are the accumulations of the greed of twenty-eight generations of sultans.

No Turk or Turkish-speaking person is allowed [illegible] a peep at them, lest it leak out that the treasury is not so impoverished as it seems from the general decay apparent everywhere. Thus, too, the treasure might tempt robbers to investigate for themselves.

A few travellers have been admitted to the hall of the throne and the green vaults, but all published accounts are meager, as no one is allowed to take notes, and no photographs, except those showing the formalities of unlocking the door, and the divan in the hall of the throne, have even been taken. Of the treasury itself it is impossible to obtain a picture. The fullest account in print is that by Curtis in "The Turk and His Lost Provinces," and he was obliged to depend on memory for the record of the wonders he beheld.

The green vaults of Constantinople are within the grounds of the old Seraglio, and are one of the detached buildings which compose the palace built by Constantine the Great and his successors. Approached through a court called the Dar es Sa'adet—the Court of Felicity—it is seen to be a rather low-domed edifice, with an interesting doorway and interior walls enriched with marbles and tiles.

The display confronting one is of barbaric splendor, as evinced by the picture of the gem-studded divan and footstool shown in a separate room—the hall of the throne.

Perhaps the throne of beaten gold, adorned with great quantities of rubies, pearls, diamonds and emeralds set in mosiac, is the most dazzling object in the treasury. How Selim I. ever brought it from Persia away back in 1502, when overland travel was perhaps more unsafe than now, stretches the imagination. And there is a second throne "of ebony and sandalwood, incrusted with mother of pearl, gold, rubies, emeralds and sapphires."

Nowhere in the world are there precious stones to compare with the two great emeralds found here, one of which weighs two kilograms and is as big as a man's hand and the other is but a trifle smaller. And the marvelous tankard of gold incrusted with 3,000 diamonds — who wrought that, and for whom?

Did anyone ever use that toilet set—bowl, pitcher and all—thickly set with turquoises, standing on a table literally veneered with diamonds? Perhaps it was some Sultan's favourite, the one who drank from the diamond-spankled tankard and for whom the infatuated monarch decreed that diamond buttons were none too good for her robes. At any rate, some one left the treasury a legacy of half a peck of these buttons.

The loose stones are more in number than most jewellers of our large cities handle in a lifetime. Imaginate diamonds, turquoises, rubies, emeralds and pearls by the half bushel! The magnitude of it makes one gasp.

Miss Grace Ellison, in "An Englishwoman in a Turkish Harem," tells of a luncheon she attended in the harem of the present Sultan Mahomet V, and her description of the jewels worn by some of those present makes one wonder if the treasury had not been raided for the occasion. She tells of the "bouquet of diamond flowers stretching from shoulder to shoulder" of the high controller of the harem, and in whose care "were birds the size of butterflies holding in their beaks a pearl the size of a cherry."

The Sultan's granddaughter, a child of 12 years of age, she pictures as having "her hair in a knot on the top of her head inside a diamond crown, the front of her dress covered with diamond orders, while her hands were incased in gold mittens studded with rubies and diamonds."

Children should be early taught, both by precept and example, to keep their promises. Straws show which way the wind blows, likewise small things reveal a person's true character, the breaking of promises will lead us into a habit of neglect and carelessness, even if it injures [illegible], which it often does.

TO MAKE REPAIRS ON SEIZED LINERS

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Plans to make the seized German and Austrian ships a part of the American merchant marine were discussed recently at a conference between Secretary McAdoo and Chairman Denman of the Federal Shipping Board.

It developed at the conference that there were three ways by which the United States might take over the ninety German vessels and fourteen Austrian ships. They are: Seise the vessels as prizes of war, requisition them under the right of eminent domain, or purchase of the ships by Americans.

Six hundred machinists employed by the Erie Basin Dry Dock Company and Tietjen & Lange, are at work repairing the seized German ships at New York. They found before they had gone very far that all of the engines were badly damaged except those of the Vaterland.

It is expected that it will take several weeks to replace the many small engine parts which were removed, and until the work is finished they will be unable to move out. All of the ships except the Vaterland can be taken to dry dock, where the barnacles will be scraped from the hulls.

Most of the ships are resting on the soft sand of the East River bed, but it is believed they can be moved out into the stream with the aid of tugs without much difficulty. The strictest guard is being maintained to permit only authorized persons near the ships.

We ought to consider home and all the members of the household as entitled to the first consideration in all things. What are those we meet in society to us that we should take such pains to be agreeable to them, and neglect those who have the strongest claim upon us? It all comes about because we have got into a wrong way of thinking. We have put the home into the background when it should occupy the foremost place in our thoughts. We should strive to make ourselves such pleasant members of the household band that our absence is like the loss of the sunshine from a summer day. We can do it and we will do it if we enter into the right spirit—the spirit of home.

Attracting Birds To Your Home is Not Difficul

WRENS EASY TO PLEASE.

But Mrs. Bluebird is Most Particular About Her House, Preferring Hollow Logs.

Humans are not the only folk house-hunting at this season of the year, and humans are not the only folk who are particular about the kind of house offered them. Mr. and Mrs. Bird are mighty particular—that is some branches of the family are. The house to suit some must be of a certain type, possibly of certain dimensions, and it must afford every facility for the proper housing of the baby Birds that will come later on to bring joy into the world.

To-day, by a ruling of the state department of education, has been set aside as State Bird Day, therefore it is appropriate that something should be told of how local bird admirers are striving to bring to this locality birds that have been passing by season after season, to increase the number of those who have liked us well enough to stay here and to protect those who really belong here through every means possible. All of this belongs with a story about Mr. and Mrs. Bird hunting their summer home.

The tiny wren, the little brown bride of the famous old nursery rhyme, is not nearly as particular about the character of her abode as you think she might be—famous as she is, for she has no high notions as to domicile qualities. Nail your old shoe close together at the top, cut a small hole in the toe—just large enough for her to crawl into—toss it carelessly into a bush or the forks of a tree, and she'll occupy it for a whole season, giving you companionship and joy, for she is a happy wight.

Mrs. Bluebird, An Aristocrat.

But Mrs. Bluebird, on the other hand, is most particular. In some respects she's the aristocrat of the bird world. Any old thing will not do, and she distinctly favours domiciles of rustic character. If you would invite her to be your door-yard neighbour during the summer, get a log, with the bark on, of course, and about 6 inches in diameter. It must be a little more than a foot in length, for the interior, after you have dug out the inside of the log, must be 12 inches long and not less than three inches in diameter. There must be a good roof, too. The entrance should be about two inches from the top and at least an inch and a half in diameter. Don't make it too large because if you do you will invite intrusion from less aristocratic birds. You understand, of course, that the log is to be placed on end. Put it in some place where it will be out of the reach of the cat and other marauders, fasten it securely and you will not have to put a "To Let" sign on it. You will have it tenated from early in May until the call comes for the birds to go south in the autumn.

Blue birds will nest in other types of houses if they are well made and there is protection against the weather. Mr. Bluebird will accept almost any kind of a house, but not Mrs. Bluebird. She must know that it is safe, that she will be protected from the rain during the period of incubation and that her young will be fully protected after they have shattered the eggs.

Members of the Burroughs-Audubon Nature Club are telling a good wren story and it's rather at the expense of the caretaker at Highland Park. Last summer a wren spied the food hopper, liked it, decided to take it as a home, hunted around, found that the cover was raised a little, built her nest in it and settled down on top of the food for a period of summer luxury.

Some of the club members just now are interested in getting martin houses up in time to catch the migrants when they pass through Rochester to other points they have been favouring. Martins have been scarce around here and, naturally, the bird-lovers here wish to attract them to the city. The welcome to Rochester signs they are putting up to attract their attention and give notice of Rochesterian hospitality are attractive houses which it takes some architectural skill to build.

Interest in Birds Keener.

The agitation over protecting bird life during the past few years, is bringing results. One of the effects has been to quicken interest in all kinds of birds, and to turn the boyish desire for robbing birds' nests and capturing the young, toward protecting them. The state law protecting birds has done a great deal to save the birds from pothunters. It is now too costly to kill birds in or near Rochester as two Italians found last year when they had to pay fines of $50 each for killing a few.—Rochester Post.

"BRITISH MAILS" A SECRET.

Post-Office Can't Tell of Incoming or Outgoing Mails.

The Post-Office cannot give any information as to the time of either incoming or outgoing British mails. It was explained that the new order had been issued to keep secret the time of the arrival and departure of vessels.

All that can be done is to advise people to mail from day to day, and the mails will be forwarded with every available despatch. It is safer to send mail every day. Under the present conditions it is impossible to estimate when the steamers will arrive or leave. Sometimes only two or three days elapse between different mails, and at other times as much as ten days may elapse.

Australia Shows Gratifying Care For Her Soldiers

SYDNEY, N.S.W. — (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.) — The Commonwealth Government's repatriation scheme for returned and maimed soldiers, a feature of which is the liberality of its provisions, has been further outlined by Senator Millen, vice-president of the executive council. Senator Millen states that the Commonwealth has accepted full responsibility for securing to every returned soldier a man's livelihood by providing an avenue for civil employment.

The sum of 22,000,000 pounds will be provided, which will be advanced to the Australian states in connection with land settlement for returned soldiers, enabling soldier settlers to secure advances for improvements up to 500 pounds for each man. Occupation will be provided upon arrival, not as at present upon military discharge. Three permanent officials in each state will be responsible for all executive work while subordinate officers will be appointed throughout each state, ensuring the necessary decentralization and repatriation.

Local committees will be established to encourage soldiers in each district. A special branch will deal with provision for maintenance and artificial limbs for all the permanently maimed, who will be afforded every opportunity to supplement their pensions by the establishment of specially equipped workshops. An amelioration fund will be maintained in order to ensure temporary assistance to New South Wales returned soldiers by a conference of the executives on existing funds. Amelioration work will be controlled by the government and administered by a board of trustees whose chairman will be a Minister of the Crown.

Children's Aid Society
Adopt Report Defining Policy Of The Society

No Child Can Be Admitted to the Shelter or Removed Without a Written Order From the President and Secretary—New Regulations Are Subject to the Children's Protection Act.

A special meeting of the Executive Committee of the Children's Aid Society was held this afternoon in the Bank of Montreal Chambers. Those present were: Mr. E. A. Peck, President; Mr. J. Wearing, Secretary; Rev. R. G. Peever; Mr. R. H. Parsons; Mr. John Edgar; Adjutant and Mrs. McElhiney; Mr. G. N. Gordon; Mayor Duffus; Dr. King; Chief of Police Thompson; Mrs. Stocker; Mrs. Gibbs; Mrs. Sanderson; Mrs. Evans, and Mr. C. A. G. Spence, agent for the Society.

In the words of the president the object of the meeting was to consider "Under what orders and by what person, or circumstances should a child be admitted to the Shelter." Some time ago a small committee composed of members of the Executive Committee was named and instructed to bring in a report dealing with the above question.

THE REPORT.

Following is the report which includes the amendments that were made during the course of the meeting:

EXECUTIVE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY, PETERBOROUGH

Your Committee appointed to submit draft resolutions defining the policy of the Society beg to submit the following report containing such draft resolutions.

1. THAT no children be admitted to the Children's Shelter or removed from there without a written order from the President and Secretary, if present in the city. In the event of either of these officers being absent from the city the Order shall be signed by the officer remaining and one other member of the Executive. In the event of both the President and Secretary being absent from the city the Order shall be signed by any other two members of the Executive.

2. THAT, except in cases of extreme urgency children shall not be removed from any home without a warning to those in charge that such children will be removed unless conditions are improved; and that the Agent shall employ all possible means in co-operation with the Executive and other persons interested to persuade those in charge of the children to make conditions satisfactory; and that children shall only be removed as a last resort and then only upon the order of members of the Executive as set out in the clause next preceding and that where necessary prosecution shall be instituted against those in charge, or responsible for the care of neglected children it may be deemed upon the recommendation of the President and Secretary.

3. THAT it be distinctly understood that the Shelter is not a Foundling Home or a Boarding House; but it is also to be understood that each case of a neglected child or children shall be decided on its merits irrespective of age as set out in the two clauses next preceding.

4. THAT no children shall be allowed to go into any foster homes until forms of recommendation have been filled out and signed by reputable people living in the neighbourhood of those wishing to adopt children; and that in each case a written agreement shall be drawn up and signed by the person or persons adopting any children.

5. THAT the Agent shall give a full report each month at the regular meeting of the Executive stating full particulars of his work during the month and giving details as to his visits and any other matters likely to be of interest to the Executive.

6. THAT the Superintendent of the Shelter shall be required to fill in forms supplied to her giving the following particulars each month with regard to the children at the shelter: Names, approximate ages, dates of admission and removal, changes of personal during the month, health, school attendance, etc., and that such monthly report shall be furnished to the Secretary each month in time to be read at the regular monthly meeting of the Executive.

7. THAT the foregoing resolutions are subject to the Children's Protection Act in Ontario.

ALL of which is respectfully submitted. E. A. Peck, Rev. R. G. Peever, Mrs. Walter Stocker, Mrs. W. H. Gibbs, E. L. Goodwill, Joseph Wearing.

THE DISCUSSION.

Clause seven of the report was added at the suggestion of Mr. R. H. Parsons. When asked by Mr. Gordon if he was familiar with the regulations governing other societies of a similar character, Mr. Peck replied in the negative.

Referring to clause one in the report Chief Thompson drew the committee's attention to the fact that it might be necessary for a Constable to apprehend a child on the street and remove it to the Shelter, without first consulting the President and Secretary.

Mr. Peck—"In that case the Children's Protection Act would govern."

"Is that not set out clearly in the Act?" inquired Mayor Duffus, when another point at issue was raised by a member."

"It is not replied Mr. Peck."

Mr. Wearing—"It is a broad Act and leaves details to the Society."

Mayor Duffus—"What would the Agent do if he came across an extreme case and had to take quick action?"

Mr. Wearing—"He would operate under the Act."

Chief Thompson attempted to point out that the Agent had authority to enter a house and take summary action in the case of a neglected child.

Mr. Wearing, secretary, who took an active part in the discussion disputed his claim. Mr. Spence, the agent of the Society who asked for an opportunity to speak read a section from the Childrens' Protection Act which vested in the agent the authority to take the initiative in the case of a neglected child.

LIFE OR DEATH.

Adjutant McElhiney said he would not assure the responsibility of removing a child from its home to the Shelter unless it was a case of life or death, without first consulting the Executive Committee. Among the objectionable features referred to by Adjutant McElhiney was that of publicity. The speaker overlooked the fact that the newspapers of this city have always refrained from giving such matters publicity except in a general way without reference to names.

Chief Thompson favoured the use of persuasion rather than the law. He believed the people could be educated to improve their surroundings so as to obviate the necessity of removing the child or children. Mr. Edgar wanted to know how the Agent was to define a case of life or death.

One of the members considered that a matter of judgment.

In the main Mr. Spence's position is vindicated by the report which concedes what he has always contended, namely, that the Society's activities are subject to the Childrens' Protection Act and that there is no age limit or question of parentage in the definition of a neglected child. In other words clause seven of the Committee's report practically nullifies the report and vests in the Agent the right to operate under the Act.

BRITONS TO EAT LESS BREAD AND THRIFT NECESSARY

LONDON, April 25.—The British public was solemnly warned to-day by Lord Devonport, the British food controller, that the country's shipping was being depleted daily in large volume and that severe privations menaced the nation before the next harvest was reached. Lord Devonport's warning was issued in the House of Lords in response to a question by Lord Leamington as to what success had attended the efforts of voluntary rationing, and whether the Government intended to resort to compulsion.

Lord Devonport recited the extensive efforts that are being made by the press pulpit and schools and also by local committees to impress on the community the urgency of food restrictions. He said that it might be described as a general election on a grand scale with the view of soliciting the allegiance of every citizen, particularly the women, to reduce their consumption of bread. He continued:

SHIPPING LOSSES.

"If our shipping resources were assured we could undoubtedly carry on, but they are not assured. Our shipping is being depleted every day in large volume and although our existence depends thereupon it is at the moment a wasting security. As there is no immediate prospect of our locked-up shipping being released from its present occupation we have to face this grim fact.

"Unless we exercise sufficiency of self-denial in the consumption of bread I tell you the blunt truth, we shall not get through to next harvest without severe privation and all that it involves."

Letters Reveal Desperation In Land of Germans

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, April 25. — German's evident intention of trying for a "short, sharp, decisive struggle" as chronicled by neutral observers in Berlin, is daily making itself visible in black and white out here. Here is an extract from a captured letter, dealing with recruiting:

"There is a general clearance now: everyone who can move his legs is passed fit for service in the field. Everybody is now being called up. Even those who at first were declared quite unfit have all been taken."

The reason for this leves an masse seems to be indicated in the following letters, also taken from captured Germans. "ALTONA—Want is now only beginning — the hunt for coal and the shortage of food. Every day, turnips, not even cabbage. A serious epidemic of virulent small-pox (Schwarze Pocken) has broken out in Hamburg, but has not reached Altona yet."

"Berlin: — We still have no coal here and last week there was no bread to be had without a struggle. I stood in the snow and cold wind for an hour and a half and was about the tenth in the queue. Suddenly the women rushed through the door like beasts of prey and splinters of glass flew about. I got in with the second batch and secured half a loaf — the very last piece of bread."

Many out here, with such documents constantly being brought to their attention, are of the opinion that the domestic crisis in Germany is responsible for her defiance of the United States and the world at large. They say it is hunger asserting itself, empty stomaches crying out to be filled regardless of consequences.

PRESCIENCE.

Who told the willow tree
That spring has come again?
How could she ever know?
(So wild the winds that blow,
So hash the rain.)

The sycamore and oak,
The beech, with years bent low,
Still winter dark and sere,
Have heard no signal clear;
They do not know.

But since each willow withe
Its greening wand unfurls,
The maples blossom deep
And poplar catkins peep
With cautious curls.

They find the sun is kind
With hint of warmth to be;
But what first word of cheer
Aroused the pioneer,
The willow tree?

Belgian Relief Is Proceeding Smoothly Under The Dutch

MONTREAL, April 26.— Official news has reached the Belgian Relief Committee here that Prentiss Gray, assistant director of the Belgian Relief Commission, and three American accountants are remaining in Belgium for a month or more, under arrangements with the German authorities, in order that the new Dutch Commissioners who have taken over the direction of the work of relief may be given every assistance in keeping the work going smoothly.

Mr. Hoover, the director of the Commission, is now in London in personal touch with the phases of the situation and the offices of the Commission will remain, as before, in London, New York and Rotterdam.

Relief ships are arriving regularly at Rotterdam, where they are discharged into lighters in the same manner as before. German assurances regarding the safety of the relief ships have been [illegible] by the Commission, which is sending forward food as rapidly as steamers can be loaded and despatched.

As to the ultimate destination of the food thus sent into Belgium for distribution among the starving population, the following statement from the Secretary of the United States Legation in Brussels, who has only just returned to the United States, will allay any anxieties.

"There seems to be a prevalent idea on this continent that we are feeding Germany indirectly through Belgium, and that the best of all that is sent to Northern France is consumed by German soldiers. No impression could be more erroneous. Infractions of the guarantees are the exception rather than the rule. If any ordinary business could be run with the small percentage of loss and leakage that the "revitaillement" of Belgium is conducted with, it would be considered extraordinarily efficient."

Manifestly money is badly needed for the Commission is falling considerably behind the extra sum of $1,250,000 aimed at by Mr. Hoover in order to give the school children of Belgium an extra daily meal, to save them from rickets, tuberculosis and other diseases to which underfeeding is subjecting them. Contributions for this purpose are most urgently needed and will be thankfully received by the Belgian Relief Committee, 25 St. Peter street, Montreal, or any local Belgian Relief Committee.

WILL SPECIFY PEACE TERMS

Special to The Examiner:

BERLIN, April 27.— In the Reichstag next week, Von Hollweg will specify German peace terms.

"DILLYDALLING IS ASININITY."

Baltimore American:— "Dillydallying with the volunteer system would be the very essence of asininity and would be an act of foul murder of American manhood."

417 GEORGE ST. PHONE 285

At The Motor Show

BY H. W. KIPP.

My wife said to me: "Go, buy us a car,
I'm tired of the street cars and walking's too slow;
We've travelled through life together so far,
And the joys of an auto we never did know."

So, I answered friend wife: "What car will I get?
There's nothing of autos that I really know."
She winked at me and said, "I will bet
You can make up your mind at the big motor show."

Forthwith to the auto show I repaired;
The cars all aglitter with polish and shine,
Glistened and glimmered until I despaired
Of being able to say, "That one for mine."

I asked a good fellow, "How much for this bird?"
He chewed on his gum and shifted his quid—
"Of twelve thousand dollars, I ask just a third,"
Twelve thousand stars, and I fell with a thud.

I was grabbed by the coat, and held by the neck,
Dizzy and dazed, and waving my hand.
Another slick gent with a diamond, by Heck!
Says: "Come, let me show you an Overland."

Then a good fellow, who pitied my plight,
And realized what a hole I was in,
Fixed on me an eye that was bright,
And murmured, "Can't I sell you a McLaughlin?"

"Not so sudden," says I to this well-wishing sport,
"There are others around that look good to me.
There's the Chevrolet, Willys, the Dodge and Gray-Dort,
The Studebaker, Grant and huskey Packard."

I came to a place where they sold motobikes:
The Indian was the name it was called;
It was red, and it sure did look business like—
With a motor like that one could never be stalled.

The question arose: a six or a four,
An eight or electric, or velvety twelve,
In my poor misty brain I sure had to delve.

I am usually sober, and have a clear brain,
And head work, I thought, was always my forte,
But where my "bean" was there was only a pain,
So I reached for my hip and took a good snort.

That Cadillac sure was a classy to see,
The Grant and the Chalmers, the Mitchell as well;
Then turning around I saw a Maxwell.

This brought me back to earth with a thud;
The price was a serious item you know.
The Chevrolet, Saxon, the Metz, and the "Stud,"
And way over there I saw a Briscoe.

My brain was a halo of gear shifts and springs,
Heat treated, full floating, gold plated chassis;
Timken rear axles and "do funny" things;
I was groggy and felt I had ball-bearing knees.

My condition was critical and plain to the eye,
When sudden to me through the crowd there bored,
With a beam in his eye, said a smart-looking guy,
"Come on, here you are! let me give you a FORD."

DARTMOOR PRISON, GRIM STRONGHOLD, FREE OF CONVICTS

The decision of the British government to close the great convict prison of Dartmoor and use it for war purposes, brings to notice its notable history. A bulletin issued by the National Geographical gives the following interesting account of this institution and its environs:

"The prison was built in the first instance to care for the thousands of prisoners who had fallen into British hands in the course of the Napoleonic war. Its corner-stone was laid in 1806, and its walls rose speedily. It was pronounced the last word in penologic architecture, and in 1811 the administration at Dartmoor was widely praised because it permitted the prisoners to work both within and without the walls, and to receive a small stipend for their labours.

Following the close of the war with France, the Dartmoor prison lay unused for some years, though many plans were proposed for utilizing the buildings; and in 1850, at the suggestion of the Prince Consort, the place was transformed, by convict labour, into a general prison such as it has since remained. The criminals sent to Dartmoor were all from the long-term class; and many transfers were made to Dartmoor because the healthful and bracing climate, due to its elevation—about 1,400 feet—was found especially efficacious in the first stage of pulmonary disease.

Location of Prison.

"The prison was located at Prince Town, so named for the Prince Regent who was lord of the land at the time the convict station was erected, and is situated in the so-called "west quarter" of the "ancient and Royal Forest or Chase of Dartmoor.

"Dartmoor forest lies in the county of Devon, in the northwest of the western peninsula of the United Kingdom, and since 1337 it has been permanently joined to the Duchy of Cornwall, which constitutes the major property of the heir to the throne. It thus belongs to a subject, rather than to the Crown; and, in consequence, it is not legally entitled to the privileges of a forest, though Dartmoor has always retained them.

"The forest, now wooded no longer, is exceedingly rough in contour; is underlain with a granitic foundation, which obtrudes upon the heights in the craggy "tors" with which the moor is studded. It embraces more than 260,000 acres, which lie wholly within the one parish of Lydford. Eighty years ago William Howitt, writing of Rural Life in England,' advised one to "pass into Dartmoor," if you want sternness and loneliness. There are wastes and wilds, crags of granite, views into far-off districts, and the sound of waters hurrying away over their rocky beds." From generation to generation Dartmoor has been branded by traditional prejudice with an ill-name. It has been proverbial as the spot where bleak skies and brooding storms have remained, undisputed and undisturbed; and the classically inclined have known it as a modern fatherland of raine, corresponding to the Nimborum Patria of Virgil.

The Rivers of Dartmoor

"Yet the rivers of Dartmoor make the meads of Devon, the Canaan of the west of England whose fertility and lovliness are due almost wholly to the refreshment poured down upon them from the perennial fountains of the misty moor where every hollow is a granite cup from which are fed perpetually the streams which pierce the rough peat soil and carry blessing from the rugged steeps of the central wilderness of Devon to the lowlands on either side. These rivers, a dozen in number, bear historic names, especially the Dart whence the moor itself is known, which takes its origin from the Celtic dwr, or water and which empties into the channel of Dartmouth. Similarly the Teign discharges at Teignmouth. Among them, is the Avon—but not that of Shakespeare—one of the half dozen of the name that England claims.

"Dartmoor is sometimes claimed as the last stronghold of pre-historic man in England but his remains go back no farther than the days of the New Stone Age. His marks are plentiful, however, and betoken a once thick population, Celt and Saxon have left but little trace, and the Romans none at all.

"Though here the Celts conquered the Iberian tribes, they did not exterminate them. The conquerors contented themselves with the fringes of the wildness; and as one penetrates into the midst of the moor, following into the wake of that advancing civilisation which halts not for any of the frowns of nature, he finds numerous traces of the age that was. The passing of Dartmoor prison is only a minor phase in the scene of changes which this central highland has seen."

Twitching of the Nerves, Headache and Indigestion

Would Lie Awake For Hours Unable to Sleep—Cure Came With the Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Peterborough, Ont., March 7.—These trying times try people who are naturally nervous and easily excited. On every hand you hear of nervous prostration and nervous collapse, sometimes the result of overwork and the worry of business cares and again on account of the depressing influence of war news and the anxiety for those who are in danger.

Never has there been so great demand for treatment to restore the exhausted nerves and never has Dr. Chase's Nerve Food so thoroughly proven its efficiency in this regard.

Mrs. C. French, 104 Lansdowne street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with nervousness, sleeplessness, frequent headaches, and indigestion. For many years I was troubled with a twitching or fidgety feeling about my limbs after retiring, causing me much loss of sleep. If wakened up out of my first sleep, even had I been asleep only five minutes, I would lie awake for hours and could not get to sleep again. Any sudden noise or a door slamming would set my nerves going and I would fear that something dreadful was going to happen. I had tried different remedies for this trouble, but without success. A friend asked me one day why I didn't try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I thought I could at least give it a trial. I secured some and commenced using them, and found they benefited me so much that I have taken fully a dozen boxes. My nervousness or fidgety feeling in the limbs is entirely cured. I can now eat and sleep well. I can recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food strongly, and would advise any one suffering from nervous trouble of any kind to use them according to directions."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

IS NATION WASHING TOO MUCH IN TIME OF WAR?

That Question Over Booth at London Fair—Saving Steps Towards Winning War, Urged

LONDON, April 24.— The question, "is the nation washing too much in war time?" was discussed over one of the booths of the National Economy exhibition here, under the patronage of the Duke of Connaught. The booth aims to impress on the British housewife that every possible saving in laundry work is a step toward winning the war.

"Men should wear soft collars," it is urged, "and women might wear darker and more serviceable clothes in place of the delicate crepe de chine blouses which only retain their freshness for a day or two."

The reason for economy in laundry work are two-fold, according to the promoters of the exhibition. First, laundry work calls for valuable labour which might be more usefully employed. Second, washing involves the expenditure of money, fuel, time and soap—all of the highest importance in war time.

"The society woman is the worst offender in the matter of laundry bills," says the exhibition's appeal. "Her maids wear unnecessary aprons and caps in the afternoon and starched frocks in the morning. A good overall in a dark colour is the proper thing. Thousands of women waste the nation's time money, fuel and labour in starched frilly clothes for their children."

Many a man's awakening is due to his wife's dream of a bonnet.

Marriage merely gives one woman the exclusive right to find fault with a man.

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day

Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidney and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

SUBMARINE "SLEEPS" TO ESCAPE SEARCH.

LONDON. — The submarine "lay sleeping" on the bottom like a tired whale enjoying a siesta, says the Mail..

When at the surface she seemed a gray lump of pugnacity. Crouched on the floor of the sea she appeared so inanimate that the strange aquatic creatures which stared at her with round unwinking eyes as the ground currents swirled them past her sides, regarded her with suspicion. Some of the more inquisitive of these dwellers in the deeps halted a moment, touched her with their noses, then scuttled fearfully away. A creature that remained so absolutely motionless, that headed the oncoming water yet moved neither gill nor fin, seemed uncanny to them, and they gave her a wide berth. Inside the boat, where the electric light made a brilliant illumination the submarine's crew were whiling away the time after the fashion that seemed best to them, waiting a chance to be off in safety.

One an softly tomchod a mandolin and hummed a lively ditty which he had picked up during his last visit to a music hall in port. The second coxswain sat absorbed in a week's old copy of "Answers," the golden cover of which was tattered by much thumbing and finger-printed all over from the many brawny hands it had been through during the boat's trip. Some of the "hands" stretched on the floor, and snoozed as peacefully as if they had been in bed ashore. Others swapped yarns about things that had no connection with war or war's effects.

Smoking not being permissable each killed time in his own way. The skipper sitting by the periscope, and talking with the "sub," displayed an air of unconcern yet one got the impression that for all his quiet indifference he was keenly alert, ready for prompt action.

"Sh-sh! Hear that?" said an A.B., prodding the mandolinist's arm. The music stopped as the thud of screws overhead penetrated into the boat. One of the sleepers on the floor raised himself on his elbow and listened.

"She's gone over us," he remarked casually, then resumed his nap. Nor did any of the others pay greater attention to the incident. From time to time the beat of more screws came filtering into the boat, showing that vessels which the submarine had no desire to meet were searching the waters about her. And while she thus lay "dogge" to avoid them, never a one of her crew showed by his demeanor that he worried about the peril that encompassed him. Closed within steel walls from which there could be no escape if the worst happened, lying fathoms deep in danger infested waters, unable to see anything outside their prison though hearing much that was disquieting these iron nerved men comported themselves as unconcernedly as if they had been safe within the cosy shelter of a "stone frigate" ashore.

PANAMA CANAL TOLLS LESS THAN EXPENSES

Statistics for 1916 Show That More Ships Made Transit, with Less Tonnage Than 1915.

PANAMA, April 24.—Traffic statistics for the Panama Canal show that the number of ocean-going ships which made the transit through the canal in the calendar year 1916 was 1,253. Their aggregate net tonnage was 2,938,969 tons, and they carried a total of 4,981,911 tons of cargo.

The number of ships was 7 per cent. greater than in 1915, but in net tonnage, tolls, and cargo, the record for 1916 was a little less than one per cent. less than 1915. The two years had about the same bulk of traffic, and both saw the canal closed for a period of three and a half months.

The tolls collected in 1916 were $3,877,665.60, which was not equal to the expenses. The ships in the United States coastwise trade are slightly over 3 per cent. of the aggregate tonnage in 1916. In 1915 they were one-fourth of all the traffic, and in 1914 they were two-fifths. Most of the former coastwise ships have been diverted to the more profitable foreign trade.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Story of a Lady Killer

By GERALD GREEN

Having passed through a siege of typhoid fever, when I became convalescent my hair began to come out. I at once had my head shaved and ordered a wig. The wigmaker, a Frenchmate, measured my head and before departing asked:

"Blond, noir or rouge?"

I understand nothing of any language except American and did not know what he was talking about. But there is a dislike in all persons to acknowledge that they do not understand or do not hear or cannot see. I looked at the man as though I was deliberating on what he said, then replied:

"Oui, rouge."

This seemed to satisfy him, for he bowed himself out without another word.

"I wonder what he said to me?" I mused after he had gone. "Was it the price he was speaking of or the time it was to be finished?"

I found out what he had said when the wig came in. It was a beautiful red. I abused him for having made a wig of such a color, and he expostulated with the usual French shrug and gesture.

"Monsieur, I ask you if you have it blond, black or red. You say I make him red."

Seeing that I had authorized the color, I said no more, but paid for the wig like a man. The price being $25, I could not afford another one and subjected myself to wearing it till my own chestnut locks should reappear.

It was about this time that I received an anonymous note written in a woman's hand. The writer said that she had seen me on a sickbed in the hospital and had been impressed with my appearance. She plastered the communication over with a lot of stuff about my intellectual, pale brow and other features. What her object was I did not know, but I did know that there were emotional women in the world who are silly enough to do just that sort of thing.

However, since she gave me no clew to her identity, I paid no attention to her letter, tossing it into the fire and thinking no more about it.

When I had forgotten it a married lady friend of mine told me that she desired to introduce me to a friend of hers. "I think," she said to me "that, to use a slang phrase, you have made a mash. I think the lady admires you."

"Has she ever seen me?" I asked.

"Of course. How could she admire you without having seen you?"

"Oh! Her admiration doubtless origi-exists in your imagination."

Nevertheless I was flattered. This was the second case of admiration of which I was the subject, and I began to feel quite Adonis-like. It seemed to me, after this last conquest, that every girl who came near me was struck with me. I waited impatiently for my friend to introduce me to my victim, but nothing came of it, and I was beginning to settle down to the opinion that I was not, after all, a lady killer when another woman friend of mine said to me one day:

"I would like to know whether or not you carry a love potion about you."

"Why do you say that?" I asked, my finger ends tingling and my heart increasing its beat.

"Oh, nothing. A friend of mine"—

"Well?"

"A friend of mine was going into raptures over you the other day."

"What did she have to say about me?"

"I don't think that the flattering things said of persons should be repeated to them any more than the disagreeable things."

That is all I could get out of her.

By this time I felt sure there was something about my appearance that attracted the fair sex. I stood before a mirror trying to discover what it was. It seemed to me that if my own black locks decorated my head I would be passably good looking, but my sorrel top, I considered, spoiled the whole. Then it occurred to me that those "mashes" had been made since I had donned it, and it struck me that this must be the secret of my success.

One evening at a dinner the hostess came to me and said she would introduce me to the lady who was to be my companion at table. She took me to one who the moment she saw me started and shrank away from me. I noticed that her eyes were fixed on my wig. The hostess looked at her in astonishment, but the other, recovering herself, took my arm, and we marched together to the dining room. Passing a mirror, I saw that my face and my wig were both very red.

My dinner companion, when seated, turned from me for an animated conversation with a man sitting on the other side of her. She scarcely spoke a word to me during the dinner.

This treatment brought me to my senses, and I resolved to make an investigation. Before I got through I knew more than I wished to know. All these women who admired me were one—my demure companion. She had seen me in the hospital and, being aggressive instead of retiring, had written me the anonymous letter. She had seen me with black hair falling over white temples. Meeting me at the dinner party, she saw my sorrel wig. The effect was not only disenchanting, but irritating.

Months later I appeared before her in my own natural hair. She had by this time recovered from the shock occasioned by the wig, and I had little difficulty in completing my conquest.

THE ROAD TO SUCCESS.

Fill Whatever Job You Hold to the Best of Your Ability.

"In climbing the ladder of success what have you learned that you could pass on as aid to other struggling young men?" I asked H. P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co. "Did you conceive any shining goal and bend everything to getting there?"

"No," he replied emphatically. "Whatever job I had was to me always the very best job in the world, and I tried to fill it. I made no elaborate plans for the future. If I had any system in my labor it was first to do my own work; second, to teach the fellow below me how to take my place; third, to learn how to fill the position ahead of me.

"Boys and young men should not imagine that their work is so unimportant that nobody takes note of how they do it. It does not take long to find out whether a boy is on his toes watching how he can best be of help in a situation or whether he merely sits down and waits to be told what to do. The simple virtues of willingness, readiness, alertness and courtesy will carry a boy farther than mere smartness.

"Perhaps it will not be out of place for me to describe an incident which may carry a lesson for the young men you are anxious to help. One day when I was teller a customer offered me a very fine gold pen. I went right into the office and asked if this man had any loan from the bank. I explained that he had asked me to accept the gift. The bank promptly acted, and it was not long before the fellow was in bankruptcy. The simple course I took saved the bank a good deal of money."—B. C. Forbes in Leslie's.

EQUINE ARTFUL DODGERS.

Deafness and Lameness That Were Just Pure Bluff.

We all know, of course, the livery nag who pretends to be deaf. You tell him to "get up," and he getteth not up; you cluck to him, and he accelerateth not his pace. Is he deaf? Not he. You know, by a certain rolling of his eye and wiggling of his ears, that he hears you perfectly well. His deafness is pure bluff. It is like the lameness which some shrewd old nags sometimes put on.

Will a horse pretend to be lame when he is not? Some horses certainly will. Two or three years ago the Nomad was driving a livery nag on a road in Vermont, when the animal suddenly began to limp terribly; couldn't go off a slow walk. It was pretty serious, for a journey of about twenty miles had just been begun. Knowing a man on the road who was a practical horseman, the Nomad drove up to his door and submitted the animal to the expert's examination. The man looked at the horse's feet, examined his legs—looked him over thoroughly. "Did the horse go all right when you started out?" he asked. Yes; the horse had gone all right for three or four miles. "Well," said the expert, "this horse is shamming; there is nothing the matter with him."

Then he addressed some plain language to Dobbin, advising him with some sharpness to cut it all out and go along as he ought to. The Nomad touched the horse with the whip, and he trotted on to the end of the journey without the slightest limp.—Nomad in Boston Transcript.

Swearing on the Bible.

The method of swearing by the Bible came into use at a very early period, practically with the establishment of courts of law in Christian countries. It was the ordinary method of swearing when America was settled by Europeans and was naturally adopted here. Oaths were common before the Christian era, and any form may be used that conforms to the religious belief of the person to be sworn. Hebrews are often sworn on the Pentateuch, keeping on their hats, and their oath ends with the words, "So help me, Jehovah." A Mohammedan is sworn on the Koran.

He Made the Sale.

"Yes, the property is cheap enough. Why do you want to sell it?"

"You won't give me away?"

"No."

"Well, sir, it's because I'm the only man in this neighborhood that doesn't more in high society, and I'm lonesome."

Sample.

"George didn't keep his engagement with me last night," said the girl who was betrothed to him.

"I'd give him a piece of my mind," said her mother.

"Just a little sample of married life," suggested father.

WHY Does Your Head Ache?

Headaches, sick or other kinds, don't happen to people whose livers are busy and whose bowels are as regular as a clock.

Thousands of folks who used to have headaches say this is the way they removed the cause:

PARIS MEATLESS DINNERS.

One Meal a Day Instead of Two Days a Week, is Decided On.

PARIS, April 25. — One meatless meal each day has been officially decided upon instead of two meatless days per week as a measure of economy by the Minister of Supplies. All restaurants will be prohibited from serving anything in the nature of meat, poultry, or game for the evening meal. All butcher shops will be obliged to close their shops at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Minister of Supplies has accepted this alternative measure as an experiment only at the request of different interested lines of business. If it does not succeed, two meatless days will be instituted.

PRESS COMMENT ON SELECTIVE DRAFT

Congress Must Give President the Means to Carry on War, Editors Declare.

"GIVE PRESIDENT THE MEN."

New York World:—"When the President is directed to make war, he must have the weapons of war. There should be no more question about giving him the men he needs than about giving him the money he needs."

The Victoria Cross.

There are many interesting facts connected with the Victoria Cross, the sixty-first anniversary of the founding of which took place a few days ago. The first crosses were made from the cannon captured during the Crimean War, and later ones from guns taken from the Chinese, or from other pieces of captured artillery. This metal is, of course, so hard as to preclude the possibility of stamping with a steel die, the course followed in the manufacture of other medals, and the Victoria Cross is therefore cast. As was made clear by Mr. Asquith, in a statement in the British House of Commons, some two years ago, the coveted decoration can be won only by a British subject, but, with this reservation, it is open to all ranks in the navy and army, with the single exception of the Indian ranks of the Indian Army, who have an equivalent decoration in their own Order of Merit.

Trimmings Are Gorgeous

The cities and peoples of the east, from Port Said to Yokohama, and from peasant to king, apparently have been put under the microscope this season by designers of trimmings in order to bedeck milady in a manner befitting. The resultant offerings are remarkable for their coloring, beauty, and variance. Chinese motifs have been worked out in several ways, not the least being in hand embroideries, while wool, silk and wool, and beaded decorations embodying the designs and colorings of India, Egypt, and other eastern countries are offered in great abundance. A great variety of novel tassels is offered to buyers also. Many of them make use of eastern design motifs, and all of them are selling like the proverbial hot cakes.

Week-End Victories.

Week-end victories have been common in the history of warfare, and Sunday has always been, either by accident or design, a notable day for battles. It was on Easter Day, 1512, that the Battle of Ravenna was fought between the Dutch, French, and Spaniards, and there are two instances of Sunday battles in the Wars of the Roses. The most important victory in this continent was won by the Yorkists at Towton, on Palm Sunday, March 29, 1461; and ten years later, on Easter Sunday, 1471, the Yorkists were again victorious at Barnet. The Peninsular war was fruitful in Sunday fighting, and Waterloo itself was decided on Sunday, June 18, 1815.—London Chronicle.

MINK SKINS COME HIGH.

ST. LOUIS, April 26.—An unusually high price for mink skins was paid at the international fur action here to-day, a lot of 126 extra dark pelts being sold to a retail furrier in New York at $11.40 each. Sixty thousand mink skins were sold today.

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your D.D.D. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co.,

6. Verses 14, 15. What do the palm tree branches which they carried, and Jesus riding upon an ass's colt, symbolize?

7. Verse 16. When people are actuated by the enthusiasm of pure, divine love, why is it that they always do better than they know?

8. What effect does it have upon our faith and feelings, to be able to look back upon our lives and see how much more wonderfully God has led us better than we knew?

10. Verses 17, 18. Jesus said, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me," and through such testimony he intended to extend his kingdom; wherein do Christians fail in carrying out the instructions of Christ, and what is the remedy?

11. If every Christian on every opportunity were to tell his experience of the love of Christ, what effect would that have upon the conversion of the world?

12. Verse 19. What measure of danger is there to professional Christian teachers of becoming pharisaical?

13. Was the murderous opposition of the Pharisees to Jesus, an error of their heads, their hearts, or both?

14. Verses 20, 21. Which do you consider where the greatest sinners in those days, the Gentiles, or the Jews, and why?

15. When a man asks for a personal interview with Jesus, what would you consider to be his spiritual condition?

16. Verse 22. What is the significance that Philip took Andrew with him when he took the request of the Greeks to Jesus for an interview?

17. Verse 23. When did Christ first forsee this hour, when he was to be glorified by the way of the cross?

18. Verse 24. In what way did Christ's death on the cross, multiply many-fold, his power to save men?

19. Verse 25. Why are self denial, self sacrifice, and if need be, willingness to die a martyr's death, essential to becoming the true follower of Christ?

20. Verse 26. What is the nature of the blessedness here and of the joy in heaven with which all true followers of Christ will be rewarded?

THE LURE OF GOLD

How It Drew the Half Crazed East to California in 1849.

WAS A WILD RACE FOR RICHES

The Excitement Caused by the Discovery of the Precious Metal, the Fury With Which the "Yellow Fever" Raged and the Rush to the Coast.

One of the most exciting periods in the United States of a commercial character was the wild rush of people from the eastern part of the country to California in 1848 and 1849, following the announcement of the extensive discovery of gold. It looked as if the faces of all eastern people were turned west through the exaggerated stories that were published of the vast quantities of the yellow metal that were everywhere in evidence.

The height of the excitement was reached when on Dec. 5, 1848, President Taylor announced the discovery in his message. The abundance of gold was such, he said, as could hardly be believed were it not for the reports of officers on the public service who had seen the mines.

The first question that entered the mind of the eastern prospector was how to reach the diggings. Till spring came the overland route was closed. But the way by sea was open and to dwellers on the seaboard was far the better.

Then began a series of most unusual advertisements in the newspapers. Manufacturers of rubber goods advertised tents, beds, gold bags and camp outfits. One publisher got out a book containing fifty-four engravings of implements used in washing gold from sand. A manufacturer advised all going to the gold country to take along one of his gold washing machines. Such advertisements as "An oyster house will be sold low; proprietor is going to California," and "For sale, for a hundred dollars, half a light, easy business that pays a handsome profit, as the advertiser is going to California," became common.

Every ship, brig, schooner or sloop that was half fit to go to sea was scraped, painted, fitted with bunks or cabins and advertised as an A1, fair sailing, copper bottomed, copper nailed vessel, bound for San Francisco direct or via Chagres. Before the middle of December four ships loaded with adventurers left New York, and six others were to sail in a few days.

A New York paper found fifteen vessels loaded for California and reported many more ready to go to that country from Boston, Salem, Philadelphia, Baltimore and New Orleans.

Many went out as individuals, while thousands joined companies or associations which chartered or bought ships. Many associations chartered ships and sent them around the Horn, while they journeyed overland. Many of these associations had odd titles—as, for instance, "the New York Yellow Fever company."

By the end of January, 1849, eighty vessels had set sail for San Francisco via Cape Horn, fourteen for Chagres and two for Vera Cruz, carrying, all told, over 5,700 passengers.

The newspapers spread broadcast all sorts of exciting rumors, and with the arrival of each batch of letters the gold fever raged more fiercely than ever. A letter from a gentleman in California stated that lumps of gold a pound in weight had frequently been found and that good sized pieces could be dug from the crevices in the rocks. Every ship that sailed was so crowded that temporary houses were built on its deck, and by the middle of March more than 17,000 gold hunters had left for California.

Much trouble followed those who passed through Mexico, on account of the bitter feeling that had been engendered by the recent war with that country, and all along the route through Mexico were said to be strewn the bones of those who had been murdered.

Early in March the great emigration overland began, and scores of companies and thousands of men attached to no company set off for the gold fields. In less than three weeks, it is said, 2,850 wagons crossed the Mississippi at St. Joseph and 1,500 at Savannah Landing and Council Bluffs. The country, it was said, for miles and miles represented a great tented field. Toward autumn the first of the overland emigrants came streaming across the mountains. In less than two years after the discovery of gold close to 100,000 emigrants found their way to California in search of the yellow metal.

Bell Tones.

The peculiar magic in the tones of a bell is due to its striking not a single note, but a chord, and to obtain the perfect octave entails an immense amount of calculation as well as skill. The bell caster, therefore, has to be not a mere mechanic, but a highly trained specialist.

His Little Joke.

"How'd you like a pair of police man's shoes?"

"I'm afraid they'd pinch me," answered the wayfarer, with a grin.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Natural Command.

"What did the surgeon do when he started to vaccinate the regiment?"

"I suppose he ordered them to present arms."—Baltimore American.

It is easier to find a thousand recruits than one general.

Frequently a young man has so much common sense that a college education does not unfit him for a useful career.

MANY SOLDIERS SEEN IN ORAN

More French there than in any town in France.

EVERY PLACE FULL OF THEM

Streets, Cafes, Cars, Stores, all Crowded in Algerian town—Graphic Story of Scenes.

ORAN, Algeria, April 24.—There are more French soldiers to be seen in Oran than in any town in France. Those in France are at the front or in the points of concentration near the front. They are there right enough, but one does not see them—at the front because they are in the trenches.

But in Algeria it is different. The streets are full of soldiers; so are the cafes, the street cars, the stores, the docks, the public gardens. The official figures give the population of Oran at 130,000. To the casual visitor, there seem to be at least half as many soldiers besides.

And they are all French—French or French colonial, not allied troops. Besides the casual, familiar army types, there is every kind of exotic fighting man, including native troops from Indo-China, looking more like Japanese than anything else, and uniformed as ordinary French colonials of the line. There are the zouaves, with their baggy red breeches and khaki puttees, now o' days, instead of the white gaiters of the old parade days before the war.

Their short, black-braided jackets, sashes and blouses, however, are unchanged. There are the Chasseurs d'Afrique—the African light cavalry—with sky-blue uniforms and red fezes, the most elegant of French military horsemen. More gorgeous, however, are the "tirailleurs," the sharpshooters, equally in sky-blue uniforms, faced with yellow, and also wearers of fezes. On active service this magnificence is supplanted by khaki and khaki fezes, upon which a star and crescent indicate that the wearer is a follower of the prophet.

More characteristic of the country are the "spahis"—Mohammedan troops, officered by Frenchmen. They wear flowing scarlet cloaks and the soldiers wear turbans and native costumes; the officers, unequal to coping with the turban, content themselves with fezes, but sacrifice nothing of the resplendent scarlet cloak. The most picturesque, and the most numerous, are the "gouma," the Arab cavalry regiments raised by the Arabs themselves. They wear the flowing white garments, the "bournous" of the desert.

Scenes at Tea Time.

At tea time any sunny afternoon the Bouvelard Seguin, the principal street of Oran, is crowded with these uniforms and more besides. The terrasse of the Cafe Continental hasn't a vacant table, and the tables cover the sidewalk almost to the curb. There are no regulations about the hours at which drinks may be served in Algeria for the war is far away and the garden of Africa is for those who are sent to rest to forget the war for a while, for the convalescents and for those who stop a few days or a few weeks between service in France and service in Macedonia or Egypt or wherever else the world of war may send them.

There are French sailors in Oran, too, for Oran is France's nearest naval port to the Straits of Gibraltar, and the greatest amphitheatre harbor, so full of ships of commerce, whose constructed wharves are piled with stacks of grain and acres of wine casks, is also an important naval base.

GOOD AND BAD MANNERS.

And the Brand Used in the Privacy of the Home Circle.

There are three sorts of manners—good, bad and the sort that are used in the privacy of the home circle. The last named sort are usually the worst.

Good manners seldom come naturally to any male. This is proved by the fact that they must generally be hammered into small boys with a large, robust cane, the flat of the hand or the rear side of a hairbrush. As the boy grows to manhood he displays his native bad manners by telling his wife what he'd like to say to the tiresome folk who come to call and the people who give parties which he is expected to attend. His early training, however, prevents him from exhibiting his bad manners in public. Occasionally a male child is blessed with good manners from birth, but he usually expires with exceptional thoroughness shortly before or immediately after his fifth birthday.

Men with bad manners are generally very successful in life because their competitors and opponents lose their tempers, thus making it easy for the persons with the bad manners to defeat them. Before a bad mannered person becomes wealthy he is known as a selfish boor. Afterward he is said to be eccentric.

There is grave danger that while a bad mannered person is still in the boor class some strong minded and strong muscled individual may resent his bad manners and spread his features hither and you over his face with a few brisk and well directed blows of a pair of No. 11 fists. If one cares to run the risk, bad manners are great things on which to gamble.—Kenneth L. Roberts in Life.

O'REGAN BACK TO TORONTO

Officer and Munition Board Clerk Extradited

TORONTO, April 26—A. R. O'Regan, a former employee of the Imperial Munitions Board and a captain in the Canadian Expeditionary Force, was turned over to Detective Cronin in Buffalo, after O'Regan had unsuccessfully contested extradition proceedings on a charge of theft.

O'Regan's post with the Munitions Board was that of a clerk. It is alleged that his books, on examination some three weeks ago, disclosed discrepancies amounting to more than $1,000. He was asked for an explanation, and in turn requested permission to leave the office to return with other books.

He did not return. He was found in Buffalo later and placed under arrest.

MANY IRISHMEN SERVE IN ENGLISH REGIMENTS.

DUBLIN, April 24. — In a letter read at a luncheon to the officers of the Irish Canadian Rangers on their visit here, John Redmond quoted statistics to show the large number of Irishmen who had enlisted in the army outside of the Irish regiments. The Irish leader said:

"From Ireland itself, according to the latest official figures, 175,773 Irishmen are serving in the navy and army, representing all classes and creeds among our people.

"From careful inquiries made through the churches in the north of Ireland and Scotland, from the casualty lists and from other sources, the calculation has been made on high authority that at least 150,000 sons of the Irish race, most of them born in Ireland itself, have joined the colors.

"In Great Britain it is a pathetic circumstance that these men are almost forgotten except when their names appear in the casualty lists of non-Irish regiments. Some of the Irish papers have for a considerable time past been publishing day by day special casualty lists under the heading "Irish Casualties in British Regiments."

Occasionally a woman makes a fool of a man but more often she makes him make a fool of himself.

BRITISH SCORE MORE VICTORIES IN FRANCE AND IN MESOPOTAMIA

Field Marshall Haig Reports Capture of Strong Positions in the Neighbourhood of Roeux and Gravrelle While General Maude States That British Have Advanced North of Samara and the Turks Are Retreating Hurriedly Leaving Stores and Equipment Behind.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, April 27.—Capture of the quarries of the eastern outskirts of Haricourt, the Germans fleeing and hurriedly abandoning rifles and equipment ,was reported by Field Marshal Haig to-day. Strong positions having important bearing on the Wotan line, in the neighbourhood of Roeux and Gavrelle, and adjacent to the Arras-Cambrai Road, were also taken by the British, with prisoners and machine guns.

LONDON, April 27.—General Maude to-day reports a further advance by the British northeast of Samara, with the Turkish army retreating hurriedly, leaving stores and equipment behind them in their flight. It is stated that a Turkish army corps is entrenching along the Jebel Mountains, famous in Bible history, with apparently the intention of giving battle to the advancing British. The Russians in Persia are again active, and big Turkish forces are liable to be squeezed between the two big Allied armies.

Enemy Destroyers Fire at Ramsgate

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, April 27.—German destroyers evidently attempting a raid on Ramsgate were driven off by British patrol vessels, the Admiralty announced to-day.

"Enemy destroyers fired at Ramsgate," the statement said. "Fire was immediately returned and the enemy driven off."

Shells from the German destroyer raiding squadron falling on Ramsgate killed a man and a woman, injured three other persons and damaged twenty-one houses and two stables, according to the official statement. A number of their shots fell in the open country.

PARIS (French Official Communique), April 27. — General Nivelle's troops gained more ground around the blood-soaked fields of Hurtebise and Cerny, and stormed and captured German trenches on the Heights of Moronvilliers, to-day's official statement said. Since April 16, in the district between Soissons and Auberive, the French have captured 130 cannon from the Germans. Artillery firing was very active in the sector from Nanteuil to Sancy, the War Office reported. South of St. Quentin the Germans suffered heavy losses in several raids, particularly in those attempted next to the Forest of St. Gobain.

General Haig's statement admitted that the Germans were temporarily successful in a minor attack last night in the neighbourhood af Fayette, northwest-north of Quentin, but the attackers were later driven off, leaving many prisoners in British hands.

LONDON, April 27.—Two German counter attacks against new Allied position around Lake Doiran, Macedonian front, were repulsed, an official statement from Salonika declared to-day. The consolidation of the new Allied positions is continuing.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 27.—The Anglo-French Mission to the United States will visit Canada towards the end of May. Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, Marshal Joffre and Vice-Premier Viviani, will be the guests of the Duke of Devonshire here.

AMSTERDAM, April 27.—Bitter reproach for striking muntions workers and demands that they return to work in this hour of Germany's need, is expressed in the proclamations signed by General Groener, Director of Munitions and plastered all over Berlin to-day. Despatches from the German capital quoted part of his proclamation as follows: "The army needs muntions, who dares stop work fhen Hindenburg commands it? Strike instigators must be branded as traitors and listeners to their words as cowards. The nation's existence is at stake." Von Bethmann-Hollweg has also issued a threatening proclamation.

LONDON, April 27.—Lloyd George, in his Guild Hall speech, appealed to his audience, and through them to the British people, to lay aside all differences and aid in the settlement of the Irish question. "I appeal to the patriotism of all men to sink everything and get the question out of the way," said Lloyd George. No part of the Prime Minister's inspiring speech was more enthusiastically cheered than this appeal.

PETROGRAD, April 27.—There is active artillery fighting along the Riga front, particularly in that sector where Russia started her December offensive.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Further assurance that Russia has no intention of concluding a seperate peace reached the State Department this afternoon in a cablegram from M. Milukoff, responding to a message of the American Jewish Committee.

LONDON, April 27.—The desperate efforts of the Germans to drive the British from the captureds heights on the Arras front have failed after four days of the bitterest fighting that the world has seen since the bloody days of Verdun. Tens of thousands of Germans were hurled forward again and again only to recoil, blasted and withered from the inferno caused by the British fire. Military critics expect that the attack will be renewed again if the German power can stand the awful drain. They base this expectation on the great strategical importance of the blood-soaked heights which they have wrested from their foes. These hills crown the great plain of Douai, and their unmolested retention by General Haig spells almost certain doom to the Wotan line, the last protecting barrier before Douai and Cambrai. In contrast to his previous strategical methods of concentrating the fury of his attack on particular spots in the German line, front despatches to-day indicate Field Marshal Haig was adopting the plan of kepeing his whole front steadily pushing in a great concerted movement.

A special meeting of the Council will be held to-night at 7.30 o'clock, to receive the report on the interview with the Quaker Oats officials, in Chicago, and also to consider the advisability of emergency measures to restrict the outbreak or rabies reported by Dr. Amys, M. O. H. City Solicitor Gordon has prepared a by-law, which may be passed if the Council considers the situation demands it whereby dogs may be quarantined for ninety days.

Dr. Amys stated to-day that it was already apparent that the owners of valuable dogs had tied them up until there is assurance that the danger is passed. It should also be remembered that there are numerous dogs in the vicinity of the city that will be allowed to roam the outlying streets in spite of local by-laws. There has always been a strong feeling that the dog population has been too large, and if the present agitation leads to the passing of some of the homeless curs it will have had some small measure of benefit.

Mr. Cole Barrett, who was bitten by the dog which was infected with rabies, left this afternoon for Toronto to take the Pasteur treatment.

Dr. Amys makes the request that if any person is bitten the dog be not shot but locked up in order to discover whether it has rabies or not.

Minor Accident In Motor Parade

Last night's motor parade was remarkably free from accidents. At the down town street corners where the traffic policemen were on duty the whirling eddies of motor cars and bicycles was efficiently directed. A minor mishap was reported from the parade by Mr. Alex Irwin, 352 Water street. The procession came to a stop and Mr. Irwin consequently drew up his car near the Hunter street corner. The next car in the rear was at a considerable distance but seemed to put on speed to close up the gap. It bumped into the Irwin car denting the back of it in which it left the impression of the hood and other features. Mr. Irwin reports that the car behind was driven by Mr. D. M. Minnecola.

"VICTORY BECOMING INCREASINGLY ASSURED"

LONDON, April 27.—"Victory is becoming increasingly assured," was the confident note sounded to-lay by Premier Lloyd George in a Guild Hall speech. "Before June, 1915, we lost 84 guns and a number of prisoners; thereafter we have not lost a single gun while we captured 400 and have taken prisoners at a ratio of ten of the enemy for one of our. During the first eighteen days of the battle of the Somme," the Prime Minister asserted, "we captured 11,000 prisoners and 54 guns. In the same period around Arras recently we took 18,000 prisoners and 230 guns. Our gains were thus quadrupled.

"This means not only ultimate victory but at less loss. Our chances are growing as our equipment is improving, and the Germans know it—which explains the despair which is driving them into black piracy on the sea."

OTTAWA, April 26.—In consequence of the small numbers of recruits offering for the Home Defence army, and the departure from Canada of nearly all the expeditionary forces units recruited during the winter, coupled with the fact that new recruits for the expeditionary force are coming forward in comparatively small numbers, the summer camps will be sparsely attended this year.

Niagara Camp, Barriefield Camp near Kingston, Camp Hughes near Brandon, and Camp Vernon in British Columbia will be used again, but it is doubtful if there will be sufficient men in training to make it worth while to open up Valcartier Camp and Camp Borden. The last-named camp will be used for the Aviation Training School, but there will be nothing like the numbers of troops that were assembled there last year. According to the present outlook, it is probable that Valcartier Camp will not be required at all this summer, except possibly as a mobilization centre for troops departing overseas.

The recent heavy fighting on the Canadian front and the ensuing casualties have made it necessary for the 5th Division, under Major-General Garnet Hughes, to leave sooner than was expected for the front, and in consequence there has been a speeding-up in the movement of troops in Canada to fill the gap left by the 5th Division in England.

A letter has been received from Gunner Sydney Armstrong, son of Mr. F. D. Armstrong, Margaret Ave., written April 8th.

At time of writing he was well and his battery was quite busy. A number of Peterborough boys are in the same locality, including Pte. Sam. Saunders, whom Sid saw on the afternoon of writing. He writes that Gunner Norm Laing is in London and away from the big "push."

Lieut. T. W. Quinn and Lieut. V. J. McElderry have been appointed as subalterns in the 57th Regiment, C. D.F., their names appearing in orders to-day.

BRITISH CARRY FOE'S TRENCHES WITH BAYONET

PTE. HOWARD ROWE

PTE. HOWARD ROWE, late of the 93rd Battalion, who has been killed in action. He lived at 385 Mark street.

One Position on a Front of Three-quarters of a Mile Captured at Night Without a Shot Being Fired, the Cold Steel Doing the Work.

FIGHTING IS BITTER

From a Staff Correspondent of the Associated Press with the British Armies in France (via London), April 23.—Despite all the wondrous war weapons modern science has created, the cold steel of the bayonet has asserted itself anew in much of the recent bitter fighting as the arm of last appeal. As already related, the struggles about Monchy-le-Preux since Monday have attained an intensity unequalled by any of the fighting in the Somme campaign last year.

There was one German position north of the town, and paralleling the Scarpe River, which resisted four desperate attacks. It was finally decided to take this position at the point of the bayonet without a shot of any kind being fired to rob the attack of its surprise nature. The attack was made along a three-quarters of a mile front under cover of darkness.

Attack in Close Order.

The British battalions were formed in comparatively close order, and at the whispered command, repeated along the line, trudged forward into the night. Grim and silent figures they were, some in kilts, some in plain khaki, each man wearing a steel helmet, each having a firm grip of his rifle with fixed bayonet, the polished surface which, however, caught no reflecting glint in the enveloping darkness.

Overhead shells were droning, and back of the lines guns could be heard. But it was only a desultory bombardment going on, and there were fleeting intervals of strange quiet just where the determined line of British troops were approaching their unsuspecting grey-clad foes.

Four unsuccessful daylight assaults had left a touch of chagrin, which was to be wiped out in this "getting" of a man. There is little more to tell. The sound of the fighting in the trenches was lost in the British barrage, which closed down some distance behind the German position immediately the British signalled they had entered the position. This barrage cut off any German who attempted to flee from the bayonet charge.

Thus in ten minutes with the silent bayonet was secured a position which had held out for two days.

The bayonet also has come in effectively in dealing with the ever-troublesome machine guns and gunners. A few brave men stealing out in the night have been able to accomplish much.

"Kamerad!" Ruse Tried Again.

Several British battalions have reported in the past few days that the Germans are again employing the old 'kamerad' ruse, suddenly standing up in the shallow trenches and holding up their hands and shouting

QUESTION OF U. S. SUPPLYING FIGHTERS TO WAIT FOR WHILE

In Meantime American Government is Giving Allies Complete Support in the Direction They Require by Sending Munitions and Food Supplies

BALFOUR TO REPORT

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The British War Commission's first formal report of the world war conference progress was framed by Foreign Secretary Balfour here to-day and will be cabled to London to-night.

It is understood Balfour is cabling his Government that the American Government is giving the Allies complete support and co-operation in the direction they require. It has been arranged that United States shipping to France and Britain shall be divided equally between munitions and food stuffs. It has been decided, it is understood, that the question of the United States supplying fighting men, except to its own navy, can wait for the time being.

China To Wage War On Kaiser

PEKIN, April 26.—At a conference of provincial and military governors at which the Premier presided, it was voted unanimously that China should enter the war against Germany.

A canvas shows that Parliament is overwhelmingly in favour of China declaring war, but President Lo Yuan Hung is still undecided on the question.

WHY?

There will be many acres of land, available otherwise, for growing potatoes that will not be cropped because of the scarcity and prohibitive prices of seed potatoes. Why should the prices be prohibitive? Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour, says he has made investigation and there is no scarcity of potatoes in Canada; that there is a surplus of two million bushels over and above food demands, and seed demands.

The price when honest conditions prevail, of food or other commodities, is regulated according to the law of supply and demand. If there are as many potatoes in Canada available as Mr. Crothers says, there should be no such high prices.

Mr. Crothers is bound by his official responsibility and relation to the public to tell us why prices are so high with the existence of the big surplus he announces. If the high price is due to some sort of manipulation or combination, it is distinctly contrary to the law, whose enforcement is the special province of the Minister of Labour.

WHOLESOMENESS OF CRITICISM.

Mr. R. B. Bennet, the embodiment of western verbal breeziness, doesn't like criticism. In a rather bitter speech in parliament on Wednesday, he accused Liberals of lack of patriotism, by criticizing in war time.

It, however, seems to reasonable thinking, that war time, in view of the tremendous responsibilities resting upon us, and the tremendous issues depending upon proper and efficient action, is the very time when criticism is demanded. The Old Country journals and public men have, at least, as much interest in the right management of the war as we have; and they can keenly criticize without being subjected to the charge of disloyalty to national interests.

To keep silence and eschew criticism when official inefficiency invites peril to national interests, is criminal, and criticism becomes a duty. A government or government official doing its duty honestly and fearlessly, should be so honest in purpose as to invite criticism, so loyal to the interests intrusted to it as to wish to avoid mistakes. In the abstract, an incumbent of a position of responsibility, who claims immunity from criticism, tantamounntly claims license to go wrong, to make mistakes with impunity, no matter what great interests are imperilled.

It may be that we have had a little overmuch criticism of government war management, or mismanagement; but Heaven knows where mismanagement would have reached if watchful and justified criticism had not exposed rascality and waste and "graft," and by such exposure put an end to them—in one form, and till the next time.

RESTITUTION.

The following from the Ottawa Evening Journal is interesting:

Henri Bourassa's name was mentioned in the press room last night, and something was said about the war opinions of his paper, Le Devoir. This caused Georges Pelletier, its representative, to remark that on Saturday next, Victor Barbeau, of the editorial staff, would leave for England to join the Royal Flying Corps, and that he would be the ninth member of the editorial staff of that paper to go on active service.

Then with a laudable desire to say a good word for the Nationalist wing of the government party, the Journal adds:

The significance of this is somewhat startling. Le Devoir has probably sent as many editorial men to the front in proportion to their numbers as any other newspaper in Canada. Some are in the British army, some in the Canadian army, some in the French army, and one in the British air service.

It would have perhaps spoiled a good deal of the effect of what it aimed at in excuse of the shortcomings of the Nationalist allies of its party, to have added something of greater "significance" than the enlistment for active service of nine members of the editorial staff of Le Devoir. It might have commented on the "significance" of the fact that Le Devoir in its disloyal Nationalist doctrine of Canada owing no duty to the Empire, preached by Le Devoir, with the patronage of the Borden government, with its practical sympathy and tangible recognition, has been responsible for keeping as many as nine French-Canadian battalions from the front.

Le Devoir, circulating amongst the parishes of Quebec—and in the last election circulated by the help of government money, that is the campaign funds of the government party—and advocating the abstention of Quebec people from enlistment to help in this great war of liberty and justice, had the effect of giving a black eye to recruiting, and kept thousands of gallant young French men from the ranks who, if they had not been mislead by Le Devoir and its sympathisers and co-workers—in Cabinet positions—would have leaped to the ranks to fight for British liberty, and the glory of la belle France. Le Devoir, as well as the party allied with its principles and propaganda, has much to answer for and the going of nine members of its staff to the front is scant restitution and petty compensation for the thousands it has kept from joining the ranks.

PUNISHMENT AND IMPUNITY.

Despatches state that, owing to the heavy cost, and improbability of conviction, the Manitoba government has decided not to proceed with the trial of Sir Rodmond Roblin and his ex-ministerial colleagues, under indictment for criminal association with, and responsibility for, financial frauds in connection with the construction of the parliament buildings. The provincial government seems to have had its desire for justice satisfied with the three-quarters of a million dollars the province will receive in respect of over-payment on government buildings from the firm of Thomas Kelly, now serving a term in the penitentiary in connection with these matters.

It is a nice point to decide whether governments are subject to the same code of ethics as private individuals. In private life and ordinary administration of justice, it would strictly be compounding a felony by waiving criminal proceedings on condition of restitution, though this is often done, and with colourable justification.

Then there is this to be considered: A premier of a province, and bearing a title, too, holding a position of distinction and high honour, if he's at all sensitive of soul and jealous of his official and personal honour, may be considered to have had a very severe punishment in being condemned by the emphatic voice of the people at a general election, cast out of office, and indicted for felony. He will be an object of obloquy, and have a smudged page in the history of his country. By comparison, Sir Rodmond Roblin and his colleagues have already been conspicuously punished by disgrace that would be torture to honourable men, by the loss of position and prestige, compared with the treatment of another public man who was very much mixed up in these same crookednesses.

Why try and possibly convict and clap into jail Sir Rodmond and his ministerial colleagues, when another public man, with no better reputation, with no greater doubt of his implication in dishonestly dishonourable practices and of cynical attitude of contempt of public opinion, is sponsored and patronized by the Premier of Canada: taken in his company, into the presence of the King, and into the company of honourable British statesmen, with the shame, if not the sense of it, of unrepentant political rascality rank upon him. And to think that in the face of Premier Borden's unbelievable chaperonage—the palpable impossibility of the idea—this man is said to be actually in line with the Canadian High Commissionership in London—to fill the shoes of honest and honourable men, with unclouded reputations like Sir Charles Tupper and Lord Strathcona. Canada is shedding the blood of her best; her thousands of homes are darkened by their deaths, nobly braved and met for the sake of justice and honour and honourable ideals; and shall Canada suffer the humiliation of having the ideals we fight and bleed for and die for, outraged at the court of the Empire by the presence of one whom every decent man would be humiliated to be compelled to regard as a representative of honourable Canadians?

INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY OF A MAN BEING MASTER OF HIMSELF

It sounds big. It may be great. But always it is perilous. What may work out either to the glory or to the shame of life in the democratic citizenship of Canada is involved in the elementary fact of Canadian government, that a man may be master of himself.

Autocracy in Germany may yield efficiency in the doing of things. But autocracy is anathema because it destroys freedom in the life of men. He may do this thing or he may do that thing, but in the thing he does a man under authority is not free.

Freedom carries with it, its very soul, the stupendous responsibility of a will to choose the wrong. And freedom justifies itself, before angels and before men, when, in the free moral choices of the will, the right is chosen and the good is done.

But if, even in these awful times of war, citizenship in Canada, as compared with the bureaucracy of Germany, is uncompelled and unrestrained, all the more absolute is the moral compulsion resting on every free Canadian citizen to do, to the utmost measure of his ability, the service which he can render and which needs to be done.

Recruits for the Canadian army, for service either in defence of Canada at home of in defence of Canadian ideals in Europe, may never be conscribed. Every man, in the judgment hall of his own conscience, is master of himself. But conscription by a recruiting sergeant is not half so direct, not half so insistent, not half so inescapable, as when a man's own moral master, in the solemn silence of his own soul, says "You must go."

And a man may have the right to say to his fellow-man, "I won't"; but the man who is deaf to the monitor whose unspoken "must" is life's supreme imperative—that man may escape the sergeant at the recruiting office, but from the sleepless raven at his chamber-door there can be no escape. The man is a moral suicide who, to duty's "Thou shalt," makes answer "won't." Sooner or later the raven comes home to roost.

And the case is not different if the man is a farmer with a farm whose food-production power is large, but who chooses not to heed the world's cry for food. The officer of the law may not say "Produce"; but if the farmer says "I could, but I wont," the blood of those who starve because of his neglect will, in the unerring judgments of the year of hunger, be required at that farmer's hand.

So, too, is it with the slacker and the idler, and the youth who anywhere does less than his best. And so with us all. It is a testing time, this time of war in a free country like Canada. Every day is a day of judgment for the man who is master of himself. To every man his work. From every man his best. And in the judgment hall of a man's own conscience there is no shuffling.—Toronto Globe.

HISSED BY DINERS FOR WAR SPEECH

Bourke Cockran had the unpleasant and, for him, unusual experience of being heartily hissed at a dinner when he made an attack on the motives of the belligerents in the European war. Mr. Cockran was speaking at the war dinner of the Society of Illustrators, held in the Majestic Hotel, New York.

Cass Gilbert, the architect, swept the diners off their feet with enthusiasm when he took issue with Mr. Cockran and warmly praised England and France for the glorious fight they are waging on Prussian autocracy.

Mr. Cockran denounced the European war as "the most sordid in the history of the world," said that until the entry of the United States no belligerent nation could give a reason for being a participant, and asserted that to compare the aims and motives of the belligerents with those of savages in any war would be sufficient to humiliate and degrade the savages.

Here and there from the table came a hiss—then the hisses became more frequent. Diners leaned over to whisper to one another. Lord Aberdeen, one of the principal guests, sat as though dazed. Then Mr. Gilbert arose.

"I differ with Mr. Cockran in one respect," he said, with a voice he had difficulty in controlling because of his emotion. "The war in Europe has not been one of selfishness nor aggrandisement. The Allies have been fighting for the principle of democracy——"

At this point he was interrupted by a demonstration.

"I want to say a word of appreciation," said Mr. Gilbert, "for the great battle for liberty which England has been making. She stood secure. No one could harm her. But for the sake of the liberty of a smaller nation and for democracy, like a knight errant of old, she went in, knowing her weakness.

"England's fleet has been our defence and guide, and I take off my hat to the flag which flies from its masthead. We are Allies, now, thank God, and together we can fight the greatest battle in the world—the battle for democracy."

Numberless people think they are No. 1.

Music & Drama

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

Irving Berlin's syncopation, "Stop! Look! Listen!" with its "raggy" music, clever specialties and young and vivacious chorus entertained a large audience at the Grand Opera House last night. While there was nothing strikingly original in the music, much of which was built on "Alexander's Rag-time Band" lines, it at least went with a snap and vim, and one melody, "The Girl on the Magazine," was particularly pleasing. The big feature of the production was the specialties. Al. B. White proved an original comedian, who got his two topical songs, "Father Wanted Me to Learn a Trade," and "I Love a Piano," over in great style, while he scored in an amusing monologue in which he discussed matrimony, Billy Sunday and other interesting topics. Alton and Allen contributed some of the cleverest eccentric dancing the Grand has ever seen in many a day and were enthusiastically received, while a "ragtime meoldrama" was an amusing bit of foolery. Altogether, "Stop! Look! Listen!" was bright and entertaining.

PETEBROROUGH

American Aviator Says U. S. Could Crush German Army By Force Of 5,000 Aircraft

(By an American Aviator Who has Served in France.)

NEW YORK.—The United States has already taken, or is about to take, three important steps to bring the great war to a successful conclusion. Congress has appropriated $7,000,000,000. The extensive programme for supplying a fleet of cargo ships has been placed in charge of Gen. Goethals. The question of universal service has virtually been decided, most observers believe, and upon the actual passage of the Chamberlain bill the third great step will be completed.

The next important thing which may be consummated in the shortest possible time is undoubtedly the assurance of the supremacy of the air to the Allies by the United States. The recent successes on the western front have been due primarily to the aeroplane service and its co-ordination with the artillery.

AEROPLANES THE CANNON'S EYES.

Aeroplanes are the eyes of the guns. They are means for destroying communication roads and railroads in the rear of the enemy's lines; with them enemy's artillery can be completely paralyzed; while they are the only really effective means of keeping the enemy's aviators from interfering with our own operations.

Three types of aeroplanes have been developed for three phases of this work: First, hunting machines, or battle planes; second, bombing planes; third, observation planes for regulating artillery and taking photographs of troop movements and trench conditions.

ONLY THREE MONTHS TO TRAIN PILOTS.

Because of the difficult work, it takes six to eight months to train the pilots for the hunting or battle machine, almost that length of time for the bombing plane, but only three months, at a maximum, to train pilots for reconnaissance. These pilots form the largest proportion of the Ally Flying Corps.

It is obvious from these facts which have been demonstrated since the beginning of the war that the United States could give effective aid the most quickly to the Allies by furnishing both planes and pilots. We are now manufacturing a satisfactory number of engines for French and English aeroplanes. With our automobile industries turned loose on this work it would be easy for us to make 100 times as many as we are making now. We could utilize our canoe, furniture manufacture and kindred trades for work upon the planes and bodies of the machines. Our output of aeroplanes of the type found most efficient abroad would be enormous. Five thousand planes could be turned out in about four months after the first production.

COULD BUILD PLANES AS AUTOS

We could build aeroplanes as fast as we now produce automobiles. We could assail the German lines with flocks of planes, whose bombs and machine guns and assistance to our friends' artillery would turn and drive the German armies across the Belgian frontier and force them back to their position on the Rhine in one-tenth the time it would take for us to equip, train, and send a sufficient army to do this work.

Our men have the best temperament of any in the world for flying. They are both daring and accurate. Their courage is unquestionable. We have already proved that our men can fly and fly well. This is brought out by the report that more than 100 German planes have been brought down with a loss of only seven American aviators.

We could use these men as a nucleus for a gigantic flying corps. Within five months we could assume all the reconnaissance work of the English and French armies, leaving their reconnaissance pilots free to take up hunting and bombing machines.

ONE AVIATOR WORTH 500 INFANTRY.

One airman is worth 500 infantrymen. The plane is the only thing before. The moral influence of a sky really sees and feels in modern warblack with American aeroplanes would drive the Teutonic forces back to the Rhine.

Our industrial leaders in this country have already classified possible plane and motor factories as well as suitable training grounds. Regarding actual shipping it will be remembered that a plane takes little space when carefully folded and packed, and that few ships would be needed for the transport of those aeroplanes.

We have now in this country 200 airmen who could at once be sent abroad to begin work. The applications for the flying corps of our army are more numerous than for any other single branch of the army.

It is being strongly urged by many that every citizen telegraph, write and telephone to his representative in Congress, advocating passage of necessary legislation or the giving of necessary orders to make Germany feel that the United States is able and willing to take up Germany's submarine challenge and to answer it a thousandfold by overwhelming her from the air. America, which invented the aeroplane, should prove that she can accomplish that most merciful object of quickly finishing the war by the use of her invention.

ENLISTED WITH HEAVY BATTERY IN PHILIPPINES

Mr. Robert Begley has received a letter fro ma former protegee, Chas. Ross, who wrote from Corrigador, Phillipine Islands, that he had enlisted in the heavy artillery. Voice of The People

Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—It is rumoured around town that there are about thirty-five Government Inspectors of Munitions who are ablebodied men and quite capable of bearing arms in the present emergency at the battle front, and that their places could be readily filled by our loyal young ladies who are better qualified than these men are by reason of their bright intelligence and the better education they have received at our Collegiate Institute and Commercial Colleges, and similar institutions and thus add to our man power in the work of the war. Our authorities could contribute their bit to the war by investigating the matter and cause the desired change to be made and, if necessary, appeal to the Government for that purpose.

Yours truly,

LOYALTY.

April 23, 1917.

P. S.—If any of the returned wounded soldiers can fill the bill they should be given the preference. To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The local Automobile Association and Red Cross Society are to be congratulated on the very excellent show held at the Armouries last evening. As one who was in attendance may I remark that the only striking defect was the continual deafening crash of two brass bands, each one evidently trying to outdo the other. One would just get into conversation with a companion or an agen when, crash would go the bands, and only by the greatest effort could a word be heard.

If the bands would eliminate half of their selections and for the remaining half give something more subdued it would add 100 per cent. to the enjoyment of the occasion; the best music is not necessarily the loudest noise.

In conclusion, it may be remarked that remarks of annoyance on account of the unpleasantness of such a plethora of deafening band music were to be heard on all sides.

Yours.

"One who wihes to hear what is to be said about the Exhibits.

Wealthy Woman Recluse Dies With Her Secret

NEW YORK, April 27. — Miss Fannie White, Flushing's wealthy recluse, who left her house only twice in 25 years, once for a few hours to attend the funeral of her mother, and the second time when she became so ill that she was taken to the local hospital, died a couple of days ago. She was 60 years old.

Year after year Miss White remained secluded in her home at No. 56 Broadway, Flushing, at Prince street. In front of her door trolley cars of the New York and Queens County Railway Company whizzed by day and night. On the Prince street side a terminal of the New York and North Shore trolley company is situated. Scores of persons sometimes hundreds would stand there waiting for cars to Whitestone, Bayside, Roslyn, Mineola and Hicksville, but Miss White never showed any disposition to be one of the crowd. No one ever learend the secret of her withdrawal from the world.

Time after time Miss White had been urged to go out into the fresh air but she would never accede until a years ago when her mother died. rode in a carriage to the grave, a. when she got home again practically locked herself in her home.

All efforts to get her to venture outdoors were unavailing until a recent illness reached such an alarming state that the physician in attendance told her that it would be necessary to remove her to the hospital to save her life. She at first refused to go but she became unconscious and no one was there to take care of her, and she was taken to the hospital. That was on Tuesday.

Whenever it was necessary for any work to be done around the place, Mortimer Hamilton did it. Hamilton, who is more than 70, was never allowed to enter the place. He got his orders through the closed blinds. Up to three years ago Miss White's brother, C. Wortman White, lived with her, but he was taken to the hospital, where he still is, a patient suffering from gangrene poisoning.

Miss White was placed in a room adjoining the ward where her brother is ill. Her condition was so serious that she did not know her brother was there.

She was a daughter of the late Coles W. White, once one of the best known insurance agents in Queens. He amassed a fortune. After his widow died the estate, including valuable real estate in Flushing, fell to Miss White and her brother. She always refused to sell any of her holdings.

Miss White's brother Frank, to whom she was greatly attached, disappeared one Christmas morning twenty-five years ago. A country wide search was made for him. After the ice cleared away from Flushing Bay his body was found there.

Opening Day Of The Motor Show Proved To Be A Big Success

Monster Parade Was Witnessed by Several Thousand Citizens —Prize-winners in the Drawing Contest—Show Will Be Open To-night and All Day To-morrow—Band Will Be in Attendance—Exhibits Are Exceptionally Good.

The first day of the Motor Show was a huge success. Despite the uncertainty of he weather large crowds turned out in the evening to witness the big automobile parade in which two bands and nearly three hundred automobiles participated. The officials of the Red Cross Society, under whose auspices the three-day show is being held, were more than delighted at the result of the first day. Like the conventional fall fair, the first or opening day is usually characterized by a lot of preparation so that to-day and to-morrow may be expected to prove even more attractive than yesterday. The Show will be open this afternoon and evening and all day to-morrow, closing at ten o'clock Saturday evening. The all day session to-morrow will enable the visiting farmers to give the big show a once over and see the latest creations of the automobile industry.

The Parade.

The monster parade held last evening was one of the largest and best of its kind ever held here. Shortly after seven o'clock the first car moved off, headed by one of the two bands mounted on one of the large trucks of the Canadian General Electric Company. The second band headed the second section of the parade mounted on another of the company's trucks. The cars, which were gayly decorated for the occasion, proved a source of interest for the thousands of spectators who lined the sidewalks. Later on in the evening the large section of the crowd found its way to the Armouries, where Peterborough's initial Motor Show is being held.

A Big Feature.

Apart from the splendid exhibit of motor cars of all descriptions and accessories, a big feature of the Show was the road model exhibit. This exhibit alone is worth the small price of admission. These models illustrate in miniture form the changes in the ideas of road builders from the days of the Roman Empire to the present.

A study of the models brings out the fact that in all ages stone, either in irregular broken fragments, or in the form of flat slabs or blocks, has been, and continues to be the principal wearing material for the road surface. In the majority of the more expensive types, such as bituminous macadam, and concrete and bituminous pavements, the stone still provides the resistance to wear, the various binding materials being employed to prevent movement of the stone and to produce a surface of monolithic character.

The ladies of the Red Cross Society are extremely gratified with the unbounded success the whole Motor Show has already proved to be and are unanimous in their praise of the splendid management by the men of the motor parade in the evening. The whole affair is running smoothly and the financial results very gratifying. At the door alone $60 was taken in, this does not include the tickets. At the flower booth $60 was received and at the candy about $25. To-day it is expected far larger sums will be realised as enormous supplies of fresh flowers and pounds of candies have been pouring in since the opening. The tea room is also a great attraction, twenty four daintily set tables being under the supervision of effecient assistants. Several tables being in the balcony overlooking the motor show. The tea room is open at night until the close of the motor show.

Prizewinners.

The following numbers represent the prizewinners in yesterday's drawing contest: 548, held by C. R. Canfield, winner of automobile tire; Number 537; winner of lap rug; name of holder not known. Number 591, winner of tire chains; name of holder not known.

The Bicyclists.

The pedal pushers' section of the big parade was well represented The popularity of this form of transportation is on the increase. A four-wheeled buckboard gasoline propelled outfit attracted a lot of attention in the bicycle parade.

A full band will be in attendance at the Show to-night and to-morrow.

Sales Reported.

Two Dodge cars were sold by the Manning garage yesterday. A third car, a Baby Grand Chevrolet, has also been disposed of to Mr. W. S. Dodd, local freight agent. This is the first Baby Grand Chevrolet to be turned out in Canada. It arrived in the city late yesterday afternoon.

Muskrat Season Closed

Large Catches Reported and the Quality of Fur Unusually Fine

The muskrat season closed last Saturday, 21st instant. The trapping in this district has been very successful in some sections, quite well ahead of last year's catch. The quality of the rat skins this season is said to be very fine, and have been sold for good prices. Barries Limited, fur manufacturers of this city, report having secured around 30,000 of these choice skins. This Rice Lake district produces a muskrat which is the choicest in the world, commanding the highest prices paid for a brown muskrat; a few Russian black and silver varieties alone bringing a higher price—this on account of their rarity, but not their quality. This year it was feared that owing to the fact that every trapper had to have a license, the catch would be much smaller, yet in this district it is estimated that in the neighborhood of 50,000 rats have been caught, representing in cash about $35,000 to $40,000. Barries' state that they purpose manufacturing all their rats in Peterborough into garments.

"Decisive Step in World's Progress."

Charleston News and Courier: "We believe that history will record the Washington council as a decisive step in the world's progress toward a new and happy order in human life, a new order happier for the German people as well as for the peoples now in arms against Germany."

French Officer Declares Nation's Direst Need Now Is Men On Firing Line

NEW YORK, April 26.—That France's direst need at present is men to place on her firing line and that she looks to the United States to send troops over there was the statement made yesterday by a French officer who arrived here. According to this officer, who would not give his name for publication, but who is fully cognisant of the situation, trained American troops in France, operating with their own base of supplies, would be more welcome there than any other help.

"France has sent her best and bravest into the fight," he said. "She is short of men. So great is the shortage at the present time that it has been found impossible to grant leave to the men of forty-nine and fifty years to return from the front for a period of six weeks to cultivate their land.

"As a result there are at present great stretches of fertile land lying uncultivated because there is no one to attend to it. The women, the old men and the boys are doing their part, but there are not enough of them. It had been intended to send back the older men, as was done last year, but it has been found impossible to do this.

"That is the situation. The sooner the United States can put her men in the field and take over sectors now held by France, the better off France and the other Allies will be."

The officer's impression is that the war will last for at least eighteen months. He believes that the United States, by starting to work on her army now, will be in a position to place a fighting force in the field within six months and by the end of a year to take over a considerable part of the western front.

Among the passengers was Captain Charles Sweeney, of the French Foreign Legion, who is here on a mission from the French government. Captain Sweeney said that he had been sent here to place himself at the service of the American government to instruct its officers in the methods of fighting practised on the western front.

"I hope to return with the first American expeditionary force," he said. "If not, then I will return to my own command."

Captain Sweeney has the honour of being the only American to hold a commission as captain in the French army. He enlisted in the Foreign Legion as a second class soldier. He received promotion for gallantry to sergeant after the battle of the Marne, and later, during the Champagne battle, he won his commission of lieutenant. At the same time he received the Croix de Guerre. Later he was twice wounded while saving his company commander and another officer, and for that won the Legion of Honour.

TO TEACH USE OF "TANKS."

Captain Sweeney said that after his return to the front upon his recovery he was placed in charge of a group of sixteen "tanks." During his stay here he hopes to train American officers in the use of the armored tractors, for which the French army has devised a special set of drill regulations and tactics.

On board the same steamship was Captain Lionel Corkins, of Oklahoma City, who has been in the Serbian service. Captain Corkins, who is a physician, at the outbreak of the war went to France, he said, and hoped to obtain a commission in the Medical Corps there. His knowledge of the language was not sufficient, however, so he went to Serbia, where he received a commission. From that time he saw continuous service with the Serbian troops. During the retreat of the remnants of the Seriban army to the Grecian border, Captain Corkins said, his regiment, the Twent--fourth, lost all its line officers and he took command. He took three hundred survivors of the regiment safely back. He hopes to receive a commission in the United States Army. If he does not, he stated, he will return to Serbia.

across to their opponents that they would surrender. Two battalions, believing in the sincerity of this proposal, started across to bring in the prisoners, but were immediately attacked.

Incidents like this have helped materially to give the element of bitterness to the fighting to a degree which has startled even those who have been in the battles since the first German rush through Belgium.

Bayonet Drill in Britain.

The British have given unceasing attention to the bayonet-fighting drill in the past two years. The month of training in England has been supplemented by post-graduate courses in the great training camps in France, and continued as the units pass through the corps into divisions, birdges and battalions. The night before the Arras attack some Sergeants could be heard giving their platoons last instructions. One of these groups formed a curious picture in the moonlight, where all the air was electric with preparations for the coming clash at dawn.

MOTOR TRACTORS PROVE THEIR WORTH

Demonstrations Already Made Establish Wisdom of Course Adopted

The results already achieved by the motor-tractors which are being put on the land to increase food production by the Provincial Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the Organization of Resources Committee, point to a splendid success for the Government's plowing, cultivating and harvesting campaign.

The tractor which first broke land in Halton County on Monday has demonstrated that one man with one tractor can do the work of two men and eight horses and at a cost of at least 50 cents an acre less, besides effecting a saving of time which in these days of stress is of inestimable value.

According to an announcement made yesterday by C. F. Bailey, Assistant Deputy Minister of Agriculture, tractors sent out by the department and placed by their district representatives, will be at work by the beginning of next week in the six counties of Carleton, Renfrew, Peterborough, Norfolk, Lambton and Waterloo. In addition requests are in from district representatives of five other counties, including Hastings, Welland, Halton, Essex and Kent.

25 Motor Tractors.

Three-furrow tractor plows and double-disc harrow attachments go with the tractor outfit, and it is expected that a fleet of at least 25 motor-driven tractors, which is now being mobilized, will be in action within a week. Careful records will be kept as to costs of operation and maintenance and by fall the department will be in a position to decide accurately as to the wisdom of entering into the whole scheme of motor-driven implements on a cast scale to ensure a tremendous increase of acreage for fall cultivation ready for the big drive next spring.

The tractors are placed on the farms by the department under an arrangement whereby the farmer pays only for the actual cost of operation and a small charge for the time of the mechanic during the time the tractor is actually in service on his land. The expense of lay-offs because of weather are borne by the province with the slight exception of the board of the mechanic. This arrangement gives the farmers of the province an exceptional opportunity to benefit by the time and labour-saving devices afforded by the motor-tractors. "The arrangement will advance the use of the motor-tractor by at least five years," said Mr. Bailey yesterday. "and so effect a remarkable increase of the producing areas within the province.

Car of Delaware Potatoes Selling Here At $5 A Bag

Mr. W. J. Oke received a carload of Delaware potatoes this morning, which may be the last car of white potatoes to come into Peterborough until the new crop is ripe. Other dealers have tried vainly to get supplies from the west, but their best offers have been exceeded by the representatives of wholesalers and retailrs from as far distant as Boston. These men are right on the ground throughout the western provinces and are buying up whatever supplies they can get their hands on.

But coming back to the car of Delawares they are retailing at 85 cents a peck in the stores or $5.00 a bag. Port Hope practically begged for a shipment from this car, saying that there were no potatoes there. Mr. Oke replied that he had 250 customers around Peterborough to supply first. Norwood took twenty bags, Hastings fifty bags, but the great bulk of the car was rushed to the local retail grocers and fruit stores. Mr. Oke stated that the dealers were offering some red potatoes from New Brunswick whence to-day's car came, but the whites seem to be exhausted. And not long ago Hon. Mr. Crothers, Minister of Labour, assured Canadians that there was a surplus of two million bushels of potatoes above the normal requirement Some body has been stringing the Minister, but no shadow of delusion remains with the people who are trying to put in seer at FIVE DOLLARS a bushel.

It is a bad well into which you must pour water, and he is a tiresome friend who is always looking to you for support.

MR. COLE BARRETT SAYS IT WAS NOT HIS DOG THAT BIT THE BOY

Mr. Cole Barret, 492 Cedar street, called at the Examiner Office this morning to contradict a statement made in the press that it was understood that it was his dog that bit the lad Saxby—who died about two weeks ago. His dog was all right, he says, till last Friday, when he became snarly and snappy. It was chained up all day Saturday; broke loose, but recovered on Sunday morning; when he bit Mr. Barret, and was immediately shot by his son. His dog had bitten another, which was at once destroyed. Mr. Barret went to Toronto to-day to receive pasteur treatment.

Though it is the natural thing to kill a dog that bites persons, it is not the best thing to do unless the animal is unmistakably mad. If the dog is confined in a safe place for a few days and if rabies does not develop, he may be set free. But when a dog is shot for biting and burned in the incinerator, all evidence is destroyed and there is no warrant for subjecting the bitten person to the Pasteur treatment.

It seems there is no proof that the dog that fatally bit the poor lad Saxby was destroyed, and it cannot be known how many other dogs he may have infected with his rabies. It becomes the duty, therefore, of the authorities to take steps to deal with the menace consisting in the unrestrained running at large of dogs. A veterinary surgeon has recently had to order destruction of dogs that showed symptoms of rabies.

Being able to adjust one's self to one's position isn't all; staying adjusted takes some ability, too.

Take a microscope to look for the average man's sense of duty and the average woman's sense of humor.

Euchre Party A Great Success

Enjoyable Affair in the Immaculate Conception Parish Hall

The euchre party held in the Immaculate Conception parish hall last night proved to be a decided success. The series of ten games held during the winter months was brought to a close, and the prizes distributed to the winners, the lucky players being Mrs. P. Menogue, Jr., and Mr. J. Primeau Sr., who each received a $5 gold piece.

After each evening's game prizes were given to the winners and last night these were obtained by Mrs. C. Corkery and Mr. J. J. Devlin, who received a hand painted picture and a tobacco pouch. The committee in charge are to be congratulated upon the fine success they have made of these evenings and the enjoyment they have afforded. After the prizes had been presented the following programme was rendered .

Violin Solo—Miss Barnes, Toronto.
Vocal Solo—Miss L. Hogan.
Vocal Solo—Mr. Robert Leonard.
Vocal Solo—Mrs. Fugere.

One comic act by three members of the club, Messrs. John Primeau, Dan Leonard and James May.

The last item on the programme was very amusing and pleased the audience greatly. The evening closed by singing the National Anthem.

The accompanists for the evening were Misses Sullivan and Giroux.

Those in charge wish to thank all those who helped to make these evenings the success and source of pleasure which they proved to be.

Petrograd Civilians Rushing For Moscow

Panic Caused by Fear of Teuton Invasion.

LONDON, April 26.—An exodus of civilians from Petrograd is reported in a dispatch to the Express from the Russian capital. One permit office was besieged on Tuesday morning by eight hundred people. Inquiries among them were answered by a shrug of the shoulders and the favorite Russian reply: "Who knows?"

The Express correspondent says that the reluctance of the travelers to explain their motives is due to the necessity of giving an adequate reason to the officials before securing a permit and supicion that their questioner was connected with the Government. He says that the anxiety to leave the city is generally attributable to the fear of a German advance on the capital. In order to secure a seat on a train for Moscow it is now necessary to book some days ahead.

Y. W. C. A. Closing Exercises Held Last Evening

About One Hundred and Sixty Girls Took Part—Each Number Was Carefully Planned, Trained and Carried Out

A large and delighted audience last night saw the Y. W. C. A. closing exercises in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. About 160 of the daintiest and best trained little girls took part in making the prettiest spectacular effect imaginable, and went through the most difficult and intricate drills and dances in a manner most complimentary to the careful training of Miss Caroline Littlefield, the physical director. Each number was carefully planned, trained and carried out, and costumes suitable to the part taken. The first number in which all the girls took part, wearing their trim little "gym" suits and carrying flags of the Allies, had the delightful effect of a huge kaleidoscope, and a very beautiful and animated one at that. This was followed by the Swedish system of gymnastics, in which the tiniest mite kept perfect time, moving in perfect rhythm to the music.

Wand Exercise.

The wand exercise, which is an exceedingly difficult form of physical training, was most gracefully executed by the senior school girls, and this was followed by the barn dances by the massed classes, and was also splendidly done. Club and dumbells were handled with the greatest ease and confidence by juniors and seniors and not one move forgotten by a single member. The Irish jig, in which fourteen of the senior school girls took part, was a very pleasing feature of the entertainment. The girls looked very pretty in their Irish peasant costumes of green and white. This and the Mazurta Destraineaux, in which the girls wore pretty Spanish costumes with tambourines, was encored again and again. "Spring" and the "classic dance" by the seniors in Greek costume were exceedingly prettily portrayed, every movement being grace itself.

The Highland fling and sailors' hornpipe, also by the Seniors, were very gracefully danced by the Seniors.

The Programme.

The programme was varied by two solos by Miss Kilmaster, whose beautiful voice called for many encores.

Miss Eloise Mannell, a tiny mite, delighted the audience by her delineation of the "Rose Petal" solo dance, which she danced with all the grace of a professional.

The audience was lost in admiration of the dainty little girl's skill and grace.

Mr. Gillespie, President of the Y. M. C. A., in a few words expressed his appreciation of the performance, and hoped the Y.M.C.A. might have occasion for lending the gymnasium for similar entertainments, thus bnding the two "Y's" more closely together. He said the Y. W. C. A. will probably in the near future, build a gymnasium large enough for such enterainmets, soon.

Dear Mary:

Iv'e just finished "putting down" my new linoleum and mattings. How neat and clean my kitchen looks! How cool my bedrooms are and how easy to sweep and keep tidy.

We certainly are fortunate in having a store where we can buy furniture and rugs and things by paying a small sum down and arranging the ballance to suit our convenience—Don't you think so?

When you come over and see how refreshed my whole home is since I've fixed the floors, you too will get some new linoleum and mattings.

Come over—HELEN.

CANADIAN OFFICERS LET YOUNG CELESTIAL SLIP INTO DOMINION

NOW THEY HAVE TO KEEP 15-YEAR-OLD CHINESE NEWSBOY OF DETROIT.

DETROIT, April 27. — Canadian immigration officials at Windsor are much embarrassed by the presence in their custody of Law Wa Chee, fifteen-year-old Chinese newsboy, whose residence was in Detroit until he crossed the border on Sunday evening to see the Kilties before they left for the east, was the Hotel Annex.

Law crossed on the ferry in company with a number of other newsboys and escaped the notice of the Canadian officials, despite the fact that a $500 head tax is imposed by the Dominion government on all Chinese entering the country. The boy was stopped by the United States inspectors when he tried to return.

He was sent back to Windsor and is boarding on the government while the American officials investigate his claim that he is entitled to readmittance as a person of American birth.

MAHOMET'S KIN, KING OF HEJAZ, RULES WITH IRON

NEW MONARCH IS GIVEN RECOGNITION BY THE ALLIED POWERS.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 26. — While European thrones are tottering, a new king has arisen in the Orient, and has been recognized by England, France and Italy. This is the so styled king of the Hejaz, who has hitherto been the grand shereef of Mecca.

The Hajaz is the villayet of Arabia, under nominal Turkish rule, which extends along the coast of the Red Sea for about half its length from north to south, and includes the two sacred cities of Mecca and Medina.

Hussein Ibn Ali, the new king, traces his lineage to the prophet Mahomet, and is probably the one Arab whose prestige is such that the fiercely independent Araob chieftains will universally admit his paramount claim to political, as well as spiritual authority.

Born in Mecca.

The king, born in Mecca, long an imperially favoured resident at Constantinople, was utterly loyal to Turkey until the Unionists (Young Turks) embarked on a campaign of ruthless persecution against his people. This insolence culminated in his letter, "To the shereef of Mecca:

"You have known that the government does not consider the Arabian peninsula as anything more than one of its many provinces. Indeed, we do not deem its inhabitants entitled to any special consideration or endowed with any qualities beyond those possessed by the meanest inhabitants of the waste deserts.

Want No Reform.

"We, therefore, do not wish that any demands be made for its reform or that thou shouldst tell us any further about its fallen worth. We have not forgotten the behaviour that thou and thy inhabitants of the peninsula have indulged in from time to time toward our valis, and if thou dost not relapse into quiet and feel content with such reforms as the government may think possible to grant we shall let fall our might on thee and those around thee and then thou shalt never rise again."

MAY ROBSON DELIGHTS THE HAMILTON CRITICS

The Hamilton Spectator has the following to say of "The Making Over of Mrs. Matt," the comedy in which May Robson will appear at the Grand on Saturday, matinee and night.

Unbounded mirth, homely humour, warm human interest and spontaneous charm—all these are interwoven through the story of "The Making Over of Mrs. Matt, the pretty comedy by James Forbes, in which May Robson appeared at the Grand last evening. Miss Robson has won for herself the enviable reputation of being one of the most popular commediennes on the American stage and in her present play there was ample opportunity for the display of her versatility in her chosen field. The average play features, usually, a heroine who is slim and younz, around whose love story the plot centres; but, in the Making Over of Mrs. Matt, the central figure is a middle-aged mother, portrayed by Miss Robson, with all the delicacy and deftness of the finished artiste. The varied changes in her voice inflections were particularly clever, the audience often being held tense by the tears in her voice, only to be shaken with laughter in the same moment by her unexpected exclamations. Mrs. Matt, the woman who didn't want to be fashionable, will remain with us as the most lovable character creation we have enjoyed this season—and we enjoyed to the full every detail of Miss Robson's performance and every minute of her little play.

Surrounding the star was a capable company, every member an artist giving a balance performance.

The story of the comedy is a simple one, full of homely truth and without sensation, clean and breezy; lovers of good acting and whole-hearted mirth should not miss it.

There is no harm in a man's posing as a genius if he is self-supporting.

CAR STALLED ON A HILL, MINUS GASOLINE SUPPLY

LINDSAY, April 27.—Five of Lindsay's prominent young business men made a trip by auto to Peterborough Wednesday night, in connection with the putting on of degrees at a lodge meeting in that city, and had a most memorable trip, especially coming home.

The party left Peterborough about 3 o'clock a.m. and everything went merrily until the steep hills near Omemee were reached, when their auto wouldn't ramble right along. It was an unpleasant predicament to be placed in at the grey of early morning, and the trouble in sight hard to remedy. The gasoline tank had gone dry and the car half way up the hill.

Two of the men kept watch on the machine while the others hurried away toward the village to look for gasoline. The villagers were all asleep at the time, and many domiciles were visited before a sufficient quantity of the fluid could be got to run the car home.

The boys arrived home at daylight and were all soundly sleeping at noon to-day, dreaming presumably of the ups and downs of the wandering autoists in rural districts.— Lindsay Warder.

"Great Britain's Compliment."

Brooklyn Eagle. "Great Britain has paid us the compliment of sending one who is in many respects her most distinguished statesman. No man of his time is better fitted for such a mission."

MRS. WHITE IS BEREAVED

Mrs. White, Bolivar street received the sad news of her brother's death this morning in Chicago, he was in his fiftieth year and was the only son of James Flynn, an old and highly respected former resident of Peterborough. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, three sons and three daughters, also four sisters, namely: Mrs Vickers, of Winnipeg; Mrs Howard and Mrs Carter of Fergus, Ont, and Mrs. White of this city.

A Great Deliverance

Last evening in Gospel Hall Evangelist Harold M. Harper delivered a powerful address on the subject mentioned above.

The meetings have been well attended each evening and last evening's attendance was up to the mark. Mr. Harper has been encouraged at the evident interest taken in the messages from night to night. Taking his text from Heb. 11.31, he used the deliverance of the harlot Rahab as the subject of the sermon. He showed "The need of deliverance" in her position and condition in that city. She lived in a city that was dooned to destruction and she possessed a nature that manifested itself in open sin. This said the speaker was true of every one outside of Jesus Christ.

He then showed "The way of deliverance" was all of grace— in other words she deserved nothing humanly speaking but judgment. All she had to do was to find the scarlet line in the window and this, said the speaker, might illustrate salvation through the shed blood of our Lord Jesus Christ. He died that we might live. "If this fact," said he, "were but received by simple faith you will be saved from the penalty of your sin, for the Bible plainly declares that Christ died for the ungodly."

Mr. Harper will speak again this evening and all are invited to hear him tell forth the gospel of grace.

Resignation Was Referred To A Small Committee

At a meeting of the Executive committee of the Children's Aid Society, held yesterday afternoon, the matter of dealing with the resignation of Mr. C. A. G. Spence, Agent for the Society, was brought up and referred to a small committee. The Executive committee showed no disposition to deal with the matter, and also declined to have the secretary read the letter containing Mr. Spence's resignation. In his communication to the Board, Mr. Spence claims that the "interference of a member of the Board makes his position untenable."

ITALIAN CONTRASTS OWN RACE WITH US IN BOSTON TALK

BOSTON, Mass., April 26—"Italian women, even those who have won distinction, have still wanted above all to be loved. But I cannot find that supreme purpose in American women," Dr. George la Piano, speaking at the Women's City club Italian luncheon, said.

His topic was "American Women in Italian Books," and he spoke from the standpoint of Italian authors.

"Our writers seem only to have known American women who were restless, ever youthful, wearing tortoise shell glasses, but none the less charming to all the world—bland, elegant, possessed withal of a sense of humor that makes them the most fascinating element of society.

"But, it is asked ,why do such beautiful women want dictatorship? Why do they seek success for the sake of success? Is it out of vanity and a spirit of restlessness?" And Dr. la Piano shrugged for the authors for whom he spoke.

"The Italian writers who are in America call this country the paradise of women, and American women are in many ways superior to our own—though perhaps not so well suited to life as it is lived on the Mediterranean. They prophesy that the Italian girl will be no longer bashful and romantic, but will become, like her American sister, zealous for the progress of mankind."

"Chicken Oath" Proves Expensive

CHATHAM, April 27.—With chickens at one dollar and a half a head, the "chicken oath," a recognized oath of a Chinaman, which is made while a fowl's head is being cut, was considered out of the question when 33 Celestials, each charged with gambling on the Sabbath, were required to go into the box in the city police court here.

Considerable discussion took place between Acting Crown Attorney Richards and R. L. Brackin, counsel for the defendants, as to the form of oath which should be used. The crown attorney urged that the Chinamen be made to take one of their forms of oath, that is, on bended knees, while a saucer is broken, indicating that if they do not tell the truth, their souls will be dealt with in similar fashion. Counsel for the 33 defendants held that they were Christians, and belonged to the Presbyterian church, and should take an ordinary oath. Adjournment was made until Friday. The men were caught gambling, it is alleged, at a tea emporium on Fifth street on Sunday, April 15. They were playing for large sums. There were indications that some had been smoking opium, according to the policemen.

How To Prevent Acid Stomachs And Food Fermentation

By a Stomach Specialist.

As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach troubles, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and difficulty, is acid in the stomach, usually due to, or aggravated by, food fermentation. Acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach and food fermentation causes wind which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full bloated feeling. Thus both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases—and they comprise over 90 per cent. of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking in a little warm or cold water immediately after eating, from one to two teaspoonfuls of bisurated magnesia, which is doubtless the best and only really effective antacid and food corrective known. The acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask your druggist for the bisurated magnesia as I have found other forms utterly lacking in its peculiarly valuable properties.—F. J. G.

HETTY GREEN TAX OF $4,000,000 LOST

In a decision, establishing that Mrs. Hetty H. R. Green was a resident of Bellows Falls, Vt., Surrogate Fowler of New York, ruled that her vast estate, variously estimated at from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000, was not subject to taxes in New York State.

In the subject that the higher courts uphold the decision, the State of New York will lose a transfer tax of about $4,000,000. In Vermont the legacies from parents to children are exempted from taxation. Mrs. Green left the bulk of her properties to her son and daughter The opinion of the Surrogate is directly opposite the contention of the State Controller that Mrs. Green kept the bulk of her fortune in New York city, and lived there enough to be termed a resident. John G. Gleason, attorney for the state asserted that wherever the bulk of her property was kept Mrs. Green undoubtedly regarded New York as home.

Charles W. Pierson, of the law firm of Alexander & Green, contended that Mrs. Green transacted the bulk of her business from Bellows Falls, Vt., making her home there in "The Tucker House." Her will was admitted to probate there.

In his long decision, which considers the history of Mrs. Green's parents and of her own and her husband's various residences, Surrogate Fowler says: "The title to the Tucker House had devolved on Mrs. Green, and the property now forms part of her estate. It was a furnished residence of some pretensions and long family associations. It was unquestionably the only 'home' or permanent abiding place of a residential character that either Mr. or Mrs. Green are shown to have possessed during their whole married life."

"To End the Cruel War."

Utica Press. "This week's conference at Washington ought to be and will be attended by the most important results and are calculated to hasten the end of this cruel war which now, it can be safely said, will come with the total defeat of Germany."

Many Women in Our War Office

Do Most of the Work in the S. A. and A. P. Branch at Ottawa — They Sign Checks

Rows of files, hundreds and thousands of them, piled up or being deftly sorted by a legion of efficient young ladies—these conditions, as found in branches of the Militia Department, are impressive. They speak of the immensity of the work of conducting Canada's expeditionary forces. The Central Registry, the Record Office, both buzz with the hum of continuous industry.

In a very quiet corner of one of the large offices occupied by the Separation Allowance and Assigned Pay Branch of the Militia Department, Plaza Building, Ottawa, are nine young ladies constantly writing. They are signing checks!

Miss Genevieve Dougherty and eight assistants sign and countersign all checks issued by the Separation Allowance and Assigned Pay Office. Most of them are done by using a scriptograph, which, as is commonly known, consists of four fountain pens on a flexible frame arranged so that four checks are signed at one operation. The largest number so signed by one clerk in one day is 6,280, accomplished by Miss Mary Fier. The individual daily average is slightly over 6,000. These women who sign are especially authorized by the Finance Department and are bonded.

A staff of thirty-one women prepare the check records for the Auditor-General. These records give the check number, the soldier's name, and the beneficiary. An average of forty ledgers a day is handled by this staff, with about 300 accounts to the ledger.

The S.A. and A.P. Branch handles the accounts of every Canadian soldier on active service overseas whose beneficiaries are in Canada, or rather, not in England.

Both the separation allowances — the armounts the government pays to the beneficiaries of men who are away on their country's service—and the assigned pay—that portion of the soldiers' salaries which they designate shall be handed over by the Government to their beneficiaries — are dealt with in this branch. For this purpose about 500 clerks are necessary, 96 of whom are women.

In the correspondence section of the office, 45 stenographers—all women—and 25 dictators are occupied answering inquiries. Day and night staffs of both men and women carry on this work. Anywhere from 900 to 2,000 letters are received daily in this branch.

The S.A. and A.P. Branch has what might be termed a "central registry" or "filing room." Here thirteen women are employed, and in the course of a day handle an average of 2,000 files. These files each contain all the correspondence relating to each individual soldier concerning whom the S.A. and A.P. has business.

According to the authorities of the Separation Allowance and Assigned Pay Branch, the women are performing their duties with entire satisfaction.

CHICAGO, April 27.—The wheat pit was in turmoil to-day when May wheat, opening at $2.63 a bushel, six cents under last night's close, rose to $2.70 after a few minutes' trading. It then dropped back twelve points and rallied at $2.58, recovering to $2.63 1-2 at 10 a.m.

Belgian relief and other buyers grabbed the opportunity on the early break to buy practically cash wheat at May future prices. Cash wheat sold over $3 while May, with a few days to wait for deliveries, was nearly fifty cents under that figure.

Girls Not Liars, Boys Are, Says Judge Lindsay

DETROIT, Mich., April 26.—With the Detroit judge who said that girls lie more frequently and successful than boys, Judge Ben Lindsay, of Denver, foremost juvenile court expert in the country takes exception.

"If you approach a girl confidentially," the judge explained, "and assure her that she won't be punished for what she's going to say, you can get a lot more out of her than the average boy. I know my opinion differs from that of most authorities, but I think I have studied child psychology pretty thoroughly. I was amused to read what a Detroit judge said on the subject."

The judge also expressed confidence in the good results of the maternity bill, which was turned down by the Colorado legislature recently. He said Mrs. Gan would profit by the adoption of such bill. It provided state care of mothers at childbirth.

JUST HOW MUCH CASH IT COSTS TO SAVE SOULS

Indianapolis Leads With $700 Each, According to Billy Sunday.

NEW YORK, April 26. — Twenty years of whipping the devil over the forty-eight states have persuaded Billy Sunday that the old fellow doesn't hold his grip well south of Mason and Dixon's line, the Ohio river, and the Moonshine mountains. It's here in the north that the original enemy of the human race gets in his best licks.

Billy has the figures that prove it—soul saving cost estimates gathered from a score of cities. Would one think now that the devil is more easily routed in the city of Bourbon whisky, fast horses, leaf tobacco, and the prettiest girls (except for Lexington) in the U. S. A.—Louisville—than anywhere else in the nation? The figures prove it.

Indianapolis Heads List.

It costs only $75 to save a soul in Louisville, where as in Indianapolis, staid, quiet, literary Indianapolis, the cost rises to $700 per convert to Christ.

The fact is, according to Billy's efficiency sheets, the capital of Hoosierdom is the devil's choicest earthly lair. In New York it takes $600 to win a man from sin and set him in the straight and narrow road. This estimate may be subject to new revision, however.

Billy's three months' campaign here will cost $150,000, and the new soul saving cost sheets will be prepared through a process of dividing the $150,000 by the number of trail hitters that respond to Billy's fervent pleas.

Shows Real Efficiency.

He is in New York for the big and principal purpose of showing the preachers what real soul savin' efficiency is, and he expects to cut the old figures to fit it and raise New York to the proud position occupied by Louisville or Atlanta, where the cost is $80; or New Orleans, where it takes $100, and to beat Chicago's $445, Boston's $500, and Denver's $455.

MILLION ACRES ADDED TO GARDEN LAND IN BRITAIN

LONDON, April 25.—Rowland Prothers, president of the Board of Agriculture, told the House of Commons yesterday there had been already a substantial increase in the amount of ground under cultivation in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Prothers made this statement on the moving of the second reading of the bill embodying the Government's proposals for the cultivation of land, as outlined by Premier Lloyd George some weeks ago. Under the terms of this measure minimum prices for wheat and oats for six years, and minimum wages for agricultural labourers, are fixed.

MILLION MORE ACRES USED.

Mr. Prothers said that not only had the great reduction in acreage of 1916 been wiped out but that in England alone there had been an addition of 300,000 acres and in Ireland of something like 700,00. Until England was more independent of the foreign producer, added Mr. Prothers, she would always be in a dangerous position.

LOCKIE—McQUAIG.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, April 25, at 7 o'clock, p.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David McQuaig, 474 Sherbrooke street, when their second eldest daughter, Margaret J., was united in marriage to Mr. J. R. Lockie, also of this city.

The Rev. B. Greatrix, Pastor of St. James' Church, officiated. GERMANY'S "WAR BABIES"

360,000 Illegitimate Children Drawing War Allowances in Germany.

LONDON, April 25.—Three hundred and sixty thousand "war babies" were born in Germany last year. At a meeting of women from all parts of the German Empire, held in Berlin toward the end of last month, it was announced by an official that more than a third of a million illegitimate children were being granted war allowances out of state funds.

It was the opinion of many leading women that steps must be taken to legitimize babies of unmarried mothers. A long step in that direction, they said would be to give them the right to take the names of their fathers.

A Deserving Case

To the ladies of Peterborough who would really like to perform a kind action, we are offering a splendid opportunity.

It is my birthday next week, and my wife is very anxious to give me a vacuum cleaner or a buck saw for a birthday present. Now it is necessary for me to sell $1,000.25 worth of goods this week so as to raise the money. Then after paying the very moderate taxes we are assessed for, I shall have 25c. left, and I shall be able to give her 10c. and still have 15c. left for her to find in my pocket at night. Of course we don't charge so much for our goods as other places, as we only sell for cash, but you won't mind that as you will be doing a good action. And all our goods are guaranteed pure, so you cannot poison the neighbour's cat with them, but you can order from a mail order house next week for that.

Our smoked and cooked meats are really fine.

Just try our dressed Veal Tongue at 30c. a pound, or our fragrant, fresh-ground Coffee at 40c.

Just as an inducement to you to give us a trial, we will give a Ford automobile free with every $1,000.00 order to-morrow only. Note the address—

DISCOURAGEMENT SEIZES THE KAISER'S FORCES

German Minister of War Tries To Dispense Comfort Over Losses — Defeats As Well As Victories—Men Sent To Front As a Punishment.

TEXT OF COMPANY ORDER

COPENHAGEN, April 28, via London. — General Von Stein, German Minister of War, admitted during a discussion of military affairs by the Reichstag committee that field post letters from soldiers at the front showed a certain amount of discouragement. This, however, was only a passing sentiment, he explained, and in general the spirit of the troops was good. In a war like the present, one could not expect an unbroken stream of victories, he said.

General Von Stein's report is considered to have influenced the committee in sending through Field Marshal Von Hindenburg greetings and assurances of solid support to the army, which the radical Socialist members of the committee refused to sign.

The committee rejected a radical Socialist proposal to establish a committee of Parliamentary control to supervise the conduct of the war.

During the discussion Herr Stucklein, a Socialist member, complained that men were sent to the front as a punishment, and that this method was used regularly as a threat. He produced the text of a company order in substantiation of his assertion.

tor was explaining in a convincing manner that the first man and woman, Adam and Eve, were also Prussians. That is easy to understand, for in the Bible it is written that our German God has created us according to His own image. If, therefore, all men have descended from a Prussian Adam, and from his wife, there should only exist Prussians— or, at least, Germans—and everything that grows and exists should belong to us. You must admit that is logical reasoning, and that is why our device is 'God with us, and Germany over all.' You will understand now why we wanted this war.

"Is it not shameful that other people who have no right to exist on this earth should wish to reduce our inheritances. We are the Divine fruit, and all others are but weeds. That is why our great Emperor, representing God on earth, has decided to put an end to all these injustices, and to exterminate the weeds. Now, do you understand?

"With a handshake 'a la Prussienne,'
"I remain, etc., ————."

A Letter From A "Kultured" Hun Girl

A Geneva message says:

"The Tribune de Geneva" publishes the following translation of a letter written by a German young lady to a friend in Switzerland. The latter is dated from Frankfort-on-Oder, and the young person who writes is the daughter of a Government architect in Germany:

"My Dear Little Louise,— The contents of your last letter would have wounded me if I had not known that your opinions of our glorious war were the outcome of ignorance. You live in a country which is effeminated by the influence of old-fashioned ideas of liberty, which is now centuries behind us. You require a strong dose of Prussian culture. It is evident that you, a Swisseese, fashioned to French thought, cannot understand that my young German girl's heart has ardently, passionately desired this war; it has been talked of with us for years, and my father used to say to us children, 'Germany is becoming too small for us; we must return to France in order to make a place for ourselves and to get money.'

"Is it our fault if France does not understand that we need money and territory,

"Then you reproach me for the treatment of our soldiers towards the Belgian 'canaille'; you also speak of the damage to the Rheims Cathedral, of villages and towns burnt, etc., etc. That is war!

"You have something to learn in order to equal us, and I can assure you that all that has been done up to now is a mere bagatelle to what is going to happen. There is only one country worthy to dominate the whole world, which has attained a high degree of civilization, and that is ours — the Prussians. I say Prussians, for if, as Germans, we are overlords of the world, the Prussian is par excellence the overlord of the Germans. All other nations are degenerate, and of inferior value. Only yesterday our pas-

U. S. Envoy In Petrograd Urges at Greater Supply of 'Munitions From America.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Secretary Lansing to-day received from David Francis, the American Ambassador at Petrograd, a report on conditions in Russia, which states that all the Russians need to enable them to defeat Bermany is a plentiful supply of munitions, financial credit and railway equipment. In his message to the State Department Ambassador Francis urged that this Government furnish these things to Russia.

Mr. Francis declared he was pained and provoked to hear there was fear and suspicion in America of Russia making a separate peace. Of this he saw no possibility whatever, asserting that the Provisional Government and people of Russia would make no peace unless founded on justice and freedom.

Russia is not manufacturing a sufficient amount of munitions to supply her armes, and heretofore has been receiving large quantities from Britain in addition to those she purchased n Japan.

TO LEAVE HEINE TABLET.

LONDON. — The proposal to remove from his former residence the tablet commemorative of Heine, has been postponed. For this action the London county council, which has jurisdiction in the matter, has been praised in some quarters and condemned in others. The condemnation comes from those who want to eradicate anything German from British memories, but those more tolerant call attention to the fact that it was from London that Heine wrote some sentences they aver that are worth remembering to-day, as for instance the following:

"An Englishman loves freedom as he loves his lawfully wedded wife; he regards her as a possession, and if he does not treat her with special tenderness, yet if need be, he knows how to defend her. A Frenchman loves freedom as he loves his chosen bride; he will commit a thousand follies for

Cattle Market.

The tone of the market for the week has been uniformly strong, except for a slightly easier feeling at the opening of Monday's market. At that, opening there was a good run of cattle on hand, with a lot of poor quality included. Trade dragged a little, and for a time prices inclined easier. On the succeeding markets all through the week, offerings were light, and a firmer and stronger tone took the place of the weaker feeling, and prices steadily stiffened up to 25c to 30c higher, and for a few extra choice lots to the highest levels for this season of high prices, straight loads of extra choice heavy steers and yearlings selling up to $11.75 to $12.

Choice fat cows and bulls have been in strong demand all through the week.

There has been a fairly active market in stockers and feeders, good grass cows especially being in good demand. Prices were firmer in sympathy with the higher prices for butcher cattle.

Choice milkers and springers continue in good demand.

Calves have held good and streng all through the week.

Offerings of sheep and lambs continue to be so light that there is scarcely enough to make a market. What few are offering hold firm at recent abnormally high prices.

Hogs were weaker on the earlier markets, but with continued light receipts prices again came up to top levels, selling up to $16.85, fed and watered, and $17 to $17.10 off cars, the latter being a new high record.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards - Total receipts for the week—340 cars, with 3,473 cattle, 1,128 calves, 9,949 hogs, 92 sheep and lambs, and 659 horses.

City Cattle Market — 43 cars, with 637 cattle, 128 sheep and lambs, 240 hogs, 285 calves, and 64 horses.

A NEW DRUG WORTH $1,000,000
Will Pick Up a Run-down, Weak, Nervous System in 5 to 10 Days

This new drug is a combination of iron and phosphorus, discovered by a Toronto chemist, who is making a fortune out of it. Doctors, hospitals and the public are using it with wonderful success. The iron combines with the phosphorus, forming a new drug called Bonised Phosphorus with iron. Doctor Maisonneuve says that just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with iron is taken the iron is almost immediately taken up by the blood, while the phosphorus is absorbed by the nerves. He also says he can take a person who is all run-down, tired, nervous, weak, and build their systems up to normal strength in 5 to 10 days, by giving one to three of these tablets after meals and at bedtime. It has of late been discovered that 90 per cent. of all ailments susceptible to the human race can be traced to impurities in the blood and weak, broken-down nerves. To not be taking all sorts of lumpings and poisonous tonics, which only ruin your system, go to the root of all this trouble and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves and your digestion by taking this, your drug. Bonised Phosphorus with iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Webber is the agent for Peterborough.

LONDON, April 25.— A Jassy despatch tells of the ignorance of the world of events in the present Roumanian capital, and the sufferings in the overcrowded city from hunger and pestilence. Typhus is claiming the greatest toll. The despatch concludes: "The appalling malady has claimed many victims among members of the medical staff and nurses both native and foreign who attended the sick doing noble work. With the approach of mild weather some epidemics, it is hoped, will disappear especially typhus, which is mainly due to overcrowding during the cold season. In a few weeks fighting will be resumed all along the fronts. Events on the Roumanian front may perhaps contribute in no small degree to anticipate the success of the general offensive of the Allies. Great as the misfortunes of Roumania, the heart of the nation is undismayed. All men look confidently forward to the triumph of the cause of liberty and justice.

Doctors Stand Amazed at Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong---According to Dr. Lewis

Guaranteed to Strengthen Eyesight 50% In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or minor glasses. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above, is not a patent medicine or a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in this city by Warne Drug Co. and Other Druggists.

The Autobiography Of A Plum

(Plum and Apple)

I am a plum. I once hung on a tree in Herefordshire and was nearly stolen last summer by a truant boy; but he left me hanging, as my colour was not fully developed. I am glad I was not eaten by the boy; for I have had quite an interesting history and have played my part in the great war.

It is all over now. I am lying alongside a slice of apple on a piece of bread, held in the grimy hand of a British soldier. About me and around are the most tremendous noises I have ever heard. If I don't get eaten by this soldier who holds me, very soon, I'm sure we shall all be blown to bits, or I shall fall into this beastly yellow pool in which the soldier is standing..

Before anything happens to us, I must tell you my story.

One day, last Autumn, I was plucked from the tree on which I lived, by the hand of a woman, who talked all the time about a letter she had received from "her man" out in France. With a lot of other plums, I was carried in a little, round basket by train to a great town in the Midlands. After a process of washing, which I didn't like at all, I was put into a large cauldron with innumerable pieces of apple. One particular slice and I got on very well together. He told me of what had become of his other parts; they were in the cauldron, somewhere. He promised to stick by me all along—quite an easy matter after all, for we were both drenched in hot, sticky stuff which the apple said was sugar. He told me that we were being made into plum and apple jam for the soldiers who were fighting Germans in France.

We boiled together for many hours. I lost a number of my fellow plums who came from the country orchard to the great town with me; but the apple and I kept together until this very moment.

While we were still hot and steaming, we were put into a tin can and sealed up. For many weeks it seemed we must have been in a dark cellar where no one ever came, and where the sounds of the world seemed to be very far away.

Perhaps you have noticed these words and the notation "NO FIRE LEFT WHEN BLOWN OUT" on our new "Silent Parlor" match boxes. The Brawn and Brain of a boy are not made out of books or sermons. They are built out of foods that supply in well-balanced proportion and in digestible form every needed element. These elements are found in Shredded Wheat Biscuit, a real whole wheat food which contains all the material for building the human body. A perfect food for growing youngsters. Its crispness encourages thorough chewing, which develops sound teeth and healthy gums. Children like it and thrive on it. It is ready-cooked and ready-to-eat. For breakfast or any meal with milk or cream. Made in Canada.

Then one day a whole battalion of tins were taken away. We had a long ride on a grey motor lorry and arrived at a place full of soldiers. We didn't know the name of the place but the apple said that, judging by the language we heard, it must have been Aldershot. We were thrown about a good deal from one store to another and all sorts of buff-coloured forms were written about us by soldiers with stripes and gold crowns on their arms. We met a lot of other tins full of apricot jam. They were very stuck up like, and alway wanted to make friends with very gaudily dressed, oblong tins from Chicago.

My friend Apple told me that these swagger tins contained Bully Beef, and that we should show great respect to them, as they were our seniors. (I understand "Bully" always goes before Jam). In the few weeks that we were at Aldershot we made a lot of friends. We became very attached to the wooden boxes which had written on them ".303 S.A.A." They were full of rifle ammunition. They said that we all ought to be good friends as the speed with which they travelled and the correctness of their flight from the rifle to the Germans depended largely on the quality we ourselves maintained. "The more jam the soldiers get," said one of these boxes, "the better mood they are in when they come to make a final assault." So the apple and I determined to preserve ourselves as freshly as possible.

Our next move was by train to a sea port, where we were lifted in large crates into the hold of a big ship. We had an apartment all to ourselves in the ship and did not see any more of our friends the S. A. A. The "Bully" was stacked up at the other end of the hold like the wall of a castle. I felt very frightened all the way across the Channel for we rolled about a good deal. We landed all right at a French port, and, before we knew it, were hurled out of the ship and placed on a wharf. Things were very busy there and we saw the S. A. A. boxes and others like them taken away on grey motor lorries. With them were other boxes about the same size marked "Grenades-Mills-Hand." The apple, who was a very informative bit of fruit, told me they were very useful things, these grenades. He (the Apple) used to hang on a tree that was cut down to make a factory for the manufacture of them. That's how he knew all about it. It was just when we were talking about this that someone leaned against the pile of tins, of which we were one, and our little house fell down on to the cobbled wharf-way. We got an awful dent in the side which really brought the apple and myself much closer to each other. It was a wonder the tin did not burst; but the apple said it was made in South Wales out of real British material.

We spent a few interesting days at this port. They were always full of incident. Soldiers were marching to and fro—always singing and laughing, except when they came in trains and were all bandaged up. We were told by a tin of bully beef that the bandaged ones were going home and might not be able to fight Germans any more, which was why they were sad.

Then we took another ride and reached a wonderful place. It was a Divisional Dump, where all sorts of stores were gathered. By a stroke of luck we were somewhere near the top of a great pile of plum and apple tins stacked out in the open, whence we could see much of what was happening. We were here only a day or two. Every now and then we heard the distant booming of big guns. Once, indeed, we felt that we were right in the thick of battle. A great bird flew over us and circled in the air as if it were going to pounce down and take a tin of jam or bully beef away. Suddenly, two other birds rose from somewhere near by and flew after the first one, which had a black cross on its breast. The two new birds had rings of red, white and blue on its wings. For a few minutes, all three shot out darts of fire at each other until the big one seemed to lurch to the side, turn a somersault and crash to the ground. It must have been hurt. The other two birds flew higher into the air and then glided to earth, while loud cheers came from the British soldiers who were standing round.

A lieutenant came to us one day, and, putting his hand on the lid of our house, said to an officer who had "A. S. C." in a sort of pretty monogram on his hat: "What! More plum and apple? I thought all the plums in the world had been used up," to which the A. S. C. gentleman replied: "Not till England herself shall lie at the bottom of the sea."

I thought it was a very nice sentiment and said so to Apple, who was quite jealous, as they had not mentioned anything about his kind.

The lieutenant, who was also a Quartermaster, handed a piece of green paper to the A. S. C. officer. They laughed and chatted for a few minutes and then went away together to the place where the S. A. A. boxes were stacked in a much better appointed lodging than ours.

The next day, soldiers covered with yellow mud came and put a lot of P. and A. tins on limbers, apparently belonging to certain battalions. Just as one limber was moving off, someone shouted: "Hey, there! You're four pounds short of that limber for the Second Fifths." At the same time he grabbed our tin round the waist and shied us through the air at a man who stood near the limber. We were caught as if we had been a cricket ball and the man cried: "How's that?" as he placed us on the top and the wagon and we jolted off through ruts and puddles to the Battalion dump. The nearer we got to the dump, the louder became the far-off booming of big guns. Finally we arrived at the place. It was nothing to look at; very dirty and very dangerous, I thought; but everything was carried out with the strictest method.

Here we saw our old friend the Lieutenant and Quartermaster whose associations called "Quarters"; which I thought rather familiar for an officer.

Some hours later we were thrown into a sack and carried on the back of a very muddy soldier down into a sort of passage. The passage wound round and round and round like the maze at Hampton Court. I had heard about the maze from the label on our tin, which was printed at Hounslow. These winding passages were called communicating trenches and the one that we were being carried along finally led to what was called a dug-out.

This dug-out was a most peculiar place. It smelt of powder and other smells that were quite remote from sweet odours among which I had been brought up. There seemed to be an incessant earthquake going on round and about. Every now and then there would be a severe shock that shook the very earth; a tremendous crash, followed by shouts of "Whoops! There goes our parapet again," would burst at the entrance to our new home. I didn't like it a bit and told Apple so. All that he replied was that we were in the front line trench and that we should soon either be eaten or blown to bits. It made me quite nervous, and yet this morning, when the last stage of our service was entered upon, I was quite calm and ready for any fate.

An orderly came early this morning and stuck a bayonet into the side of our house—that is, the tin, with the label printed at Hounslow. Before you could tell what had happened, this horrid steel had ripped open the side of the tin and out came our little family of plum and apple jam. It was put into a dixie lid that had obviously been used for tea or something. Apple and I stuck together as we were scooped out of the lid and put on to the slice of bread where we now lie.

I know that this is the last stage. It is here where I do my service to my country and I am proud of it.

Ah! This must be the last phase. The bread is being raised to the soldier's mouth. I watch his gleaming eyes, surveying us; and now he speaks. I am at the very edge of the man's mouth and might have gone by now if it had not been for another shell bursting just a few yards away. I am held out and at arm's length and this is what the man says: "Gawd! Plum and apple, again! Who started this bloomin' war? Ain't we never going to have nothin' but plum and apple?"

But that's the end of me.

Few People Know This

Large doses of pills for the liver are not as efficient as small doses.

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

THE RAIN.

This is the greening rain
That comes to lawns and fields where leaves have lain.
Softly it blurs the pane,
And softly, oh, softly I can see it turning
Our tawny hills to living emerald,
The bitten blackness of the elms is dulled
Since day by copper mist.
Above the fresh red earth from April plows
Still gray are apple boughs,
But in between
The withered strips of grass have changed to green
Like beryl bracelets on an Indian's wrist.
The willow pales
Her Winter amber in a weft of jade.
The hedges stream like veils
And maple buds
In scarlet loveliness will soon be burning
Their sudden fires along the forest trails,
Before the leafy floods.
Beauty is here in spite of sorrow's shade.

Famine and World-Hunger Are On Our Threshold

ONTARIO

"—— in the nation's honor, heed! I Acquit yourselves like men. As workers on the land, do your duty with all your strength!"

—Lloyd George

THE CRISIS

France, England and Italy in peace times did not depend upon America, but on Russia, Roumania and Bulgaria for most of their breadstuffs. With these sources closed, the crisis of the hour demands that we see that our soldiers and the Motherland are fed.

Everyone in Great Britain has been put on limited rations! Meat is prohibited one day a week, and the making of cakes and pastry has been stopped. Further restrictions are anticipated.

Bread has gone to 28c per four-pound loaf in England, for the first time since the Crimean War.

Lord Devonport, British Food Comptroller, proposes taking authority to search the houses of Great Britain to prevent food hoarding.

Forty million men, less the casualties, are now on active service.

Twenty million men and women are supporting them by service in other war activities.

In the last analysis the land is bearing this burden.

One million tons of food-carrying ships have been torpedoed since February 1st, 1917.

Germany's hope for victory is in the starvation of Britain through the submarine.

Canada's sons will have died in vain if hunger compels the Motherland's surrender.

The land is waiting—the plough is ready—will we make the plough mightier than the sword?

Will we help the acres to save the flag?

World-Hunger Stares Us in the Face

David Lubin, representative of the United States to the International Institute of Agriculture—maintained by forty Governments—reports officially to Washington that the food grains of the world on March 31st, 1917, showed a shortage of 150,000,000 bushels below the amount necessary to feed the world until August, 1917. He declares it is beyond question that unless a greater acreage is put to crop in 1917 there will be WORLD-HUNGER before the 1918 crop is harvested.

The failure of the grain crop, in the Argentine Republic, which is ordinarily a great grain-exporting nation, resulted in an embargo being placed, in March, 1917, upon the export of grains from that country to avert local famine.

The United States Department of Agriculture, in its official report, announces the condition of the fall wheat crop (which is two-thirds of their total wheat crop), on April 1st, 1917, to be the poorest ever recorded, and predicts a yield of 244,000,000 bushels below the crop of 1915. The 1916 crop was poor. Even with favorable weather, the wheat crop of the United States is ikely to be the smallest in thirty-five years, not more than 64% of the normal crop.

Under date of April 10th, Ogden Armour, executive head of Armour & Company, one of the world's largest dealers in food products, stated that unless the United States wishes to walk deliberately into a catastrophe, the best brains of the country, under Government supervision, must immediately devise means of increasing and conserving food supplies. Armour urged the cultivation of every available acre. The food shortage, he said, is world-wide. European production is cut in half, the Argentine Republic has suffered droughts. Canada and the United States must wake up!

Hunger Tightening His Grip

—New York Evening Mail.

People are starving to-day in Belgium, in Serbia, in Poland, in Armenia, in many quarters of the globe.

Famine conditions are becoming more widespread every day.

On these alarming food conditions becoming known, President Wilson immediately appointed a Food Comptroller for the United States. He selected Herbert C. Hoover, to whom the world is indebted, as Chairman of the International Belgium Relief Commission, for his personal direction of the distribution of food among the starving Belgians.

Mr. Hoover is already urging sacrifice and food restrictions, for, as he states, "The war will probably last another year, and we shall have all we can do to supply the necessary food to carry our Allies through with their full fighting stamina."

The Problem for Ontario

The land under cultivation in Ontario in 1916 was 365,000 acres less than in 1915.

Consider how much LESS Ontario produced in 1916 than she raised in 1915.

Other crops show as critical decline.

Reports from Ontario on the condition of fall wheat for 1917 are decidedly discouraging.

As there is an average of not more than one man on each hundred acres of farm land in Ontario, the prospects indicate even a still smaller acreage under cultivation in 1917 unless extra labor is supplied.

Food Production is the Greatest Problem the World Faces To-day

Owing to destruction by submarines, ocean ships are scarce.

It is much easier to protect shipping between Canada and England than on the longer voyages from India or Australia.

One vessel can make twice as many trips from Canada to Britain as from India, and four times as many as from Australia.

Therefore, every ton of food stuffs grown in Canada is worth to the Motherland two tons grown in India or four tons grown in Australia.

Why the Call to Canada is So Urgent

If this country does not raise a big crop this year, not only will the people of Canada suffer, but the Motherand and her Allies will suffer, and their military power will be weakened if not paralyzed. Therefore, the right solution of the present war problem comes back to the farm, as to a foundation upon which our whole national and international structure must be built and maintained.

The farmers know that they are the last reserve, and that the soil on which crops are grown is the strategic ground on which wars are decided. To their care is entrusted the base of supplies.

The Second-Line Trenches

—McCay, in The New York American.

To enable the farm to do the work two factors are essential. The first is Time. Whatever we are to do must be done at once. Nature waits for no man. The second is Labor. Many farmers cannot plant the acres they would because they cannot get the necessary help. Many are afraid to increase their acreage because they fear they would not be able to cultivate and harvest an unusual crop after they had raised it. If they are to do the work that is essential for them to do, the last man in each city, town and village must be mobilized at once.

Every man not on Active Service can help. In every city, town and vilage are men who, by their training on the farm, or by their present occupation, can readily adapt themselves to farm work. These can render no greater service to the Empire at the present time than by answering the call of the farm. Capable men and boys willing to learn should not allow their lack of farm experience to stand in the way.

Can the employer render a more signal service in this crisis than by encouraging these men to help the farmer to cultivate every available acre, and by making it easy for them to go?

Ontario's farm lands are waiting—the implements are ready—the equipment is complete—the farmer is willing—all he needs is labor

So short is the world's food supply that without increased production many in Canada must go hungry, and even with enormously increased production we cannot expect cheap food. The world is waiting for our harvest.

If peace should be declared within a year, the food conditions will be no better, for the accumulated hunger of the Central Empires must be met. This will absorb a large part of the world's supply.

We do not know when this war shall cease. It is endless—its lengthening out has paralyzed the thought and conception of all men who thought about it and its possible time of conclusion. Three months—six months, we said; nine months, a year, we said; and yet two years and eight months have passed their long, dreary and sanguinary length, and there is no man who can tell how long this gigantic struggle may yet last.

Lloyd George, in a letter addressed to farmers throughout the Empire, said:

"The line which the British Empire holds against "the Germans is held by those who WORK ON THE "LAND as well as by those who fight on land and sea. If "it breaks at any point it breaks everywhere. In the face "of the enemy the seamen of our Royal naval and mer-"cantile marine and the soldiers gathered from every part "of our Empire hold our line firstly. You workers on land "must hold your part of our line as strongly. Every full "day's labor you do helps to shorten the struggle and "brings us nearer victory. Every idle day, all loitering, "lengthens the struggle and makes defeat more possible. "Therefore, in the nation's honor, heed! Acquit your-"selves like men, and as workers on land do your duty "with all your strength!"

So, for the honor of Canada's soldiers in France—and for the glory of our New-born Nationhood—let it be said of Ontario's citizens that, in the hour of our greatest need, their response was worthy of their sons.

We owe a great debt to those who are fighting for us.

A PAGE OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EVERY WOMAN

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

PALATABLE ECONOMY: — As shown in my last article, there are certain practical lines of food selection that may be made by the family that will be greatly to its advantage. All of this is fully set forth in Farmers' Bulletin, No. 808, which is yours for the asking. In addition to what I then quoted I again give you the instructions of the bulletin itself on how to make the most nutritive foods agreeable and palatable and at the same time a well balanced ration for the entire family.

Thinking of foods according to the group to which they belong or according to the nutrient which they supply in largest amount, will help the housekeeper to see whether in the meals she plans she has supplied all the different materials needed, especially whether there is the necessary, though small, [illegible] building mineral matter [illegible] regulating materials (group 1), and of tissue-building protein (group 2.) When she has made sure that these are present, she may safely build up the bulk of the diet from whatever materials from the other groups that seem economical, wholesome and appetising. By means of this grouping she will be reminded that meals consisting only of cereal mush (group 3) served with butter (group 5) and syrup (group 4) would not be a complete ration and would almost surely be lacking in body building material because there are no foods from either group 1 (fruits and vegetables) or group 2 (protein rich.) It will become clear also that a school lunch of a kind far too frequently served, consisting of bread and cake, drinking in the same way, and that a glass of milk (group 2) and an apple or an orange (group 1) would make it far more nearly complete. She will learn the wisdom of serving fruit (group 1) rather than a whipped cream dessert (group 5) or a suet pudding (groups 3 and 5) after a course including a generous portion of fat meat (groups 2 and 5.)

The grouping will also help the housekeeper who wishes to save money or time to simplify her meals without making them one-sided or incomplete. For example, if she is [illegible] serving bread, potatoes and rice or hominy in one meal, she will see that one or even two of them may be left out without omitting any important nutrient, providing a reasonable quantity of the one or two remaining is eaten. It will show her that a custard which is made of milk and eggs, two foods from group 2, would hardly be needed after a meal in which a liberal supply of meat has been served, providing one ate heartily of all, and that a child does not need milk at the same meal with an egg or meat. It will suggest that baked beans or rather legumes or thick soups made of legumes are substitutes for meat rather than foods to be eaten with meat.

This method of planning prevents substituting one food for another which has an entirely different use. It prevents the housekeeper for example from trying to give a pleasant variety by using an extra amount of cakes or sweet deserts in the place of fruit and vegetables when the latter seem difficult to obtain. Sugar is nutritious and has a valuable place in the diet, but the nourishment it furnishes is fuel and not the body-building and body-regulating materials which are found in fruits and vegetables, and it is not safe to cut them out even if the meals can be made more attractive without them. Fortunately they are rarely so hard to obtain as it seems, and the wise housekeeper will make every effort to supply them. In general economy within each group is safer than using an inexpensive food from one group in place of an expensive one from another group.

Thinking in terms of these groups will also help when laying in supplies. Dried peas and beans and dried fish, canned fish and meat, and some kinds of cheese keep for a long time and can be used in place of fresh meat in an emergency. Fruit and vegetables put up when they are abundant will help to supply this important group in the winter.

Farm women can look even farther ahead and often can plan to raise a quantity of foods for use when it is difficult to buy at reasonable prices; for example enough beans to give the family a generous supply. Though navy beans have been most largely used in this country there are many other good and easily grown kinds that can be chosen to give variety. In the South cowpeas should not be overlooked. If sugar is high in price honey can be produced and homemade or purchased sorghum, maple or cane syrup can be used.

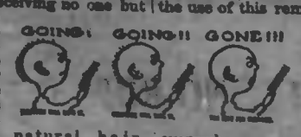
Use Newbro's Herpicide
IN TIME AND YOU WILL NEVER NEED FALSE HAIR

Wearing false hair is a harmless deceit of which many ladies are guilty. These women are all objects for sympathy rather than criticism.

Early neglect in the care of the scalp has caused the loss of so much hair that their personal appearance is sadly marred. To correct this defect they resort to artificial hair hoping by so doing to hide the results of their earlier inattention to the details of their toilet. These unfortunates are deceiving no one but themselves as no artificial hair no matter how costly, ever has the snap and luster nor can it be made to look as pretty and attractive as natural hair.



Most ladies would resent any imputation of personal carelessness and neglect. And yet very many permit their natural hair to become so dull, brittle and lusterless that it looks no better than that bought at the store.

All this is as unfortunate as it is unnecessary. Hair that is unsightly or thin may usually be attributed to the destroying effects of Dandruff. This destructive formation shortly robs the hair of life, with the result that it finally loosens and drops out.

There is a preparation, sold and guaranteed by all dealers, the intelligent use of which will kill the dandruff germ. It cleanses the scalp of all accumulations and makes the hair shine with the luster of life and beauty. That remedy is Newbro's Herpicide, the Original Germ-Remedy for Dandruff. In no way can you add more to your personal charm and attractiveness than by the use of this remarkable and well known scalp prophylactic.

On account of its astonishing merit and its delightful and exquisite odor, Herpicide finds users everywhere among all classes. It may be purchased in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes at all drug stores and toilet goods counters. Applications may be obtained at the better barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

Upon receipt of 10 cents in postage or silver to cover cost of packing and mailing, The Herpicide Co., Dept. S, Detroit, Mich., will send to any address a nice sample bottle of Herpicide and an interesting booklet on the care of the hair.

Collarless Frocks A New Whim

Whereas Some Designers Dispense With Collars, Others Bring Out New Styles

Peplum Blouses Still Popular

New York, April 26.

To dispense entirely with collars on separate blouses and dresses is one of the latest fancies of fashion designers. Perhaps this will be a trying style for the majority of women, as most faces require the softening influence of a collar around the neck; but for those to whom it is becoming, the collarless neck as a novelty, is sure to make an appeal. There is nothing that women like more than something a little different, for to tire of a certain style, however becoming, is only human.

Many and varied are the new outlines and finishes for these collarless dresses. Square, round, oval and V shapes are all among the different outlines in vogue. The oval outline going across the neck from shoulder to shoulder at a rather shallow depth, is very interesting and is shown in the accompanying sketch. In this model the neck is finished with a cross stitch embroidery design, one of the newest forms of embroidery, or rather one of the oldest forms of embroidery recently revived. The cross stitch of generations back has returned, now that embroidery of every description enjoys so strong a vogue. It is fascinating work for those who like needlework, and so simple to do that many spring and summer frocks will be adorned with it, worked out in the attractive colours used for embroidery.

The peplum blouse illustrated is the kind that is worn with the new loose-hanging skirts, an example of which is shown in the sketch. This skirt is attached to a skeleton lining, the lining so called, hanging from the shoulders and cut on straight, loosely-fitted lines. The lining is made of some soft or thin material such as net China silk or fine lawn. The object of this type of skirt is to preserve the straight-line silhouette. It makes an excellent foundation for the peplum or outside blouses as they are called.

The blouse that buttons straight down the back is making its way surely but slowly into the fashionable world. Crocheted and decorative fancy buttons make these back closings rather attractive. Some novelty buttons are made of colored beads bunched together in ball shape. These are generally used on waists that button in front.

NEW FANCY COLLARS.

While collarless styles are fashionable, dainty collars have by no means been discarded; on the contrary, this is an accessory made very much of. Some of the new shapes fall in rather long points over the shoulders, others are pointed in front and square at the back, and the familiar sailor collar is ever present. Fine voile, marquisette and handkerchief linen in white and colors are used for the new collars. Some are hemstitched by hand, others by machine, and on almost every one there is some touch of hand embroidery. Double collars are usually made with the upper one of some colour and a white one, a little larger, under it.

KAISER'S AUTOMOBILE.

An automobile which was built in Germany for the personal use of Emperor William, and was sent to England, just before the war to be fitted with a body, has been sold for $35,000 to a Danish shipowner. It was ordered sold by the courts to satisfy the body builders' charges. It is called by the English experts the most luxurious automobile ever built.

POTATO ROLLS.

5 medium sized potatoes mashed.
4 tablespoons butter.
2 tablespoons milk.
2 egg yolks.
1-2 cup grated cheese.
1 teaspoon salt.
Paprika.

Beat the yolks well. Mix in the order given. Roll out on a floured board and make into rolls. Sprinkle with paprika. Place in a buttered pan and bake in a hot oven until a golden brown.

Utilize even left-over potatoes in a very appetising way. Less meat is needed with this side dish, as it, is most nutritious. The cheese and the egg 'balance' the starchy potato as well as seasoning it. Cost 20 cents.

1 1-2 cups milk.
1-2 cup sugar.
1-2 cup chopped almonds.
1-4 teaspoon salt.
1 1-2 tablespoons granulated gelatine soaked in 1-4 cup cold water.
1-2 pint cream whipped.
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cook the rice and milk together in the double boiler until the rice is very soft. Add the sugar and salt and the gelatine. Add the almonds. When thoroughly cold beat in the stiffly whipped cream and the vanilla. Serve very cold.

An idealised rice pudding, full of nourishment and flavour. Serve with a hot dinner in which starches are scarce. Cost, 44 cents.

ALMOND WAFERS ROLLED.

1-4 cup butter.
1-2 cup sugar.
1-4 cup milk.
3-4 cup flour.
1-3 cup finely chopped almonds.
1-4 teaspoon almond flavouring.

Cream the butter and add the sugar and milk gradually, then add flour and flavouring. Spread very thinly with the spatula on a buttered baking sheet. Sprinkle lightly with chopped almonds. Divide into three-inch squares. Bake in a slow oven until a delicate brown. Cut squares apart with a sharp knife, and while still warm roll into tubular shape, so that the almonds will be on the outside.

Delicious for afternoon tea. Nuts add nutrition to sweets of any kind. Cost 25 cents

TO BUILD WOODEN SHIPS

Canadian Government Loan of $10,000,000 Is Accepted.

OTTAWA, April 20.—A loan of ten million dollars offered by the Government to the Imperial Munitions Board to aid in the development of wooden shipbuilding in Canada has been accepted by the board.

Specifications and designs of the type of wooden vessels required have been under discussion between the board, the representatives of the British Minister of Shipping, and various shipbuilding firms. It is hoped to begin work very shortly, and that the building of a considerable number will be arranged for in Canada, probably for the most part on the Pacific, where suitable lumber is available in abundance.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

By James Sutherland

THE MILLENNIUM.

In the last talk we said that he who is ready to die is equally ready for the Lord's appearing. Jones and Parks both have made good observations on the happy state to which the world may attain on the prevalence of true religion. Even the cessation of war, and oppression and misrule with their attendant miseries, would have limited influence, in comparison with the wide diffusion of happiness which would ensue from the improvements in private life, from the banishment of vice, ambition and idleness, litigation and crime cessing, and kindness and brotherly love prevailing.

This note cannot be closed more appropriately than in the words of Bishop Hall, O. blessed Saviour, what strange variety of conceits do I find concerning thy thousand years' reign! What riddles are there in that prophecy which no human tongue can read, where to fix the beginning of that marvellous millenary, and where the end, and what manner of reign it shall be—whether temporal or spiritual—on earth or in heaven—undergoes as many constructions as there are pens who have undertaken it; and yet when all is done I see thine apostle spake only of the souls of the martyrs reigning so long with thee, not of thy reigning so long on earth with those martyrs. How busy are the tongues of men—how are their brains taken up with the indeterminable construction of this enigmatical truth, when in the meantime the care of thy spiritual reign in their hearts is neglected! O, my Saviour, while others weary themselves with the disquisition of thy personal reign here upon earth for a thousand years, let it be the whole bent of my soul to make sure of my personal reign with thee in heaven through all eternity.

Verse 12: And I saw the dead small and great stand before God. Here is evidently an allusion to the proceedings of human courts of justice, as in Daniel 7, 9, 10. To illustrate this striking imagery remark: The book of God's remembrance will be opened, Mal. 3, 16; an exact register of every man's state before God. Here are recorded all his thoughts, words and actions—a most awful book to those who die in their sins. 2nd, The book of conscience, an exact counterpart of the former. 3rd, The book of the law; the law of nature will be the canon for those who have had no other; the law of revelation for those to whom it has been manifested. But by the law can no flesh be justified. 4th, The book of the Gospel; while this will be an awfully tremendous record against all who have died in impenitence and unbelief, it will be a blessed book to every true believer in Christ Jesus. 5th, The book of Life. In this book will be found recorded the names of all those who will actually be saved, and brought to the possession of eternal glory and happiness, the chosen of the Father, the redeemed of the Son, and the sanctified of the Holy Ghost.

This book shows the perfect knowledge the omniscient God has of all those on whom he intends to bestow eternal life and whom he has registered as members of the general assembly and church of the first born which are written in heaven.—Gauntlette. The same views are partly expressed by Gill.

Further, we follow the apostolic vision as described in the 21st chapter of Revelations, which gives an account of the happiness of the Church of God in the future state, the new heaven and the new earth will not then be distinct; the very earth of the saints, their glorified bodies will be spiritual and heavenly and suited to those pure and bright mansions.

To make way for the commencement of this new world, the old world with all its troubles and commotions passed away. There will be no sea, which aptly represents entire freedom from conflicting passions, temptations, troubles, changes and alarms, and whatever can divide or interrupt the communion of saints. There remaineth a rest for the people of God.

In this new world the apostle saw the Holy City, the new Jerusalem, coming down from heaven, not as to its place, but as to its origin. This new Jerusalem is the church of God in its new and perfect state—beautified with all its perfection and wisdom and holiness meet for the full enjoyment of the Lord Jesus Christ in glory—the church triumphant. Its blessedness came wholly from God and depended on him. The presence of God with his people in heaven will not be interrupted as it is on earth, but he will dwell with them continually. They shall be his people; their souls shall be assimilated to him, filled with all the love, honour and delight in God their relation requires. This shall be their perfect holiness, and he will be their God. God himself will be their God, his immediate presence with them, his love fully manifested to them, and his glory upon them will be their perfect happiness. All effects of former trouble shall be done away. They have often been in tears by reason of sin, of affliction and of calamity, but no sign no remembrance of former sorrows shall remain. Tears may now furrow our cheeks and anguish may now distract our hearts, because of sin within us and around us, and because of its distressing effects. God himself, as their tender Father, with his kind hand shall wipe away the tears of his children. All the causes of future sorrow shall forever be removed. There shall be neither death nor pain, therefore no sorrow nor crying. These are things incident to the state in which they were before, but all former things are passed away.

This vision is of such importance to the church and people of God that they need the fullest assurances; God from heaven repeats and ratifies the truth thereof. Many ages must pass between the time when this vision was given forth and its accomplishment, and many great trials must intervene, therefore God would have it committed to writing for perpetual memory and continual use to his people. Christ makes all things new; if we are willing and desirous that the gracious Redeemer should make all things new in our hearts and nature, we need not fear but that he will make all things new in respect of our situation, till he has brought us to enjoy complete happiness. The certainty of the promise is averred; these words are faithful and true; and it follows it is done. God gives his title as a pledge for the full performance—Alpha and Omega, the Beginning and the End. Men may begin designs they never can bring to perfection; but the counsel of God shall stand, and he will do all his pleasure. They thirst after a state of sinless perfection and the uninterrupted enjoyment of God; and it would be inconsistent with the goodness of God and his love to his people to create in them holy and heavenly desires and then deny them satisfaction. The greatness of this future happiness, it is the free gift of God, he gives of water of life freely, this will not make it less, but more grateful to his people. The best earthly comforts are like the scanty supplies of a cistern. But the joy which Christ imparts are like waters springing from a fountain—pure, refreshing, abundant and eternal. The people of God enjoy this blessedness by right of inheritance, as the Sons of God, being heirs of all things

Simeon observes that some consider this vision to describe the millennial age, while others interpret it as relating to heaven itself, which the order of the prophecy seems to require, and some of the expressions determine the sense as pertaining not to this world but to the next. He adds: While we suppose the state of the glorified church to be primarily intended we apprehend its glory is considered as begun on earth and completed in heaven. It is hardly necessary to advert to the opinion of some that the New Jerusalem is to be a literal city which will be brought down from heaven and placed on earth in the land of Judea, as a residence for the saints to be raised from the dead at the commencement of the Millennium. Doddridge long since well expressed his wonder that anyone should embrace so wild and romantic a thought.

In conclusion this subject is an endless theme, to vast for the human mind to grasp, but enough has been fulfilled to assure us that all that has been foretold and spoken by the prophets shall come to pass in God's appointed time. Our duty is to watch and pray, and be ready for His appearing.

Yours sincerely,
James Sutherland.

Nervous Diseases In the Spring

Cured By Toning the Blood and Strengthening the Nerves

It is the opinion of the best medical authorities after long observation, that nervous diseases are more common and more serious in the spring than at any other time of the year. Vital changes in the system, after long winter months, may cause much more trouble than the familiar spring weakness and weariness from which most people suffer as the result of indoor life, in poorly ventilated and often overheated buildings. Official records prove that in April and May neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy and other forms of nerve troubles are at their worst, and that then, more than any other time, a blood-making, nerve-restoring tonic is needed.

The antiquated custom of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening, while purgatives only gallop through the bowels, leaving you weaker. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine, for they actually make the new, rich, red blood that feeds the starved nerves, and thus cure the many forms of nervous disorders. They cure also such other forms of spring troubles as headaches, poor appetites, weakness in the limbs, as well as remove unsightly pimples and eruptions. In fact they unfailingly bring new health and strength to weak, tired and depressed men, women and children.

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Women At Work In Big Dakota Wheat Fields

SHORTAGE OF FARM HANDS TURNS GIRLS TO HOE AND PLOW.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., April 26.—Because of a shortage of farm hands, it has become necessary in many parts of South Dakota for the women and boys of the farmers' household, and even the girls, to volunteer for work in the fields. The farmers, assisted by their wives and children in localities where farm hands cannot be secured, now are hard at work putting in what is believed to be the greatest acreage of spring wheat in the history of South Dakota.

Because of the prospect that prices for foodstuffs will continue high by reason of the war and other causes, the farmers of the state have generally decided to increase their crop acreage. With a favourable season South Dakota will this year produce the greatest crop of foodstuffs in its history.

Such farm hands as have appeared in the state in search of work are demanding from $35 to $45 per month and board, and in many instances farmers are compelled to pay these prices. Only a comparatively few years ago good farm hands could be secured in South Dakota for from $12 to $20 per month and board. Even hands who received $20 per month and board being looked upon almost as kings by their less fortunate or less competent fellows.

28 PER CENT. OF CANADA UNEXPLORED

Unexplored Canada is the subject of an article by Charles Camsell, of the Geological Survey at Ottawa, in "The Geographical Journal." He says:

"I find in Western Canada areas aggregating 642,000 square miles in extent which must still be considered as unexplored, and in Northen Quebec about 259,000 square miles more, making an aggregate of 901,000 square miles. This does not include areas under 4,000 square miles in extent."

East of Reindeer Lake and Kasan River in Manitoba and North-West Territory, there are 79,000 square miles of unexplored territory, it is estimated. This is larger than Missouri or North Dakota, and larger than the sum of the areas of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts. On the peninsula between Ungava and Hudson Bays, Quebec, there is a still more extensive area of 75,000 square miles that is a blank on an honest map. Here are other large tracts that invite the explorer: South and east of Backs River, North-West Territory, 72,000 square miles; north of Eastman River, Quebec, 65,000 square miles; north-west of Great Bear Lake, North-West Territory, 61,000 square miles; north of Great Slave Lake and Backs River, North-West Territory, 61,000 square miles; east and south of the Kaniapishaw River, Quebec, 54,000 square miles. For the purpose of comparison the area of New York is 49,204 square miles. North-West Territory contains more blank spaces even than the Yukon. Ontario has three, in extent from six to eight thousand square miles. Twenty-eight per cent. of continental Canada is still unexplored.

The earlier pioneers searched the Canadian wilderness for fur-bearing animals; to-day men penetrate it to look for minerals and oil. "If we superpose these unexplored areas on the geological map of Canada," says Mr. Camsell, "we shall find that the greater part of them lie in what is colored as pre-Cambrian, or in geological formations similar to those in which, under certain conditions, the rich deposits of copper, nickel, iron, silver and gold of northern Ontario occur." But there must still be productive agricultural land in the Peace River and the Athabaska River regions marked as unknown. In the basin of the Mackenzie River "is believed to be one of the largest areas of possible oil-bearing country yet unexplored on the face of the earth." It is to be noted that the experts estimate that the oil supply of the United States will be exhausted in thirty years.

Indians have reported Lakes in the Yukon 60 and 70 miles long that no white man has ever seen; the Mackensie Mountains, even the Indians know nothing about; and it will be many years before the mystery of Northern Canada is lifted for the cartographer. Fortunes await the daring prospector; for the hunter there is an abundance of game and fish, and innumerable virgin peaks invite the mountain climber.

Knit to "Nature's" Last

Ordinary hosiery is stretched into shape over a form while the hosiery is damp. It loses this shape when washed.

Mercury Hosiery retains its shape, because it is knitted to "Nature's Last" on new machines.

These machines knit the full fashioned calf—the narrow ankle, fashioned at the sides—perfectly turned toe—wider, more comfortable, fashioned top.

The finish of this new Mercury Hosiery is even superior to the high-class foreign lines formerly imported. The wear is better.

Try a pair and you'll be convinced that Mercury is unequalled for style, fit and wear.

LIVE FOREVER

Says DR. WILEY

In a recent lecture, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the noted chemist and food expert, said:

"If you mix whole wheat products with milk you can live forever."

What Dr. Wiley undoubtedly means by "Live forever" is the fact that whole wheat with milk contains the proper elements for sustaining life without the addition of other foods.

Krumbles is the whole of the wheat, thoroughly toasted, and has a delicious flavor.

OFFICERS TO RETURN.

Not one Accompanies 214th Batt., Due to Financial Tangle.

REGINA, Sask., April 20.—None of the officers of the 214th Battalion will be permitted to proceed overseas. By order of the Militia Department, Ottawa, the entire official staff, from Lieut.-Col. J. H. Hearn to the junior subaltern, is on the way back to Saskatchewan pending an official investigation. The battalion will proceed under other officers. It is claimed that the 214th left Saskatoon with between $5,000 and $6,000 in regimental debts behind and a host of creditors.

It is alleged that canteen funds were used for recruiting purposes before the liabilities of the battalion were liquidated. In addition an investigation is proceeding regarding the sale of Government property and five non-commissioned officers and a private are being returned.

British Workers Fear Exorbitant Food Cost

Urge the Government to Buy Essential Imports and Commandeer Home Products.

LONDON, April 26.—The Workers' National Committee, representing a number of leading labour organizations, has made the following recommendations to the British Parliament:

"In the opinion of this committee the real langer ahead is not so much that supplies will be reduced to a famine basis, but that foodstuffs will be allowed to be driven up to such prices that the well-to-do will satisfy their needs at the expense of the unprosperous, while additional profits will be afforded wholesale and retail traders.

"It therefore is imperative that the local authorities throughout the country immediately take in hand the organizing and distributing of the food supply in their respective areas; that the workers' organizations set up vigilance committees, and that the Governments take the following measures:

"First—That purchase of all essential imported foodstuffs.

"Second—The commandeering of all home-grown products.

"Third—To place all such commodities on local markets under conditions which will secure full benefits of the Government's action to the consumer.

"Fourth—To regulate on an equitable basis the consumption of all foodstuffs whereby there is a shortage.

"Fifth—To sell bread during the war at 6 pence per four-pound loaf, any loss so involved to be met as part of the general cost of the war."

The committee demands that labour have representation on all local food control committees.

Our country needs grand and good men, and to become a grand and good man, one must be a grand and good boy. It is a wrong idea that every boy must "sow his wild oats." When you sow a crop of wild oats, you must take time to harvest a crop; and the crop is never anything but chaff. "Wild oats" need never be sown. The time spent in sowing wild oats is worse than lost, for the time could be spent in sowing a crop that would yield a golden harvest. Be careful about the kind of seed you sow, for "whatever a man soweth that shall he also reap."

EVERYDAY READING

(From Central News)

The relating, either by voice of pen, of the way a person comes out into the light and freedom of being in the will of God, to me is interesting, and, no doubt, to many others. It is said of Augustine, that he scorned to be blest, until he could find in God his soul's true rest. He felt the agony of doubt, the craving for a certainty divine; but to him, light shone at last, and no uncertain morn spread its soft daybreak over his aching heart. No doubt, there are many in our city, who false lights confuse, and yet whose longing spirits are groping after a knowledge of God and His will concerning them. It is a fact that a view of purity will bring to the impure a sense of their own lack of purity. A conviction of our sinfulness is the initial experience in getting out to become a Christian. I almost used some other word, as the word "Christian" has to a certain extent lost its real meaning to many. I remember after coming to a knowledge of my sinfulness and need of deliverance from the same. I found myself tangled up with creed and theory. After having gotten somewhat free of the tangle, I was in a meeting, when some man, who had "Rev." prefixed to his name, was taking some part in the service and possibly seeing by my countenance that I was a seeker, he came to the seat where I was and asked me the question: "Are you seeking justification or santification?" Had I the knowledge, that I now have then, and the same feelings I then had, it would not have been strange if I had slapped him in the face. It was not getting more entangled, but finding the remedy for sin was what I was seeking. Later on, after the light came, and I was given to know God's mercy, love, and will concerning me, I was in a meeting and knelt to make an entire surrender to the Lord Jesus. As I knelt a man came to me and said to me, "now lift up your head and cry aloud." As the man spoke I pushed him violently away. He did not come back. God the Holy Spirit had made it clear to me the way of deliverance in Jesus, and, of course, I had no use or need for his false instructions. I remember one, who was interested in my getting deliverance, who used to almost invariably, when meeting me, ask me if I had got victory or was I right with God? My answer always was in the negative, with a horizontal shake of the head. But one day, the question was again asked, "Was I right with God?" And I made answer "Yes." I wish I could give you a picture of that fact at that moment, such a combination of surprise, confidence and gladness that I cannot describe. My testimony then was "Victory." My creed, "I believe in God." Some may say, that is good; but the great question is "how can I continue to live this life? The answer is plain, as we have received Jesus, so we must walk in Him. The first step in the Christian life is a step of obedience to the Holy Spirit and it is only continuing to live in obedience.

VICTOR.

"Their Little Evening Shoot"

I rode into Festubert, which was full of noise, says Captain W. H. L. Watson, in his "Adventures of a Dispatch Rider," and hastily dismounting, put my motor cycle under the cover of an arch and reported to the general. He was sitting at a table in the stuffy room of a particularly dirty tavern. At the far end a fat and frightened woman was crooning to her child. Beside her sat a wrinkled, leathery old man with a bandaged head. He had wandered into the street and he had been hit by shrapnel. The few wits that he had ever possessed were gone, and he gave every few seconds, little croaks of hate. Three telephone operators were working with strained faces at the highest speed. The windows had been smashed by shrapnel, and bits of glass and things crunched under foot. The room was full of noises; the crackle of the telephones, the crooning of the woman, the croak of the wounded old man, the clear and incisive tones of the generof not-to-distant rifles, the rattle of not-too-distant rifles, the booming of the guns and occasionally the terrific, overwhelming crash of a shell bursting in the village.

There was the sharp cry of shrapnel in the street and a sudden rattle against the whole house. The woman and the child fled somewhere through a door, followed feebly by the old man. The brigade major persuaded the general to work in some less unhealthful place. The telephone operators moved. A moment's delay, as the general endeavored to persuade the brigade major to go first, and we found ourselves under a stalwart arch that led into the courtyard of the tavern. We lit cigarettes. The crashes of bursting shells grew more frequent and the general remarked in a dry and injured tone:

"Their usual little evening shoot before putting up the shutters, I suppose."

But first the Germans "searched" the village. Now to search a village means to start at one end of the village and place shells at discreet distances until the other end of the village is reached. It is an unpleasant process for those in the middle of the village, even if they be standing as it were in comparatively good shelter.

We heard the Germans start at the other end of the village street. The crashes came nearer and nearer, until a shell burst with a scream and a thunderous roar just on our right. We puffed away at our cigarettes for a second, and a certain dispatch rider wished he were anywhere but in the cursed village of Festubert by Bethune. There was another scream and overwhelming relief. The next shell [illegible] beyond us to our left.

The Germans finished "their little evening shoot." We marched back very slowly in the darkness to 1910 Farm.

Her Laugh At Joke Cost Employers $2,000

Theresa Jensen, a clerk in a five and ten cent store at Dover, N.J., was pinning up show cards and had a dozen pins in her mouth when the assistant manager came along, said good morning, and commented that the pins in her mouth reminded him of a new joke, about why a chicken crosses the road.

"Oh, why does a chicken cross the road?" pleaded Miss Jensen.

"So she can get run over by an automobile and her owner collects $3 in these times of high prices," said the assistant manager.

Miss Jensen laughed so heartily that she swallowed half the pins and yesterday Judge Salmon in the Morris County Court at Morristown, N. J., ordered the owner of the store to pay Miss Jensen $50 for medical fees, $150 for court expenses and $5 a week for 400 weeks.

She sued under the employers' liability law, contending that the assistant manager, representing the employer, had told a joke that caused her to swallow the pins, resulting in permanent injury.

"You are the most curious woman I ever heard of," said a boy to his mother, "You tell me that I have a bad temper, and yet blame me for losing it."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Supper At Sanger's

By SADIE OLCOTT

Jenny Wright was, between the ages of sixteen and twenty, the belle of the village.

When Jenny was nineteen there were even chances between Arthur Perry and Herbert Angell. Among the laggards Ed De Forest's show seemed the poorest.

Now, Jenny Wright's bunch was considered the liveliest that had ever been known at Hunterville. They were constantly playing pranks on one another, and never was there a case wherein the person victimized failed to take his or her medicine good naturedly. Then, too, there were driving, fishing and swimming parties in summer and skating and coasting parties in winter.

One day when they were together at their headquarters, which was Jenny Wright's home, one of the boys complained that there was, as he expressed it, "nothing doing," which meant that amusements were lacking. One of the girls proposed that they get up a mock elopement. The idea caught at once, and different plans of proceedure were suggested. Of course Jenny must be the feminine part of the elopement. That went without saying. But who was to be the masculine part of it?

Naturally at this point there came a halt. None of the girls cared to nominate a fellow to elope with Jenny. No fellow would nominate himself and certainly wouldn't nominate any one else. Jenny, of course, was not in a position to choose. What made the matter of more import was that Arthur Perry and Herbert Angell were pressing each other in a mad chase for her favor, which was supposed eventually to mean her hand.

When it looked as if the matter would have to be dropped for want of a selection of an eloping groom Arthur Perry, who felt more confidence in his chances for being chosen to be eventually Jenny's real husband, suggested that Jenny herself make the choice, but that it be kept a secret between her and the fellow she chose till the elopement had taken place. She was to notify the party of her choice, and he was to run away with her exactly on the stroke of 9 of the town clock. At 10 the bridal party was to meet at Sanger's, a hotel and roadhouse at Hilton, five miles distant, where they would all congratulate the bridal couple and then sit down to a supper.

The suggestion was at once adopted by all the party except Jenny, who was finally won over. It was not considered certain that she would select the man she would choose for a husband, but it was supposed that she would.

Sanger was notified to have a supper ready at half past 10 for a party of twelve on the evening appointed for the elopement. The girls very nearly wore out Jenny, each one teasing her to give her the name of the prospective groom. Jenny proved to be adamant and kept her secret. Among the boys a pool was made as to who would be chosen, with Arthur Perry favorite, Herbert Angell next, and a fellow named Jernigan received odds as a dark horse. There were a few other scattering bets on various fellows. Johnny Stevens would have nothing to do with the pool on the ground that it was a blind game. "No fellow," he said, "can ever form an intelligent opinion as to what a girl is going to do."

The elopement was held up for a week by the weather, which was stormy, and this tended to increase the interest in the prank to the boiling point. Even the girls got to betting candy and flowers and gloves. Jenny said she couldn't see why there was so much excitement about a matter that was all for fun, but her words had no effect to still the unrest.

The night of the elopement having arrived, the wedding guests assembled at the house of one of the girls, while a motorcar stood at the door. Since it was desirable that the groom should not be known before reaching Sanger's, it had been arranged that the girls should go together, the boys separately and each one by himself. At half past 9 the girls boarded the car which was driven by Miss Cheesman, its owner, and set out for the rendesvous.

On reaching Sanger's they found all the boys there, and while the girls were being handed out of the car by them up came the runaways. The masculine part of the couple was not Perry or Angell or Jernigan, but a horse darker than the last named and one who had not been suspected of having any chance whatever. He was Edward De Forest.

He handed Jenny out of the car with the bearing of one who had not been selected to carry out a bit of fun, but with an air of proprietorship. When all had alighted and gone into the hotel drawing room the boys and girls advanced to congratulate the couple. De Forest raised a hand, and there was a pause.

"Girls and fellows," he said, "I have a surprise for you. There has been no elopement. Jenny and I have been engaged for some time, and with her and my parents' consent we were married at her home at 9 o'clock this evening. We are ready to accept your congratulations as a real bride and groom."

The two favorites in the race wilted. The others with great gusto began the pump handle act. Perry and Angell finally falling into line.

Then came the merriest supper that ever occurred at Sanger's.

Wincarnis Offers New Health - New Life

GET a bottle of Wincarnis to-day and see how quickly it will help you to regain your former health and vitality. Wincarnis possesses a four-fold power in creating the health you need.

Wincarnis is a tonic, a restorative, a blood-maker, and a nerve food—all in one. Therefore it promotes new strength, new blood, new nerve force and new vitality. That is why over 18,000 doctors recommend Wincarnis. And it is also the reason why you can take Wincarnis with the certain knowledge that it can give you new health.

If you are weak, Wincarnis will give you new strength. If you are anaemic, Wincarnis will give you new rich red blood. If you are nervous, Wincarnis will give you new nerve force. If you are run-down, Wincarnis will give you new vitality.

Wincarnis has been famous in Europe for a third of a century. Thousands have testified that it has restored them to health and strength. Don't confuse it with the many inferior preparations of apparently similar nature; buy Wincarnis itself, the tonic that has been unsuccessfully imitated for 33 years.

Officials Working Against Allies

LONDON, April 26. — Replying to a question in the House of Commons, Lord Robert Cecil, the Minister of Blockade, confirmed a report that the French military authorities in Saloniki were in possession of proofs that bands of irregulars guilty of depredations to Venizelists in Greece, were armed and organized from Athens.

Lord Robert also stated the French had found that the assistant commissioner of peace at Kiponago, recently arrested by French authorities for making false statements about the French army, had in his possession written orders from officials of King Constantine to the chief of the irregular bands which were committing depredations in Thessaly, as well as rifles and ammunition of the Greek army party.

The commander of the Allied forces Lord Robert added, was taking steps to deal with the situation.

CAMPBELL & BEST

"WHEN THE CURTAIN FALLS."

I, too, have watched the Play, though from a gallery seat—
The play of modern life, its actors men
Who stroll or strut or gallop through their lines,
Some sad, some gay, but all adventuring
And asking ever eagerly: "What next?"
All hungering for that supernal food, Success and Love.

I've seen in this same mad, illusive, screaming farce
A miracle take place — new reason dawn!
At first, men brutalized and women cowed
By that familiar devil, Drink . . . yet all
Agreeing: "It has been . . . must always be . . . ."
And, then, incredibly, a new regime,
Clean hatred of the sodden, gruesome thing,
Until whole Nations, Armies, Governments,
Remould their men by worship of that god,
Efficiency!

I've seen War swoop like yonder ugly vulture—down
To claw and kill a race—and then strange Good
Upspringing from the pest . . . a cleaner air,
From careless youth fresh courage, purpose, plan;
From callous worldlings a new tenderness,
A wider vision, guerdon of Themselves!
From worn and angry men a juster view
Of that brave, battered but aspiring thing
Called Womanhood!

Right closely have I watched this drama, every act!
I've laughed and loved and wept . . . lived on, past tears . . .
Still hypnotised by action, movement, plot:
Invisibly I've played my tiny part,
Known fear, dread climax and still aftermath. . .
So, when for me the curtain drops at last
I'll hasten gladly home, content to say, I've played my part.

And yet I'm watching still . . . I wait the end
Of all this stench of death, this roar of guns,
This grip of Titans with relentless gods
As in the older days—the final drive
Of lust and gold and mad imperial greed
Against the hosts who fight more humanly
For Freedom, progress, little Peoples' rights,
For safety Everywhere, in every land
And on the Seas.

Before the final curtain falls at last for me,
Great God of Battles . . . . and of Beauty, too!—
Make all secure again thy hurtling World,
Purge it of cruelty, revenge, lust, greed,
Bring us at last—in honour—thy clean Dawn
Of cloudless peace!

—Elizabeth Newport Hepburn, in New York Times.

The Vegetable Garden Is a Valuable Asset To Any Farm As Well As The City Home

THE FARMER'S VEGETABLE GARDEN.

Unfortunately the average Ontario farmer pays but little attention to the growing of vegetables for his own use. Usually the excuse given is that he has not the time, and the next best reason is that he does not bother about them. This should not be, for the farmer has the land and the manure and the tools, and he should grow a supply of vegetables for his own use, both for summer as well as fall and winter use. Very few farmers have asparagus, more because it is considered a luxury for the rich. A small patch of asparagus should be found beside every farmhouse in the Province. Once it is established it requires very little attention and the crop is one of the first in the spring. A small plot of ground close to the house could be easily handled and such crops as spinach, lettuce, radish, early beets, carrots and cabbage grown quite easily. Probably the root field will be the best place to grow the root vegetables for winter use. Beets, carrots, parsnips, turnips, onions, cabbage, squash, pumpkins and corn can be sown in the field and handled at the same time as the field crop of mangels or turnips. No other crop on the farm will give as much satisfaction to the grower himself as the vegetables. Sufficient vegetables can be grown to supply a good change of food during the winter months if properly stored.

Vegetable growing being such an intensive form of agriculture and there being such a number of crops which demand careful attention it is quite apparent that numerous tools and appliances are necessary to satisfactorily grow a good crop.

For the backyard garden a spade, a digging fork and a hoe are absolutely essential. It is more convenient to have a garden line, several hoes of various shapes and a hand weeder. For the market garden a first-class seed drill, a wheel hoe with several attachments, numerous hoes, rakes, spades, digging forks, etc., are essential, besides the various horse cultivators which are necessary in the larger crops. Dibbers for transplanting come in various sizes and shapes. A very useful one may be made from a broken spade handle. This should be about fifteen inches in length and sharpened to a point. There are combined weeders and mulchers on the market which have proven labour savers for the vegetable grower.

Horse drawn implements, such as scufflers, should be of the best and such that several operations may be handled with the one machine by adjustment or addition of parts. Plant boxes or flats, as they are most generally called, should be 12 x 18 inches in size for convenient use, and should not be deeper than three inches. Finnan haddie boxes may be used for this purpose. Small frames to hold one pane of glass are also to be found on many vegetable gardens. These are used to hasten growth of plants and protect them from frost. Hot beds and cold frames are also essential parts of a vegetable grower's equipment and are described in another section. Mats are sometimes used to cover the sash of a hot bed on a cold night. Spraying apparatus is necessary for the successful growing of some crops. A knapsack sprayer should be made of brass, as the galvanized iron will not stand the corrosion from the materials used.

Compressed air machines, which develop the power from the wheel, are also used on large gardens. On a small garden a barrel pump set on a platform constructed on two cultivator wheels will do excellent work.

GOOD SEED.

Probably there is no more important end of the vegetable business than that of the seed. A grower may have soil of the finest quality, have all the tools necessary, have plenty of labour and yet his efforts will be a failure if his seed is not up to the mark. Too much has been said of later years on the point of cheaper seed, and too little on seed possessing a better germination value and a better quality altogether. True, some seeds would be appreciated more if they were somewhat lower in price, but practically 95 per cent. of Ontario vegetable growers would rather pay more for their seed and feel confident that the crop would be a success as far as the seed end was concerned. One celery grower in Ontario this past season would have been money in pocket had he paid $100 per ounce for good seed. All vegetable growers should buy the very best seed possible, no matter how much it costs, in order to prevent serious losses. Further, it is not advisable to limit the purchasing of seed to one seedsman. Better to have samples from two or three and compare results. This will also help to overcome losses through impure seed. A grower should buy his seed from men who are absolutely reliable and well known.

However, if a grower will not follow these practices the least he can do is to grow one season a small quantity of the seed he intends using during the next. If it is of good or poor quality he will find out without losing too much. Many of the more progressive growers in Ontario make a practice of this in such important crops as celery, onions and cauliflower.

"Quality" in the seed should be considered above al things.

POTS.

Success in growing early vegetables depends on the quality of the plant which is set out in the field. It should be strong and vigorous and should be grown throughout all its young stages without any check. Owing to the rapid growth of the plants they soon become too large for the flats in which they have been planted. It is a general rule to transplant them into pots of some kind. Clay pots of various sizes have been used for this purpose for a number of years, and on many gardens they are just as much a part of the equipment as any of the tools. During later years paper pots have come into a more general use. These are made from a stiff paper, usually a heavy manilla paper, which can be procured at any wholesale grocers. Two, four and six-inch paper pots are most generally used. The vegetable grower can have them made for him at a very reasonable cost by any printer, or he can cut them himself, or he can purchase them already cut for about $1.75 per 1,000. It is usually considered that the latter method is the most satisfactory one.

Many growers prefer to use these paper pots or dirt bands, as they are sometimes called, in preference to clay pots. They are set in flats filled with earth and the plants transplanted into them. They cannot be moved separately as well as the clay pots, but a number can be handled in one flat. They are very cheap and the plants do just as well in them as in clay pots, and when transplanting in the open comes, pot and all can be planted. They are specially good for tomato plants and stand up well under watering. Quart berry boxes are often used for tomatoes and give equal success. The cost of these is considerable, and yet many growers prefer them to either clay or paper pots, because of the ease of handling individual plants.

CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATIONS.

Vegetable growers have been co-operating with one another in several sections of the Province for purposes of buying and selling. The most notable example of the good effect that co-operation has shown is to be found in the Sarnia district. Two co-operative associations there have increased the output of that district from a minimum some five or six years ago to over 400 carloads of vegetables in 1914, valued at over $100,000. They ship their products to many parts of the Province as well as to distant points in the Dominion. Their goods are becoming known on the market and a ready sale is found for Sarnia vegetables. What can be done in Sarnia district can be done in many other sections of the Province, and districts so located as to have excellent shipping facilities can become important vegetable centres. Through the operations of these co-operative associations the quality of the product is rapidly becoming better.

Carload lots demand uniform quality, and this demands a standardization of variety and a uniformity of the goods shipped out from one district.

LIMING OF SOIL.

By the continued applications of immense quantities of manure every year it is often found that vegetable garden soils have become acid. This is particularly so in muck soils. Plants cannot grow to their best advantage in acid soils. Lime is a corrector of such conditions. Practically all garden soils in Ontario would benefit by applications of from 500 to 1,000 lbs. of lime per acre. Any form of lime is used, and it is best to apply it in the fall, although spring applications are valuable also. Rock lime can be piled in heaps and covered with soil and allowed to slake. The slaked lime should then be spread. Agricultural lime or ground limestone can be broadcasted by means of a bright shovel. Liming should be given garden soils at least once in five years.

HOTBEDS.

Although during later years greenhouses have become more generally used hotbeds are still extensively employed wherever it is necessary to start early plants. A hotbed is simply an inexpensive forcer which can be erected by anyone. Many farmers annually lay down a hotbed, quite a number of city gardeners use them and every vegetable grower depends on them for probably 50 per cent. of his outdoor crop.

Seed can be sown in the hotbed before the snow is off the ground, and the plants will have from four to six weeks' start when warm weather comes in the spring. By this means the vegetable grower has that much start on the crop grown from seed. This means early marketing, which every grower is seeking for because of the increase in returns.

Some crops can be grown to maturity in our climate only by the use of the hotbed.

Location—Hotbeds should be placed in a warm position close to the house or greenhouse. First and foremost they must be handy, for considerable attention is required to handle a hotbed successfully.

They should be set facing the south if possible, and should be sheltered from severe winds by buildings or windbreaks, either natural or artificial. On vegetable gardens where perhaps 100 beds are made, the rows should be parallel and should be such a distance apart that the plants can be conveniently handled. Some growers have them three feet apart and others ten feet. They should be located close to a ready supply of water, for large quantities are required at all seasons.

Construction—Most hotbeds in Ontario are heated by the fermentation of horse manure. Some are heated by steam-pipe extensions from greenhouses. Both methods are good, but the manure method is more in general use than the steam pipe.

The standard size of a hotbed sash is 3 ft. x 6 ft., although it is not absolutely necessary to secure this size. Any ordinary window will give good service. A frame must be built to support this window. One inch lumber is usually used, and the frame is so constructed that there is a fall of one inch for every foot of length of the frame. From this there is sufficient slope to catch all the rays of the sun and to run off rain or moisture which collects on the glass. The depths of the sides and ends should be approximately for a standard hotbed sixteen inches at high end and twelve at low end. Two light hotbeds are made by simply doubling the length of the frame and midway putting in a three-inch piece to support the sash in the centres.

How to Make a Hotbed—Secure a quantity of fresh horse manure that has been stored a few days, so that it will ferment readily. Turn this over twice to thoroughly mix it. Pile this manure on the south side of a house, barn or high tight board fence to break the force of the wind. Pile to a depth of 18 inches or two feet, and tramp down thoroughly as each six inches is added. Set frame on top of this. Put in four to six inches of soil and then place the sash or window on top of frame. Manure should then be piled around the frame on all sides up to the top. This keeps the sides as well as the bottom supplied with plenty of heat. The bed should then be allowed to stand for four days to allow all noxious gases to come away from the manure. Lifting the glass a couple of inches for several hours a day will allow the escape of these gases. After the fourth day the soil should be raked down level, all sticks, stones and pieces of straw removed and then planting can commence. Temperature should be between 80 and 90 degrees.

Lance Corp. John Andrews, who enlisted here with the 93rd Battalion in November, 1915, is officially reported killed in action, his name appearing in last night's official list issued from Ottawa. Lance Corp. Andrews was a member of B company of the 93rd, and recently a message from Ottawa stated that Pte. Kimball was missing, and yesterday another message stated that he was reported not missing.

PTE. LEO MEAGHER.

Pte. Leo Meagher, son of Mr. Wm. Meagher, 92 Aylmer street, has been killed in action. The sad news came in an official message from Ottawa this morning. Pte. Meagher enlisted early in the war with a western unit and had once before appeared on the casualty lists, having been shot through the foot. Pte. Meagher was very well known in the city.

In connection with the extract from a letter from Gunner Sydney Armstrong in last night's Examiner, in which he stated that Gunner Norman Laing was in London, should have been added the fact that Gunner Laing was very ill in a hospital in England.

procure necessary dog catching apparatus. All this will be welcome news to garden owners and merchants who are prone to display their goods outside the stores. The quarantine regulation will continue for an indefinite period. It is safe to say that this period will not be less than ninety days.

A HOWLING SUCCESS.

The Council also adopted a resolution recommending that adjoining townships take similar action as it is feared that the recent outbreak of rabies may have spread to outlying points. Once case is known in Lakefield where a woman was bitten by a dog also a girl so that the extension of the city's ordinance to the adjoining municipalities will likely follow.

Dr. C. H. Amys, Medical Officer of Health who was present at last night's meeting urged the Council to take effective means to stamp out the deadly malady. At ten minutes to nine Mayor Duffus attached his signature to the document that seals the freedom of dogdom for at least ninety days. "The by-law ought to be a howling success," commented Ald. Dobbin.

PETROGRAD, April 28.—In an interview to-day Minister of Justice Kerensky declared that not only is the Russian army more active, efficient, and more loyal than ever to the Allies' cause, but munitions factories are turning out more munitions, and the entire nation is uniting in support of military efficiency and the crushing of German military autocracy.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Combined assault of the biggest force of men than probably ever charged forward, with the greatest blast of artillery that the world ever knew was in progress to-day on the western front.

London, Paris and Berlin official statements all indicated the resumption of a joint, concerted offensive movement by the French and British armies. They told of violently bitter fighting along almost all that great front. Both Allied commanders reported gains, and made in face of the most tenaciously desperate resistance from the enemy. Berlin insisted the attacks had been repulsed.

United Press front despatches indicated that by powerful thrusts around Oppy, the British had succeeded in turning the so-called "Wotan line," running from Oppy southward to Queant. This line is supposed to be part of the preliminary defenses of the Hindenburg line itself, and has been desperately defended by great forces of the enemy.

I came to Paris with other British delegates to attend a conference of committees formed in England, France, Russia and Italy, the first business of which was to send congratulations to Russia, through Milukoff, upon its newly-acquired freedom, and to offer to send a delegation to Russia if it were desired. This was to express our warm sympathy with Russian democracy and to let the people there know that the world gloried in the resurrection of Russia and the ending of the long slavery of the Russian people. It was also to offset the michevious conspiracy of pacifists and socialists who have flocked to Stockholm and Petrograd from nearly all the countries of Europe in an attempt to cooperate with the small section of the Russian Socialist party which holds that Russia should abandon warfare and make a separate peace. Berlin's one hope is that it may operate through this party.

GENERAL HAIG'S FORCES HAVE TURNED GERMAN "WOTAN" LINE

Halt at the Village of Oppy, the Northernmost Point of the German Defences Captured by the British --- Aileux Also Falls Into British Hands---Desperately Hot Fighting is Reported Around Both Points With the Germans Counter-Attacking Desperately.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES AFIELD, April 28.—British troops have turned the German "Wotan line." Half of the Village of Oppy, believed to be the northern-most town of this German defense front, was captured to-day in desperately hot fighting. Arleux, a trifle further to the north, also fell to the tremendous British assault. Information from other sections of the British front reaching the spot from which the despatch is written, detailed fighting on a tremendous scale of intensity. Around Oppy and Arleux it was still progressing after a night of never-ceasing clash. The armies on both sides swayed backward and forwarl in the struggle. The latest report to-day showed the British still in possession of half of Oppy and all of Arleux, and beating back desperate German counter-attacks.

Around Gavrelle Haig's offensive was still gaining ground. A steady stream of prisoners from this bloody angle were being shifted back of the lines. To the south, as part of his gigantic push, Haig's troops were thrown toward Greenland Hill. They struck hard and fast at the massed German forces, and swarmed over into a German trench running south of the Scarpe.

There they stuck fast despite tremendous blows launched by the Germans. Not even the literal melting away of the German attack in the face of murderous machine gun fire and the steel curtain of British artillery stopped the desperate enemy counter thrusts. The German losses are staggering in these attacks.

At the present moment the most bitter fighting, however, was apparently in progress in the woods to the west of Roeux, just above the Scarpe. There the front was literally being mowed down by artillery fire and the moss was stained red with rivulets of blood as the Germans madly attacked, were locked in bitter conflict, then thrown back, only to reform and attack again. Meanwhile the British inched further and further forward.

THE HAGUE, April 28.—Germany blames her enemies for much of the industrial discontent now apparent. Because of this suspicion it was hinted that the Government was taking drastic measures to prevent any stoppage of work in munitions factories. Apparently May Day is nevertheless awaited, with considerable apprehension. Unrest due to curtailment of food, to war weariness and to desire for franshise reform is aiding in the plan.

LONDON, April 28.—Field Marshal Haig struck another tremendous blow at the German lines to-day in a powerfully revived offensive over a front of several miles north of the River Scarpe. "Early this morning we attacked on a front of several miles north of the Ccarpe," he reported. "meeting considerable opposition, but making good progress." Battle front despatches indicated violent fighting still in progress during the day along the whole line of this great drive.

COPENHAGEN, April 28.—Germany's Conservative newspapers are now talking guarantees against encroachments on Germany's territory as necessary to any peace agreement. To-ray the Vossische Zeitung (Berlin), carried a long editorial discussing the semi-official Vienna declaration that Austria was willing to forego all annexation plans in event of peace. "It is quite different in Germany," the newspaper asserted. "Our armies invaded Russia. Nevertheless, Germany is ready for peace without taking Russian territory. But she must have territorial guarantees." A number of other Berlin newspapers expressed similar sentiments.

LONDON, April 28. — Germany is draining her empire of men to throw against the onrushing waves of the Franco-British offensive. The necessity of interposing some check to the steady advance of the Allied forces on the western front is being desperately felt by the military chiefs who realize the growing discontent in Germany, manifest in various strikes, in Socialist peace propaganda, in dissatisfaction over the rations, in agitation for gre ter participation in Governmental affairs by the people. Despatches to-day indicate that Germany is opposing the Franco-British advance with forces superior to the attacking armies, and still these divisions do no more than slow up the advance.

PETROGRAD, April 28.—In an interview to-day Minister of Justice Kerensky declared that not only is the Russian army more active, efficient, and more loyal than ever to the Allies' cause, but munitions factories are turning out more munitions, and the entire nation is uniting in support of military efficiency and the crushing of German military autocracy.

HORRORS OF HUNS ATROCITIES CANNOT BE FULLY DESCRIBED

Decencies of Civilization Prohibit One at War Hinting at Many of the Indignities Inflicted by the German Invaders.

HUNGER A WEAPON

By T. P. O'Connor

PARIS, April 28.—I have just returned from a trip through some of the territory long held by Germany, but not recaptured by the brave sons of France. Many stories have been told of the wanton destruction by the Germans, of the atrocities they have committed and of the fearful conditions they have created in their Hun-like warfare. Terrible as some of these stories are, not one that I have read has even approached the awful truth. Powers of description fail when they are called upon to picture the destruction of beautiful and historic edifices, the orchards, farms and land laid waste in vandalism that destroys for nothing except the pleasure of destroying; nd the decencies of civilization prohibit one from even hinting at many of the indignities, humiliations and atrocities inflicted by the German conquerors upon both male and female, young and old, among the inhabitants. Time will some day restore the devastated land to its fruitfulness, new buildings will replace some of those which have been destroyed, and, so far as visualization is concerned, the destructive reign of the German will be forgotten; but never so long as the human tongue can pass down from generation to generation the awful tales of wrongs suffered, will the people of this ravaged country either forget or forgive the race, which defied all the laws of God and man. NO DOGS WILL BE PERMITTED TO ROAM THE STREETS

Council Adopts Emergency Policy Because of Rabies Outbreak and Decides To Impound All Canines Found Roaming at Large

A PRECAUTIONARY MEASURE

There is deep gloom in dogland. At a special emergency meeting of the Board of Health and the City Council called last evening, on account of the outbreak of rabies, it was decided to impose regulations restraining all dogs in the city from running at large. A bylaw to this effect was unanimously adopted by the Council so as to give the new edict immediate effect. All dogs running at large will be impounded in an inclosure to be erected near the incinerator where the interned canines may ponder over their ultimate fate should the authorities deem such a course necessary. Between six and seven hundred dogs will be effected by the new order which was in force for the first time to-day. Owners of dogs must keep the animals tied up or in a suitable inclosure.

The Property Committee was given authority to construct a pound and procure necessary dog catching apparatus. All this will be welcome news to garden owners and merchants who are prone to display their goods outside the stores. The quarantine regulation will continue for an indefinite period. It is safe to say that this period will not be less than ninety days.

A HOWLING SUCCESS.

The Council also adopted a resolution recommending that adjoining townships take similar action as it is feared that the recent outbreak or rabies may have spread to outlying points. Once case is known in Lakefield where a woman was bitten by a dog also a girl so that the extension of the city's ordinance to the adjoining municipalities will likely follow.

Dr. C. H. Amys, Medical Officer of Health who was present at last night's meeting urged the Council to take effective means to stamp out the deadly malady. At ten minutes to nine Mayor Duffus attached his signature to the document that seals the freedom of dogdom for at least ninety days. "The by-law ought to be a howling success," commented Ald. Dobbin.

GERMAN LOSSES ON THE AISNE TERRIBLE

Recent Hard Fighting on French Front Has Cost the Huns Over 200,000 Men — Figures Do Not Include the Arras Losses

REGIMENTS DECIMATED

PARIS, April 27.—The extent of the German losses in the recent desperate fighting along the Aisne (not including those in the Arras area in which the British are fighting, where the German losses are probably 100,000) is partially disclosed in the reference in to-day's official statement to the capture of 130 guns, of which a considerable number were of heavy calibre.

The German losses in men are estimated at more than 200,000, with the probability that the total reached 235,000. These figures include killed, wounded and prisoners, and constitute one of the most formidable totals of the present war.

The number of German prisoners aggregates approximately 20,000. The usual formula among military exports is to estimate the casualties at five times the number of prisoners, but this five-to-one ratio has not held good in the present case owing to the exceedingly sanguinary character of the fighting for the mastery of the strategic positions on the Chemin des-Dames plateau. The Germans held this firmly at the outset, and when it was wrested from them by the French attacks the Germans repeatedly brought up large reserves in a desperate effort to retain it.

All reports show that whole regiments were decimated, and it was this which brought about the exceptionally heavy total of killed and wounded, making it probably one of the bloodiest battles of the war. Now that the strategic line on the Chemin-des-Dames plateau is firmly held in French possession a period of comparative inaction has intervened pending reorganization of new lines of attack and summing up the extent of the German losses and booty.

A staff correspondent of the Associated Press, telegraphing from French headquarters on the front, under date of April 27, says despite the desperate tenacity of the Germans, who are endeavouring to hold their present positions at any cost, French troops to-day registered more gains of ground in the neighborhood of Cerny and Hurtebise, on the Chemin-des-Dames, where German attacks in force Thursday had failed completely.

The artillery has thundered continuously night and day, the detonations causing echoing roars through the ravines and valleys. Most of the slopes have now been shorn of trees.

THE LESSON OF THE MOTOR SHOW.

The first Peterborough Motor Show is a great success in two ways—it serves for a splendid display of automobile vehicles, and no doubt the result of a liberal public patronage will add substantially to the financial resources of Red Cross work.

But neither of these considerations, one the main object, and one incidental, represents the true significance, and real educative value of the motor show.

Though the display of the last word in automobile architecture is a prominent attraction, possibilities of enjoying the poetry of transportation is the most important thing to be seen. seen.

The exhibit of road models of the Ontario Department of Highways, transcends in real importance and vital meaning all the other exhibits.

The basis of an automobile's usefulness, the virtually real foundation of the auto is the road. Its foundation is not its chassis, be that never so strong and rigid, nor its perfect wheels, nor its engine, nor its tonneau—the real automobile is the road. Without the road, through which it must express its capacity for smooth, comfortable, rapid and luxurious transportation, or their opposites, depending upon whether the road is good or bad, the auto is only a toy.

Such banal truisms are only mentioned and emphasized, in order to stimulate thought and develop an influence in favour of good roads construction as the great need of this city, county and country.

It is feared that there is too little thought, as there is too little practical attention, given the subject. How much does the thought of the many that buy autos, go beyond the financing the payment, and the pleasure of its possession, and use? How many consider the relation of the owner's or occupants' comfort; how many the pleasure and profit of its use; how much the life of his machine or his bill of repairs depends, as they all do entirely depend, directly upon the state of the roads he will have to use?

These considerations make the good roads exhibit of the Ontario government the most important and vital thing in the motor show.

It comprises fourteen models of highway construction, with descriptions, and indicating the successive stages of construction of each type of road. These models should be studied by every auto owner so that he can speak with knowledge and authority to those responsible for providing him with decent roads for his use—for making his investment worth while; for giving the auto owner the best in comfort and value for his investment.

These models, as plain in their teaching as print, should be studied by our City Fathers. To some of these they may present nothing new; but at least they will make most of them think, and impress upon them how little this City Council, or any other City Council, applies in practice, the self-evidently proper way of planning, building and maintaining good streets.

These models should be seen and studied, as will doubtless be done, by our County Councillors. If they do nothing more than inspire them to bring Peterborough County from its obscurity into the sunlight of the Ontario good roads system, their study will not be unfruitful.

Both can learn much from the study of and the inspection of these government models. But it is feared that both have been so long under the dominance of hit-and-miss rule-of-thumb road-making or road neglect, that the ready assent they give to the teaching of the models may not stay with them long enough to bear fruit. It is possible that they both, or some of both, will be like the man metaphorically mentioned by St. James—"beholding his natural face in a glass * * * who "goeth his way and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was"—go their way and straightway forget the lessons the government models of road making teach.

The experience of the past justifies this fear. Good road making is as simple as "pounding sand." It is easy to know what to do but the trouble consists in getting it done. The description of the road model exhibit mentions three cardinal points essential to making and keeping roads good—foundation, drainage and maintenance. The first thing is to place a proper road on good foundation, drain it well, and keep it good by constant attention.

We know that in Peterborough, as well as in the adjacent country, these cardinal principles are sadly neglected. The result is that once an auto or other vehicle gets off the paved streets and a few good metalled streets, it gets into trouble, joy-riding ends, and wear and tear and repair bills and bumps and profanity begin.

It is to be hoped that the auto show and its good roads models will do something to rouse the idea that the purpose of spending money on streets and roads is not to spend so much money but to spend it with the sole object in view of getting—and keeping—a smooth, even, comfortable and economical surface for wheel traffic. Every dollar spent that does not effect this is wasted.

The greatest benefit that can come from the motor show is not the commercial benefit alone. Great as that may be it will be lessened by bad roads and streets. If we had all the streets of the city and the roads of the country as good or even half as good and smooth an deasy as our paved streets, the factories couldn't make enought motors to meet the demand.

It is therefore money for the motor agents, money for the motor owners, to demand the construction of good roads. The motor is as much a modern necessity as the waggon and buggy were a generation ago. Their usefulness and comfort-giving capacity depend upon good streets and roads.

The vital lesson of the motor show is comprised in five words, "Good roads and good streets." Without a street or road nobody would buy an auto; with bad streets and roads, a few will buy motor cars; with universally or even generally, good roads and streets, everybody—almost—will buy an auto.

PENNY BANK ENEMIES.

There have been quoted in the local press statements of Toronto Trustees in opposition to the Penny Banks system in Toronto schools. Among them is Dr. Noble, who is the chief opponent of Penny Banks. But does this gentleman's opposition mean anything more than that his habitual habit of playing the Ishmaclite—some reason why Dr. Noble's opposition to Panny Banks, should be taken with a liberal pinch of salt. According to him if penny banks are bad Toronto teachers are worse. The following is a report of Dr. Noble's attitude towards teachers taken from a Toronto evening paper. The report says:

Sneers by Trustee Dr. John Noble at Toronto teachers as "Christians" and "hypocrites" and "solid liars" featured the School Management Committee meeting yesterday evening. He was severely rebuked by Trustee Miles Vokes, chairman of the board, who referred to the Noble utterances as so much "wind."

"Solid liars" was the hard phrase that Dr. Noble used to describe 84 teachers who were absent on the opening day after Easter holidays, when Chief Inspector Cowley had reminded him that they were ill and had turned in medical certificates to that effect.

No action was taken.

It is not likely either that any action will arise out of Dr. Noble's opposition to penny banks. He is apparently a professional opponent—living up to the proverbial Donnybrook fair spirit, in striking wherever he sees a head.

TORONTO, April 28.—Military critics here believe it is a reasonable assumption that the Germans have had nearly a quarter of a million killed, wounded, or captured, during the last three weeks. A total of about forty thousand officially announced as captured by the British and French, and killed and wounded generally approximate five times the number of prisoners taken.

Who'll Pay That Mortgage?

That mortgage—or other indebtedness—may cause you no worry. You know you can repay it if all goes well. But there's the rub. What if things go wrong? Supposing you should die—could your wife pay the mortgage without your income?

An Imperial Endowment Policy for the amount of the indebtedness will insure its repayment, whether you live or die. There is no other means of meeting the case that is quite so certain—that leaves nothing to chance.

And the annual investment required is very moderate—moderate at least when you consider the peace of mind it will afford you.

Look at this problem squarely—don't dodge—don't wait. The advantages of life insurance are available only to those in good health. Send to-day for information about a policy to suit your particular need. To-morrow may be too late.

GIFTS FROM THE 57th CHAPTER APPRECIATED IN OVERSEAS HOUSEHOLD

Interesting Letters of Thanks Received — Regular Meeting Thursday Indicated Past Month Has Been a Busy One for the Chapter.

The regular monthly meeting of the 57th Regiment Chapter, I. O. D. E., was held in the Y. W. C. A. Thursday afternoon, April 26th, the Regent (Mrs. Walker) presiding.

It was decided to hold a Rummage Sale on the 18th and 19th of May. It is hoped that all the friends of the Chapter will help to make it a success.

The Visiting Committee reported having made thirty-four visits since the last meeting.

Mrs. Hay of the Hospital Committee made twenty-three visits.

Flowers were sent to the homes of any members who have suffered bereavement.

A Union Jack has been presented to the War Veterans' Association by the Chapter.

Mrs. Turner reported that the Scrap Paper Committee had collected the paper from the C. G. E., the schools and private residences.

The Chapter wishes to thank the Toronto Loan and Savings Co. for the use of a warehouse; Mr. R. Denne and the Bonner-Worth Co. for generous contributions of bags; the C.G.E., the schools, the stores, and those citizens who are giving a splendid monthly collection of paper; the Bonner-Worth and Mr. R. Neill, for their monthly contribution of baled paper, and the merchants who so kindly collected the first paper.

It is hoped that the members of the Chapter will try to interest as many as possible in the saving of scrap paper, so that the collections may increase each month.

The Knitting Committee reported as follows:

A LETTER FROM MISS MOWRY.

The following is an extract from a letter received from Nursing Sister Mowry of Peterborough:

No. 7 Canadian General Hospital,
Army Postoffice, S. Hospital,
B. E. F., France.

Dear Mrs. Walker,—I received a parcel from you some time ago, containing property bags and a scrap book. Will you thank the ladies of Bridgenorth for me? I distributed the bags in my ward and gave the few remaining to our Red Cross Society. All acceptable and can be made use of. The bags are a bit smaller than the usual property bag but are just the correct size for shaving apparatus.

Am sure you would be repaid for all the work you are doing at home if you could see how our boys appreciate everything. I explained to the Ward that these things came from my home town, and immediately one of the patients said: "Let me write 'A thank you' on behalf of the boys." You will probably receive it with this letter.

I have never asked our Red Cross for anything I could not get, even when we have admitted seven hundred patients in twenty-four hours. We can get socks, scarfs, wristlets, caps, pyjamas, night shirts, handkerchiefs, shaving soap, razors, writing paper, envelopes, cigarettes, pipes, tobacco, etc. Our dressings are beautifully made and the supply unlimited. I often wonder in our busy days how the supply is kept up, but even through the biggest "push" it has never failed. Just now we are so busy and preparing for the hard summer we all realise is ahead of us. Our present capacity is one thousand and three hundred. We expect to open our marques in a week or two and this will mean seven hundred and fifty more beds for No. 7.

It is just one big hospital city here. English, Canadians and Australians. Within an area of three square miles there are twenty-three hospitals with accommodation for thirty-five thousand patients. This will give you an idea of the work and great need for supplies. Then we are only one little spot. Hundreds such in France."

THANKS FROM AUSTRALIA.

In addition, letters were received from Pte. G. B. MacKenzie, an Australian soldier, and from Capt. W. H. Munro.

Pte. MacKenzie writes:

France.

Dear Mrs. Walker,—On behalf of the boys at present under Sister Mowry's care, I am forwarding this little note of thanks for that parcel of useful little bags you sent to her; she has not many of them left now. We all froze on to them like "one thing." They're so handy. Just the right size for one's shaving gear, brush and comb and any other little necessities we may be carrying. Will you kindly inform those thoughtful ladies of Bridgenorth we are indeed grateful to them?

The scrap-book, too, was more than welcome; it is quite the best I've seen, so full of bright, snappy pars, and so well put together. Kindly convey our thanks to Mrs. Magee for it.

We have only one complaint here: that it's far too nice and comfortable here to leave, and it is with troubled minds we contemplate the day of our departure. I am an Australian, and have been at different times an inmate of English and Australian as well as Canadian hospitals, and the treatment and attention we receive here is far and a long way ahead of that we received in either of the others. I'm not "swanking" to you, because this is your hospital and I'm writing you from it. To use an Australian expression, "I'm dinkum" (honest).

In conclusion, we send our united good wishes for the future welfare and prosperity of yourself and the Chapter.—I remain, sincerely yours,

No. 5372 Pte. Geo. B. MacKenzie,
24th Battn., 6th Brigade, A.I.F.

Capt. Munro, of Peterborough, writes:

France, March 11, 1917.

Mrs. Walker, Regent, I.O.D.E.

Dear Mrs. Walker,—The six pair of leather mitts which the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, Peterborough, sent for the use of men in this unit were received and assuredly were appreciated by those to whom they were served out. During the latter part of January and the month of February the weather in the north of France was very severe; the worst they have experienced in two generations, it is said. In Canada we would have called it average winter weather, but when there is no reliable place to go to, it is anywhere from serious to inconvenient according to the shelter a man gets. Our men got through with no serious cases, but there was very little inflammable material which could be borrowed or stolen in the neighbourhood toward the end of it. The drivers are issued with mitts, but not the repair gang, who need them worse if anything. Your parcel, along with others I got, fitted them out and helped to keep them well, in addition to making it possible to get out more work.—Yours sincerely,

Hamilton Munro.

After the meeting, tea was served, during which the members were given an opportunity to meet their former Regent, Mrs. E. B. Clegg, who has recently returned from England.

HORRORS OF HUNS

rises as I recall the devastation I witnessed, and my heart still aches at the memory of the awful tales poured into our ears by the suffering people.

At the town of Noyon we were relieved to find that, so far as the buildings were concerned, little damage had been done by the vandals. But conversation with the Mayor and some of the rest of the inhabitants of the town revealed that, while the Germans had spared the structures, they had omitted no act of brutality towards the people which their infamous minds could conceive during two and a half years of occupation. The Mayor himself, a worthy man, had, for a slight offence, been imprisoned for months, travelling from one jail to another in Germany at the captious will of the Germans. Little was needed in the way of transgression of the laws, rules or whims of the Germans to open the prison doors for the entry of the French people. Even a suspicion of offence often was sufficient to send man, woman or child behind bars, with no hope for freedom or mercy except whatever might lie within the will of the Germans.

I cannot repeat all the tales I was told, not even hint at many of them in their details. One old, old man upon a day failed to salute a German officer as he passed. Without a chance for defence, without opportunity to plead before a court, that old man, for such a slight dereliction, passed three long months in prison, whence he was at last liberated, so broken in health that he is but an aged wreck. This is only one instance. There are many others who suffered for offences, so called, of no greater magnitude.

The worst suffering the people of Noyon had to endure rose from the food situation. With the Germans in absolute control, there was nothing but starvation to be expected, as their niggard and exacting hands dealt out the supplies. This was a terrible weapon to enforce their will, and they used it unsparingly. Wearied from the tasks of a long day, it was not an unusual thing for a man to return to his home in the evening, only to be ordered out again for what was practically another day of work. There was no refusal. There could be none. The slightest hesitation to obey brought the threat that not only his food, but that of his wife and children, or of his aged parents, would be cut off and all left to starve.

Shocking tales were told of the treatment of the girls and women, as the Germans made abominable use of this weapon. Did one of them appeal to the lust of a German, there was no food for her or for her entire family until this demand was complied with. Married or unmarried, there was no help for her, and many cases, children, remain withcompelled to choose between the loss of all that womanhood regards as sacred and the lives of their parents and children. Nor were the Germans willing to leave the girls and women behind them. Just before they evacuated the town, 700 of the inhabitants, including every female between the ages of 14 and 45, were torn from the arms of their families and sent to Germany. Today fathers and mothers, and, in many cases, children, remain without any knowledge of the whereabouts or the fate of their loved ones who have been sent into slavery—or worse.

The one gleam of light in this dark picture is that food sent from America saved the population of Noyon and of other afflicted districts from actual starvation. When I told the Mayor that I would cable his gratitude and of his people to the newspapers of America so that all might know how much depended upon the charity of that country, he thanked me with tears.

At Auxy it was saddening to look upon the work of ruin and the desolation wrought, but at Jussy it was worse. To me Jussy was once one of the most delightful villages in that part of France. Fine and prosperous, every part of it was a delight to the eye. To-day literally not one single house remains standing. Here and there walls, sad reminders of what once homes of happy people, stand stark in the rubbish-filled streets. All this ruin was accomplished scientifically; so scientifically that the German General who directed the work of destruction left no house for himself and was obliged to make his headquarters in a wine cellar.

There were many pathetic sights in this ruined town, but none more so than one I witnessed at the wreck of a chapel. Of the walls hardly one stone stood upon another, save the arch that was once the entrance. Here a devoted priest had stayed a bit of canvas with some sticks of wood, using it as a roof. Under this he had set up his altar, and there, as we passed, he was celebrating mass.

At Auxy, or just outside the village limits, once stood the famous chateau of that name. It was one of the great, historic monuments of France, and it might have been thought that the Germans would leave it for nothing else than its associations. But no. To-day there is no Chateau de Auxy; only a heap of ruins which can never be repaired. The beautiful chateau, admired by hundreds and thousands, has fallen a victim to German vandalism.

We saw glimpses of the great battle between the Allied forces and the German troops for the possession of Saint Quentin. We could see nothing distinctly but the occasional volcano that came when the shells from one of the great guns tore the earth open. In the forest beneath us we knew hundreds of thousands of men were fighting and probably dying. The roar of artillery was greater than any thunder that ever we had heard. It was appaling.

Our visits to Ham and to Chauny revealed the same horrors, the same atrocities, the same sickening, ruthless brutalities as elsewhere, except that in the work of destruction in Ham and Chauny there was not that completeness that we saw in Jussy. They were destroyed, but they did not reach that climax of destruction, that absolute wiping out of everything but a few feet of wall that characterized the obliteration of Jussy. There were parts of buildings left standing in Ham and also in Chauny, but Jussy marks the highest attainment possible in scientific ruining of the work of man.

It was not in the demolition of villages, towns and hamlets that the Germans did all their work. Complete and as scientific as they were in their operations in the towns, they were just as complete and scientific in the country, out in the fields, in the forests, in the orchards. What I saw personally of the destruction of fruit trees amounts to the obliteration of $50,000 of fruit wealth.

Saddened by Horrors.

We returned to Paris saddened, very much saddened by these horrors, by the unwarranted violence of the Germans, by a vandalism shocking in every form. But when we reached Paris we were cheered by the splendid news of the British armies winning success upon success north and south of Arras, of the breaking of the German lines, of the promise of victory. We were rejoiced still more by a realization that the bomination practiced by the Germans in the land they had surrendered instead of terrorizing France as the Germans supposed it would have hardened the determination of the French to go on to the end, to fight until this enemy shall be so paralyzed that he never will be able again to inflict such horrors upon mankind.

So far as the British delegates were concerned, their unanimous view was that the whole work of destruction was scientifically thought out in Germany, planned in all its details with the knowledge and approval of Germany's rulers and that it was intended to inflict such destruction to French towns and to French soil as would be equivalent to the big indemnities Germany had expected to collect but which she now has given up all hope of obtaining.

In spite of all our differences as to fiscal policy, we all came to the conclusion that in all fiscal arrangements between the Allies our calculations should be based upon the determination that as Germany had warred against the commercial as well as the military life of France we also were entitled to make commercial war on Germany till she brought back her soul, purified from Hohenzollern and Junker influence, and was able to think and act in accordance with civilization again.

Peterboro's Three Day Motor Show Will Close This Evening

Initial Attempt To Hold a Motor Show in Peterboro Proves a Big Success

Yesterday's session of the three-day Motor Show was bigger and better than that of the previous day. The crowd was much larger, and the event as a whole was a gratifying success. The show will close to-night at ten o'clock. A band will be in attendance at both the afternoon and evening sessions. The successful prize-winners in yesterday's drawing contest are known by the following numbers:

Number fifty—Winner of the tire.

Number one hundred—Winner of the set of chains.

Number twenty-nine—Winner of the flashlight. (Mrs. E. L. Goodwill).

The Gutta Percha and Rubber Company of Toronto, through their local representatives, the Duffus Garage, have donated a tire, which will be auctioned off this evening at nine o'clock.

MOTOR SHOW NOTES.

Mr. F. R. Pringle, of Toronto Saturday Night, was a visitor at the Motor Show yesterday.

Mr. F. I. Fox, sales manager of the Ford Motor Co., Toronto, was the winner of the lap rug on Thursday presented by Mr. T. P. Matthews. The lucky number was 527.

To-night the Salvation Army band will play for closing sessions. Don't overlook that musical trio composed of Joe Rapple, of John Millen and Sons, Toronto, Fred St. Onge of Montreal, of bicycle fame, and J. J. Griffiths, who admits that he is nearly as smooth as Brooks' Oils.

Mr. F. T. Hodgins of the Studebaker Company, reports live doings in his line.

Mr. Percy Hooper won the tire chains on Thursday with Ticket No. 591.

Joe Rapple adds to the gaity of the show with his one and only solo: "I've never heard of anyone dying from stealing a kiss." While displaying his magic coins between acts he reminds you that the Lee tire knows no puncture.

It is expected that to-night the attendance at the Motor Show will exceed that of either Thursday or Friday evenings. The whole affair has been a pronounced success. There will be another drawing contest to-night. These are occasioning considerable interest and are responsible for quite a revenue.

The different booths at the Armouries, of which the ladies are in charge, are doing wonderfully well and surprisingly large sums being realized. Yesterday alone, at the flower booth, $84.50 was taken in, at the candy booth $40.60, and at the ice cream and soft drink booth $23.25. The work and self-sacrifice involved in the selling of these cannot be overestimated, but it is a comfort for those in charge to know every one gets his money's worth. The Ontario Motor League booth, of which Mrs. Canfield is in charge, and where hat bands, emblems for cars, and motor accessories may be secured, proved a big attraction, and had to send for fresh supplies before the day was over. This booth aims at securing new members for the League and to interest the motorists in the good roads movement. The profits from the sales at the show will be devoted to the Red Cross. Those assisting in the booth are Mrs. Borbridge, Mrs. C. S. McClelland, Mrs. Cruickshank, Mrs. Waram, Mrs. Lytle, Mrs. Edgar Worth, Mrs. Haslam, Mrs. Harland and Mrs. Popham.

GREEK SLAVE REHEARSAL.

A "A Greek Slave" rehearsal for all the company will be held in St. John's school to-night at 8 p.m.

SCOTLAND WOOLEN CO. ARE STAYERS

On the principal of the old maxim that "A rolling stone gathers no moss," Mr. Hourigan, manager of the Scotland Woolen Mills' local store, asks that the public be reminded that they are still doing business at the same old stand, 161 Hunter Street, not Simcoe Street, as printed in their advertisement last evening. "We are out of the high rent district, and intend to remain there for the present," said Mr. Hourigan. "That is one of the reasons why we can afford to quote those 'Fancy Worsted' Suits at $20.00 instead of $30.00."

PREPARING TO CATCH THE WANDERING DOGS

Order For Net Given to Mr. D. Hardie This Morning—Drive Soon Ready.

The dog catching campaign was generally outlined at the police station this morning. A meeting of the general staff decided upon a circular net three and one-half feet in diameter and about four feet deep. It will be made by Mr. D. Hardie Water street, and is expected to be ready in a few days. The net will be of cotton with three or four inch meshes. This is the first phase of the preparations. The next step will be to secure a dog catcher, the individual who will angle for the curs that have had a license of the streets. It has been remarked during the past few days that few dogs have been seen at large and if this condition becomes permanent it will mean the passing of a nuisance that has been tolerated too long. The rounding up operations are expected to begin next week, when the pound has been prepared and all the details of the drive made ready.

"The Whip" Now Running in New York to Enormous Crowds

The great motion picture that will make you gasp and wonder how one could realize so many hair-raising climaxes will be presented here on Friday and Saturday next, May 4th and 5th. "The Whip" is admitted to be the most elaborate of all melodramas, and throughout the entire picture there is realism described as most sensational and thrilling. In order to produce one of the greatest of the scenes one entire fast train was purchased, together with the right of the railroad line, which a little later was a mighty wreck, lit up by flames and a pall of steam from the boiler of the overturned locomotive. The purpose of the wreck was to get the real action for the plot of this huge and mammoth picture.

St. James' Methodist Church Will Be Formally Opened And Dedicated on Sunday

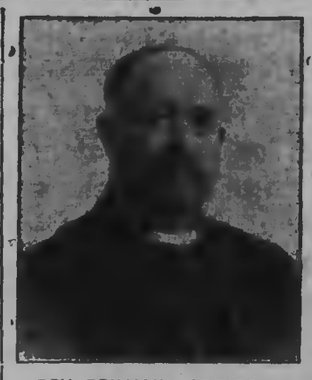
Imposing Gothic Edifice Assumes A Prominent Position in This City of Beautiful Churches — Will Accommodate a Congregation of 750 —Description Of It

Situated on the south-east corner of Romaine and Aylmer streets, St James' Methodist church demands recognition among the beautiful edifices of this city. The old building was but a temporary home intended to provide the needs of a congregation during the period of its organization and establishment. Henceforth it serves as a Sunday school annex, but is so coordinated with the main building that the division is practically undiscernible.

Around the church sweeps an expanse of lawn that places it well back from the intersecting streets and assures from these positions a perspective that presents its lines in clear relief. Its architecture is of Gothic design indicated in the arches, towers and turrets. The main approaches and entrances are from Romaine street. Steps that extend across the width of the building ascend to the large central door, with two smaller ones on either side. The upper section of the facade is featured by a large Gothic window. On the west corner a tower reaches to a height of seventy-eight feet, broken at the top by a series of turrets. The tower on the east corner is forty feet nigh. On either side of the central door and window a smaller but nicely proportioned octagon tower rises with the main towers in which they are skillfully incorporated. The foundation is built fairly high of Longford stone and the walls are of Milton pressed brick, broken by a string trimming of Longford stone and buttress caps of Indiana stone. Two walks will wind in from the street line to the steps, inclosing a lawn space that will invite a fine oval flower bed.

The Interior.

The imposing exterior creates an expectancy within, and the visitor finds no disappointment. Opening from the entrances is a deep vestibule the entire width of the church, leading at either end to a spacious gallery above. The main floor is reached through four swinging doors that enter upon the four wide aisles carpeted in warm red that harmonizes with the pew cushions. The walls are of stucco with the domed ceiling a satiny white. The choir loft accommodating thirty persons, the organ and pulpit are advantageously located from every part of the church even to the rear of the gallery. The decorative windows are very prominent. "Christ in the Temple," presented by the Brotherhood of the church, is the subject portrayed in the large front window; on the east side is a window depicting "Christ at the Last Supper," given by the Ladies' Aid, and on the west side "Christ Blessing the Children," given by the Sunday school. The colouring is rich and natural and the scenes heighten the devotional character of the interior. Most of the other windows were donated by Trinity church, together with the pews, organ and the three beautiful brass electroliers. In fact the lighting seems perfect, and the heating and ventilating systems of the latest types. The vestry has been furnished in the best of taste by three ladies of the city who also provided the aisle carpets. The pieces are of fumed oak, including table, chairs and lounge, with a handsome rug and other articles that occur only to feminine thoughtfulness. The effect is cosy and at the same time serviceable and will be deeply appreciated by the pastor. Above the vestry is a spacious board room which may ultimately be used as a church parlour. The present seating accommodation provides for seven hundred and fifty persons, and can be increased by a new seating arrangement to narrow the fairly wide aisles. Persons who have a discerning eye for fidelity in designs will be pleased with the heavy bronze Gothic hardware.



REV. BENJAMIN GREATRIX, Pastor of St. James' Methodist church, which will be opened and dedicated to-morrow—Rev. Dr. Chown, General Superintendent of the Methodist church in Canada, will officiate.

The Contractors.

The plans were prepared by Mr. Wm. Blackwell and the entire construction carried out under the direction and supervision of Mr. J. H. Fry, who has given the work his constant attention. As a result the total cost approximates $21,000 exclusive of the gifts from the old Charlotte street church and the free labour given by members who made it a work of love. And this has been no inconsiderable item. The entire property in its completion represents a value between $45,000 and $50,000. Sub-contractors should be mentioned as follows: Stonework, Mr. Herb. Sherwood, foundation, Mr. Fred Mahood, brickwork, Cuffe Bros., slate roofing Mr. Alex. McLeod, heating, Mr. W. R. Turner, plastering, Messrs. Joseph and James Wolstenholm, wiring, Messrs. Alexander & Miller, concrete steps, Mr. H. Shurter, plumbing, Messrs. Adamson & Dobbin.

The frames and lumber was purchased from the McDonald Estate and the glass from the Peterborough Hardware Co.

The Building Committee.

The Building committee is composed of Rev. B. Greatrix, chairman, Mr. A. E. Prest, secretary, and Messrs. W. G. Morrow, B. F. Ackerman, A. W. Crossman, F. Kitney, Henry Robinson, Thomas Brown, Alvah Wilson, J. O. Fife and Samuel Doyell.

One shows "gap" Other fits close

You know, by experience, that the ordinary collar soon spreads and shows an unsightly "gap" at the top.

On the other hand, a W. G. & R. collar retains its close fit for the following reasons:—

1st—Because the inside buttonhole (see 1 in illustration) is a fraction of an inch higher than the outside buttonhole. This makes the collar button act as a lever and exert a steady upward pressure on the hook end (see 3) making a tight lock at the top of the collar.

2nd—Because it has our "Slip On" buttonhole (see 2) on the outside tab. Thus, when buttoning the outside tab, the collar slides easily into place, the post of the collar button coming to the top of the "Slip On" buttonhole, making it impossible for the collar to spread. It must stay close at the top.

These exclusive features of W. G. & R. collars are sure to be appreciated by you and other particular dressers.

NO LACK OF EVIDENCE RIGHT HERE IN PETERBORO'

To Prove the Remarkable Upbuilding Influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food—Two Good Reports To-day

PETERBOROUGH, April 12.—Day after day we are printing in this paper reports from Peterborough people who have been cured by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

There are in the meantime hundreds of other cases of which we never hear. But you will find that your friends and neighbours know about this great restorative treatment and have something good to say about it.

If you are skeptical, ask them what you may expect from its use. Then put it to the test. Use the Nerve Food regularly and you will soon find that weaknesses and disease are giving place to strength and vigor.

Mr. George Lee, 767 Water Street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "I used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food some time ago when I was in a run-down condition, and found them to be just what I required to build up my system. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food also worked wonders for my wife. She had been suffering from nervousness and could not get a good night's rest. She would wake up at different times during the night, sometimes jumping right out of bed. She tried doctor's medicine without success and finally commenced taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The first box helped a little, the second box benefitted her more, so she kept on taking them until she grew strong and healthy. She has recommended this treatment to many of her neighbors."

Mrs. Wm. Herron, 11 Conger St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "I suffered from nervous, run-down condition, and was unable to get a good night's sleep. The least noise would waken me and then I would lie awake for a long time. Trivial matters used to worry me, and I did not seem to be getting any better. Through a friend, I was persuaded to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I commenced using this treatment, and am now feeling much better. I can get a good night's rest, my appetite has improved; the Nerve Food strengthened my nervous system and now trivial matters do not worry me as they used to. This medicine has done me so much good that I cannot speak too highly of it."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

AN HISTORICAL REVIEW OF ST. JAMES' CHURCH

Sketch of its Growth from the Days in Which the Congregation Worshipped in a Tent—Pastors Who Have Directed Its Expansion

The following historical sketch, tracing the inception and growth of St. James' Church was, in part, presented by Mr. A. E. Prest at a recent farewell gathering in the old building. It will be deeply interesting to all those who have followed the development and expansion of the congregation which celebrates an epochal event to-morrow in the dedication of the splendid new edifice by the Rev. Dr. Chown, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada.

"For many years prior to the commencement of work towards building a new Methodist Church to accommodate the South end, it was advocated and talked about.

For the remarkable growth of Methodism in our Province and in our Dominion we are indebted to a few progressive ministers with a keen vision of the needs of the people in the localities where these ministers have been stationed and to their steps to supply that need. Such a minister is the Rev. H. Manning, who not only gave St. James its first push into existence, but several other enterprises of like character in our province.

It was while Rev. Mr. Manning was pastor of Charlotte Street Methodist Church that he saw the need of a place of worship for the South end. The population of our city had increased with the addition of Ashburnham to 17,000. There had been no Methodist church erected since 1875 when the population was about 7,000. On May 19, 1908 a meeting was held in the lecture room of the Charlotte Street Church to advance the project of erecting a new church. Present were Rev. H. M. Manning, D. W. Dumble, police magistrate, Henry C. Stabler, builder, Benjamin F. Ackerman, manufacturer, A. W. Cressman, merchant, Rev. E. A. Parsons, pastor of George Street Methodist Church, Geo. E. Rawlings, manufacturer, G. H. May, gentleman, A. E. Prest, electrician, A. Wilson, builder, A. Brown, broker. On report of the committee appointed to examine properties, it was resolved to purchase the property on which our church stands.

The Rev. Mr. Manning was appointed by Conference to launch this new work. Rather than wait for the erection of a building a tent was pitched on the church lot, July 9th, 1908, for the purpose of worship. On the following night the first prayer meeting was held. The first Sabbath service was held July 12th. There were 51 present. The first session of the Sunday School was held the same day, 39 being present. On Tuesday evening July 14th the Sunday School was organised with the officers as follows: A. E. Prest, Supt; L. W. Petley, A.B.C.; James Anderson, Young Ladies' Class; Miss Emma Collins, Boys' Class; Miss A. Emerson, Girls' Class; Miss F. Wilson, Girls' Class; Mr. W. G. Gowie, Treasurer, Miss Francis Manning, Secretary; Miss F. Wilson, organist; Mrs. Mann, Home Dept.; Miss Mary Collins, Primary.

We had some very enthusiastic and interesting services in the tent. The cause grew and prospered. Every person seemed to be whole-hearted and devoted in their service. Sometimes we held services under difficulties, especially on windy days, when we were afraid the tent would come down on our heads. On rainy days the tent would leak. Our pipe organ cost $15.00. We kept it locked up in a wooden packing case when not in use. The choir numbered from four to six members and the singing was of the heartiest. The sermons were inspiring and soul-stirring. The congregations grew. The Sunday School increased rapidly in numbers.

The first Quarterly Board meeting was held August 5th, 1908, consisting of L. W. Petley, A. Prest, James Anderson, (Bro. James Palmer, Rec. Steward), C. J. Hicks, A. Wilson, treasurer, Robert Hull. At this meeting 30 envelope boxes were ordered. On October 10th, 1908, the corner stone was laid with appropriate ceremony by W. G. Morrow, the Rev. Robt. McCulloch, of Omemee, President of Conference officiating. Local clergymen from the various churches were present.

In the meantime we were still holding services in the tent and the weather was becoming colder. But these were happy days and everybody smiled at obstacles.

Our new church was progressing and we were willing to put up with all kinds of inconvenience. Finally one windy day in November our tent partially blew down and that evening we folded it up permanently.

Through the kindness of the Public School Board the Sunday School was given permission to use the hall of King Edward School and we continued our Sunday Services there for ten Sundays.

MOVED TO CHURCH.

As soon as building operations would permit, Sunday services were resumed in the basement of the new church, while the upper structure was being completed.

The church was opened March 28th, 1909, Rev. Robt. McCulloch officiating. Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., preached in the morning and evening. The building was crowded at all services. On the following Monday evening, a tea meeting was held in the basement by the ladies of the congregation, and a public meeting in the church, which was attended by leading clergymen of our city and by a large audience.

From this period the congregations increased. The Sunday School having a building particularly adopted to their needs grew rapidly in numbers and usefulness. The total enrollment of the Sunday School at the close of the first year was 168 and of this number about 40 were in the Primary Department.

We must express our great admiration of the fine type of public spirited generous-hearted Christian laymen who have backed and stood by the erection of this new cause since its inception, and we are to be congratulated in having such a type of laymen in our city and Conference. Towards the end of the first church year, the Rev. Mr. Manning saw that a young er minister would be required to carry on the work he had so ably and acceptably begun and largely through his efforts the Conference appointed the Rev. J. G. Brown, as pastor of our church."

During his pastorate the cause made rapid advancement in numbers and givings and other marked improvements were accomplished. The grounds were cleared up, stumps removed, the lawn sodded and the whole appearance made neat and attractive. Too much praise cannot be given to Rev. J. G. Brown for the tireless, zealous service he rendered to St. James's Church during his pastorate.

Rev. Mr. Brown was succeeded by Rev. J. N. Clarry, B.A., whose work was largely one of consolidation, holding gains that had been made, wiping off the indebtedness that had been incurred requiring sometimes the wisest, but not so prominent leadership. As a pastor, preacher, friend and counsellor, Rev. Mr. Clarry will be long remembered by his former parishioners.

In his successor, the Rev. Benjamin Greatrix the church has been extremely fortunate. His pastorate has been marked by simplicity, broad and deep sympathy and an effectiveness that has been entirely lacking of display.

The church to be dedicated on Sunday by the Rev. Dr. Chown, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada is, in part, his contribution to the growth of St. James, and will remain in years to come a witness to his wise leadership and faith in God to lead His people into larger life, wider vision, greater opportunities and nobler results.

ENROLLMENT OF 550

The Sunday School enrollment stands now at 550 with an average attendance of 325. The new church was made possible through the splendid generosity of the Charlotte Street congregation who voted unanimously to donate their old church with its entire equipment of seats, organ, windows, furnaces and electrolier, together with large subscriptions from leading laymen in the Trinity and George Street churches.

Remember The Sabbath Day To Keep It Holy

Church attendance is one feature of the proper method of keeping the Sabbath day holy.

Some people get an idea they can observe the "law of the Lord" and forget or forsake the church services.

This is a narrowing of the horizon of spiritual life, and a lessening of the sense of appreciation of the real good.

To have a desire for something better we must develop the good which is within, and give it expression.

Enlarging the virtues we have is a real advantage in developing life from one stage of excellence to another.

For if we crowd ourselves full of desire for good and for enlargement of good, there will be no room for bad.

"Take heed of yourself and of the doctrine;" understand, perfect, increase, multiply "that which is good."

The call of the Church is for activity in the enlargement of its work, its possibilities, its grasp of the needs of the hour, and its ability to develop that which is worth while.

No effort which seeks to develop that end is too great for those who have the big conception of the needs.

Striving to understand the needs of the community should make us appreciate our part in this great work.

Making it merely a duty, and eliminating the satisfaction of participation, may make it seem irksome.

Gladly accepting the duty of the time, will make it a pleasure; happiness comes from satisfaction in our work.

A growing church represents growing members, a growing community, an enlarged scope of influence.

Organizing the worth-while forces of the membership will produce a substantial force for righteousness.

A part of the plan is to stand ready to do the needed things, to accept them with pleasant anticipation.

Going to the services with joy in the heart, hungry for that which is good, insures a satisfied condition as a result.

In every church of every city there is a Spirit Presence which uplifts, satisfies, develops the inner life.

To have joined in the effort for the general good is a privilege of modern living, and insures joy in the service.

You'll appreciate what it means if you bring a desire for this satisfying influence. The invitation is cordial. Accept it!

"He that hath My Commandments and keepeth them, he it is that Loveth Me and he that Loveth Me shall be loved of My Father."

Selective Conscription For the U. S.

Congress Voted in Favour of the President's Plan To-day

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The nation will raise its armies by selective conscription. The House so voted just before noon to-day. The Senate will vote likewise before midnight to-night, barring something completely unexpected. Anti-conscriptionists admit this. The House vote was 279 to 98 in favour of the President's and War College's plan to raise at once an army of 500,000 for service at some future date in Europe, if needed.

Miss Jeanette Ranking, the first woman to hold a seat in Congress, voted against conscription. She cast her vote without comment.

SIR SAM SLAMS THE ENEMIES IN HIS OWN PARTY

Says Sir George Perley Sought To Create Unhealthy Atmosphere Against Him

Special to the Examiner:

LINDSAY, Ont., April 27.—Sir Sam Hughes to-day took advantage of his re-nomination by the Conservative convention of his constituency here to bitterly condemn enemies within his own party who, he said, assisted in his "downfall." "Political ambition seems to have been aroused," said Sir Sam, "and while I was bending my best energies looking after our soldiers and the successful prosecution of the war, agitations towards my downfall were planned." Sir Sam declared that from the very outbreak of the war, Sir George Perley had been actively seeking to create an unhealthy atmosphere against him, Sir Sam, in England. He said that both Perley and Finance Minister Sir Thomas White seemed to have peculiar newspaper influence with the Canadian Press Association overseas, and they used it against him. Sir Sam vigorously defended his administration and drew attention to the fact that no commission found anything against him.

Ford

A Car of Proven Quality

THE Ford Car has been on the market twelve years, surely long enough to have proven its high quality. There is nothing experimental about it. Every part has stood the test of time and proven its stability with hard service. No other car has ever approached the durability records of the Ford.

No matter what price you pay for a car you cannot get one with a stauncher chassis. Government Laboratory tests have shown that the different parts of the Ford car are superior to those in any other car. Ford Vanadium steel has never been equalled in strength.

If you want a car that can plow through deep mud, sand and gravel—that can cross fields, corduroy roads and ford streams—that can climb the steepest hills with ease—that will give the greatest mileage all year round with the least expense and care—then there is only ONE car for you—The Ford.

Behind Battle Line Is Marvellous Work Of Transport Men

"More, More," Is Cry of the Gunners Feeding the Deadly Shells Into the Guns--Work of Transport Department is Task of Appalling Magnitude During a Heavy Offensive--Generals Must Be Thorough.

(By Stewart Lyon.)

CANADIAN FIELD HEADQUARTERS—The tremendous amount of work involved in the equipment of an army for active operations must be seen to be at all appreciated. War has become the most complex and highly-organized of industrial enterprises. Its glory and glamour have departed.

One hears from the Somme area of cavalry charges "lance in rest" through the German rearguard screen. These incidents are all that is left of the picturesque and romantic in war. Only once in this area during a month's observation have I witnessed the remotest approach to pomp and circumstance. A General of the old school rode past one day with a cavalry escort. The guidon on the lance of the leading trooper, and prancing horses, the alert smartly turned out men and the gleam of the sun on portions of the equipment that would have provided an admirable mark for the enemy, had the escort been nearer the firing line. All indicated a conception of war such as the visitor to London gets from the contemplation of the Life Guardsmen who do sentry duty at the Whitehall entrance to the Horse Guards Parade.

It is magnificent, that sort of thing, but it is not war. The General of the new order goes past in a mud-covered motor car; the honk of a horn and a small flag on the front of the car are the only outward and visible signs of the presence of one who holds in his hands the destiny of hundreds of thousands of men.

A General nowadays has a lot of things to think about that never worried the great commanders of the past. He is really the manager of an organization—with a board of directors in London—engaged in carrying out a large blasting contract. The materials required for carrying it out have to be obtained through the board of directors from every corner of the world and assembled here in Northern France under conditions that greatly add to the difficulty of the operation.

GENERALS MUST BE THOROUGH.

A modern General must have a thorough knowledge of transportation problems. He has experts at hand to advise with, but he himself must know what is humanly possible in the way of moving men, supplies and munitions and what can not be done.

The first campaign in Mesopotamia broke down because the problem of transportation had not been adequately solved. The second succeeded brilliantly because it had.

The task of a modern war manager is ever so much more one of solving these transportation problems than ever before, because feeding the guns has become the supreme duty, and the guns need a tremendous quantity of food.

De Wolf Hopper was wont to sing in happier times of an elephant that destroyed the peace of mind of its owner:

"For that elephant ate all night,
And that elephant ate all day,
Do what you would to furnish him food,
The cry was still more hay."

That is precisely the situation which confronts the modern General who controls a big equipment of heavy guns. That the monsters may have "more hay," thousands of cars are moved from the channel to railhead, despite pressure of many other services, upon railway accommodation. When standard railways are no longer available, the motor transport and light rail systems come into the scheme of things, and still closer to the front horse transport has an important place in the scheme of things.

At first blush it does not seem a big task to keep several hundred lorries moving regularly over the road between railhead and the forward dumps. After watching the process for a month I am amazed that the work of feeding the guns was not of necessity suspended during the spring break-up. Only dogged perseverance and command of great material resources could have brought about the results achieved.

GUNS MEAN THE VICTORY.

To secure ascendancy over the enemy's guns and to pound without ceasing his trenches, and support positions, oil tankers have sailed the perilous Atlantic; Cornish miners have worked long hours in the production of tin, for the carriage of petrol; forests have been felled for the making of ammunition boxes; forge and machine shops all over the world have been operated at capacity day and night; quarries have been operated to provide stone for the roads; shiploads of horses and mules have been imported from America, and a hundred other activities have been carried on by men and women in every corner of the earth—the sum of whose labours is to be seen in that huge column of yellow-brown smoke rising over the ridge indicating where a high-explosive shell has set fire to one of the enemy's dumps.

Of the human wastage resulting from the uninterrupted cannonade along the western front, it is too soon to speak. When the history of the war comes to be written, it will probably be found that, glorious though the record has been of the men who have held the trenches in the cold of winter and through the depressing rainy seasons of spring and fall, the greatest factor in destroying Germany's dream of world power and shattering the morale of her soldiers has been "the red artillery."

The roadmakers, the lorry driver, the muleteer behind the front engaged in feeding the guns, have performed a no less vital task than the men who used the ammunition thus provided at daily peril of life and limb.

There will be honour enough for all;; let a fair share be given to the men behind the men behind the guns.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Weekly Summary of the Market Situation--Several Advances Reported

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in Canadian Grocer this week:

There has been continued activity in the flour market during the week, a further advance of 50c. per barrel having been recorded on the price chronicled last week. Wheat prices held up well during the week and flour was naturally strong in sympathy with the grain. Sugar held steady at the advance recorded last week, but there was a weakening in the raw market in New York during the week. Wholesalers report the demand for sugar has been exceptionally heavy from the consumers, which to them indicates that householders have been stocking up in anticipation of high prices. They point out that until these supplies are used up there may later be a light demand.

Firmer Market.

Meats of various kinds have been in a generally firmer market. Eggs have advanced slightly in view of the fact that commission men have started to place some in storage. There is a disposition on the part of some commission men not to place eggs in storage this year owing to the uncertainty of being able to export them through lack of tonnage. Maple syrup is reaching the market in larger quantities and prices have been firmer, owing to the increased demand.

In dried fruits dates have registered an advance. Prunes are quoted higher and a further increase has been announced by importers of candied peel. Tea continues in very firm position. Advices received state that some supplies have left Calcutta, but at best these shipments are considered only a very small fraction of the tea that should be on the way to Canada if relief could be looked for. Much higher prices for Indian and Ceylon teas are expected. Shipments of fresh halibut from the West Coast are now being made to Eastern points. Apples are scarce, practically the only kind in the market being the American box apples. Advances have been recorded in cleaning powder, jams, baking powder, icing sugars, clothes lines, brooms, shelled walnuts, condensed milk. Business has been very good during the week.

BOYS READY FOR WORK.

Unused Land in and Near Sodus to Be Tilled.

SODUS.—The boys more than 14 years of age in the Sodus High School have been notified to obtain positions where they can assist in producing food supplies or, failing that, other needed supplies.

If their agricultural or other industrial services are satisfactory they will be given full credit for their school work to the end of the school year. A canvass is being made of unused land and the principal effort of the young men will be first toward food supplies. The consent of the parents and a certificate of enlistment for industrial service will be preliminary to applying for positions.

CLOTHING FROM PEAT FIBRE

Process Said to Have Been Perfected by Inventor in Sweden.

A process is stated to have been perfected in Sweden for the manufacture of a strong textile material from peat fibre. The inventor, an engineer named Jegesaus, began to study this process twenty years ago, but was hampered by the fact that the manufacture was too costly, so that he was unable to try his ideas to any practical use. Induced by war conditions, however, he resumed his experiments, and has now succeeded in making dress materials from peat on a large scale.

The prices of these fabrics are said to be somewhat lower than those for artificial wool, and the durability great. The inventor himself and several other persons are already wearing "peat" clothing, and a factory for the working of the process is about to be erected.—Commerce Report.

LOCKIE VS. MONAGHAN JUDGMENT ANNOUNCED

Judgment was given yesterday in the Divisional Court upon the appeal of the defendants and cross-appeal of the Plaintiff from the judgment of the County Judge.

The judgment finds that the plaintiff, Lockie, failed to prove his claim in respect of the road in dispute, and that his action in this respect should be dismissed and that liberty to him to bring further action in this respect should not be permitted.

The injunction requiring the defendant to furnish water to the plaintiff's land is set aside on the ground that the plaintiff failed to show his riparian rights had been invaded.

The damages which had been fixed at the trial at $350.00 were reduced to $100.00, the court considering that some damages should be allowed the plaintiff owing to the fact that the culverts on the highway had been permitted by the Township to get out of repair.

No costs of action or of appeal were allowed to either party and in the result the Plaintiff gets $100.00 damages and each party pays their own costs of the litigation.

To speak distinctly and directly into the mouthpiece—

AN eminent telephone man of 30 years' experience says that this is the great need in telephoning. Over half the service difficulties would disappear if distinct and direct speaking were practised.

¶ To speak towards your telephone from a yard or so away, or to speak across it means bad transmission—often wrong numbers, misunderstanding and annoyance.

¶ You can help the service, avoid wrong numbers, misunderstanding and annoyance, by speaking distinctly, and directly into the mouthpiece, with the lips about half an inch from its rim.

THE EVOLUTION OF THE SIX INCH SHELL

Something Told of the Making in a Peterborough Munition Works of the Shells That Canada Is Sending to the Guns of the Allies

If we take the stated ambition of the man returned from across the seas, relegated home to Canada after a period of service or of training in England, and so on the way to his discharge, that he wishes in the way of employment and coming back into civil life and occupation, to make munitions," as a way of expressing his intention, we know that he has not much conception of what the work entails. Just as driving a team may mean anything from tooling a light delivery service to loading and shifting saw logs. And so making munitions comprises almost untold passages-at-arms with steel castings and bronze units, differing in size and weight as the fuses and timers differ from the steel ingots out of which are sawn, bored and milled to ponderous, missiles that blow and wreck the trenches and dugouts. In the lighter varieties come the operations that may be done by women. Indeed many women of pronounced muscular build and unusual strength may handle the pieces at several operations. But having watched the successive operations and stages of the evolution of a six-inch shell, from the massive ingot of rough steel to the finished and final inspection, the conclusion is reached that taken, by and large, it is a real man's work, and most of it such that only a man in almost superb physical condition can keep up and sustain.

CAREFUL INSPECTION.

Suppose we follow, in a general way, the shell through its processes to its destination at the end of the final inspection table. For all the way along the line it is handled and nurtured, examined as scrupulously as a fond mother searches the small figure of her baby for any indication of approaching trouble. Well and truly made there is no doubt that the shell will perform its fell work on the battlefield, will destroy the enemy and confound his knavish tricks, as our national anthem hath it so expressed, but in between there must be large caution and care that it does not destroy those who are handling it on its way to and in the gun. Eternal vigilance is the price of safety.

The responsibility of the inspection is large and onerous. First, to see that the mechanical operations are well performed. These are the means to the end. Second, to see that the material, in its successive stages of manufacture does not disclose imperfections that show up, especially during the finishing stages and which are not to be detected when the material is in the rough. Third, that when delivered to men at the guns the piece may be handled with safety, shall not by premature explosion be the undoing of our own men and, as has been the case, wreck the gun that is being served. Fourth, that the makers of the shells be not allowed to "put one over" as is the expression, either in hasty work or inferior material. To the credit of the masters and men this latter contingency is one that is very seldom to the fore. Errors have developed, but largely to faulty design and wrong conception of certain functions that would not work out.

THREE SECTIONS OF A SHELL.

The completed shell, as it slides into the gun is of three parts, the driving charge, the power that fires it from the gun and on its errand of destruction, the shell body, containing the explosive charge that rends the steel cylinder into fragments, the cap, or fuse, that determines the moment for explosion. All of these are not prepared in one factory. But as all details are determined by calculation and by the aid of the highest type of scientifice engineering, that when brought together form one whole, each function is ready to do its part. Shells made in Canada may be and often are fitted with the fuses or timers. They are loaded in England, where the driving charge is supplied and which in many of the sizes is encased or held in a brass cylinder, the end of which closes over the base of the shell proper. The finished shells, as shipped from Canada to England, are placed in wooden boxes fitted with section pieces of wood cut to conform to the figure of the shell body. Two of the six-inch shells make a load that one man will hesitate to try to lift, for one hundred and eighty pounds of steel is quite a weight, let alone the weight of the box. Boxes are fitted with handles of wire or rope. In the case of wire the hand grip is thickened with strands of oakum, tarred, to prevent slipping in the grip. The boxes are plainly marked with cabalistic letters and numerals that tell the story of the kind of shell, where and when made, date of inspection and further each box numbered in succession. Any shell among thousands can be at once identified. The six-inch shell is known, professionally as "Mark /6 Shell," and is used in the howitzers, formerly a short gun and not of large calibre, but now made and used by the Allies in sizes away beyond what had been deemed the province or field of fire of this particular arm.

But we are dealing with the six-inch shell. The billets, or forgings, come to the factory in the rough. About seven inches in diameter and twenty-four inches long. The weight of one in the rough is close to one hundred and forty pounds. It has been forged with a cylindrical hole down the centre, to within a few inches of the end that will afterwards form the base of the shell. Four hundred of these ingots will make up a load for one of the heaviest of freight cars.

THE FIRST OPERATION.

The first operation is to cut from the base end a slice about four inches thick. Removing this section exposes to view the general character of the forging. If there be flaws they are likely to show at the end to be exposed, especially that defect technically known as "piping." The machines to do this work are immensely strong. The tool making the cut is of the very hardest grade and in four minutes has eaten its way through the ingot.

Standing beside this machine is a pile of rough blanks, each of 140-lbs. weight. The operator picks up one, deftly thrusts it into the hollow mandril of the machine, moves the clamps that take hold of the block, brings the tool to the indicated place and with the power applied the operation is in progress. To lift the weight, without pulleys, blocks to roll it up on and only the strength of arm and back is a severe test. Just pick up a friend who will weigh about one hundred and fifty pounds and see if you can handle him easily and neatly. And this lifting and thrusting has to go on during the hours of the shift, as the day or night working time is divided. Posted beside the machine is a placard, stating in large and bold black letters,

"The output for the 10-hour shift from this machine is 119 blanks. If the number fall below, the efficiency of the shop is retarded. If 119 be not finished the other machines will have to wait."

Centring the shell for rough turning, follows. It is placed in a mandril and accurately centred so that when turning the outside the walls of the shell shall have the same thickness all around. Rough turning follows. Then to the boring machines. The cylinder of steel is securely gripped and held while a tool eats its way to the bottom of the casting. The very bottom of the bore is turned in a cup shape, a special tool being introduced for the purpose.

ADVANCING THE WORK

This and the preceding operations are done on a time limit.

For cutting the base a piece scale of 4 cents per ingot is allowed. The average wage per day would figure out to about $4.75 for ten hours. The operator handles 8 tons of steel in and out of the machine. The boring, as most of the detail operations, is also on a limit set at about 18 cents per shell. If thirty can be turned out in the day of ten hours the wage would reach $5.40, but this would be the limit. It calls for excessive application, extreme speed in shifting the boring tools and no waste time. The massive lathe is fitted with a holder to support the tools against the enormous strain of peeling out of the bore of the shell a ribbon of steel nearly an inch wide and over a sixteenth of an inch thick. Four tools are supported on the holder, which resembles a right angled cross. As one tool is withdrawn from the work the holder is turned a quarter of one revolution and another tool presented. The inside of the shell is dressed approximately to a diameter of four inches, and leaving a wall of solid steel over one inch thick. This wall has to be broken out and smashed by the intensity of the detonation of the charge of explosive. Those who make a study of pressures may figure out the power per square inch to effect the purpose. It transcends anything known of the strength of explosives such as used in rock blasting or other construction work.

FIXED FOR BANDS.

Then to the lathe to cut, near the base of the shell, the seat for the copper rifling band. The width of the band is specific for different sizes of shell. In the case of the Mark 16 shell, which may be used for gun or howitzer, the difference would be of a band wider or narrower. The bottom of the band seat is furrowed with a sig-zag groove, into which the copper is forced, the idea being to hold the band in place against the rotation of the shell as it leaves the gun.

THE WORK OF THE BAND

On this copper band depends the accuracy of the shot. The bore of the gun is rifled, that is grooves are cut in a spiral, the length of the bore. The impetus of the driving charge forces the shell along the bore with incredible speed. The copper band is driven into the spiral grooves and the shell leaves the gun, whirling in the plane of its length, just as a rifle ball from the high powered rifle. The motion imparted to the shell holds it in flight and prevents it tumbling over or deviating from the path on which it has been fired. So that this copper band is, so to speak, the brain of the shell. Further, while the shell must fit the bore of the gun with accuracy allowance is made for any roughness in the gun through wear and use. The copper band fills the bore, under the pressure, and prevents the gases of explosion escaping, except after the flight of the shell. If the band be loose or a bad fit, the shell is liable to jam and wreck the gun and injure the crew. This has occurred, not often, but times enough to make accuracy of manufacture imperative.

NOSE PIECE PUT ON.

Next in order of operation is to recess the base of the shell, outside. This removes the centering hole, the recess being about an inch deep. It further has the advantage of exposing the metal of the base and if any flaws are there they can be seen. The recess is filled with a base plate, screwed in under a force so immense that one square inch of steel, projecting from the base plate in order to afford a grip for the tool, is wrenched off. Follows the fastening on of the "nose piece." This is a conical section, screwed to the point of the shell, threaded, as to the outside, to screw to the body, and as to the inside, to receive the fuse plug or time fuse. When this piece is driven home and the shell finished turned the fit is so close and accurate that it requires the closest scrunity to determine if the shell is all one piece or made up of the body and nose piece.

And just here is related a fact, well established, that the rear of the shell, as it leaves the gun, actually travels faster than the front end. As the whole is a cylinder of steel this would seem to be an impossibility. The terrific force of the driving charge, exerted practically in an instant, upsets, or compresses the steel, the copper band giving something to drive against, as it is forced into the spiral grooves of the bore of the gun. Measurements taken of shells that have been fired in the course of experiments show that to a very small fraction the bulk of the shells, about what might be termed the middle is perceptibly swelled out under the tremendous power exerted. The method of proving shell ammunition as has been practiced is to fire it over and along a sandy beach of the ocean at high tide, the curve of flight, which is a more or less flattened parabola, being guaged for, say three miles. Then when the tide has receded the shell is recovered and inspected. A sufficient allowance is made in determining the finished diameter of the shell to allow that it may not bind or plug in the gun, even under the force of the firing charge.

Another thing to be guarded against most critically is the presence of "ghost lines." These are indications that disclose flaws in the metal of the side walls of the shell. If such be present, and not detected, the walls of steel under the enormous pressure of the driving charge may open, let in the heat and flame of the charge and fire the explosive contents housed in the shell body. When this occurs it is good bye to the gun and the crew. It is the one dreaded fault of manufacture and is most carefully looked for in the course of inspection.

INSERTING COPPER BAND

Inserting the copper band is an interesting detail. It is done by hydraulic pressure of many tons. The strip of copper to be fitted into the groove by the force of compression, is thicker than needed. Under the pressure the copper flows and fills up the groove, sinks into the "waves" at the bottom of the groove and is held securely against movement. This operation is one of the many carried on and out of a piece lingers, of from five to seven cents per band. A man came to take hold of this machine. He was in perfect physical condition. He cleaned up from $11.00 to $12.00 per night shift of 13 hours. In two weeks he was crippled, had to cease work, and has not gone back to the task. He was not asked to achieve what he did but was determined to make his pile "making munitions." Any one who wishes may figure out the quantity of material handled, based on the above statistics, and taking that the shell body, in the state as it reaches the banding machine, weighed 89 pounds. He had handled over eight tons of steel, into and out of the machine during the shift.

INSPECTION DETAILS.

The details of inspection are divided into preliminary and final inspections. The first, after the shell has passed the finishing turning. It is then inspected for perfection and smoothness of bore, the body, diameter, depth of bore and freedom from defects. The second inspection to test the absolute details of finish, weight, outside finish, accuracy of attachment of nose piece and base piece, for detection of ghost lines, for general appearance and soundness. The guages used are many and curious contrivances. Personal equation counts for a great deal. These guages in the hands of one not expert will tell a tale that will condemn shell after shell. In the grasp of one accustomed to the work the readings will differ surprisingly. For instance, to hold the guage that will test the thickness of the shell walls, and watch the indicator shift backward and forward one would conclude that the inside of the bore was fearfully irregular. No such thing. The hand or arm of the man inspecting has not been trained to hold the guage aright. Experienced workmen in iron and steel, such as turning a shaft, can caliper the shaft to within one thousandth of an inch with eyes shut. All as a matter of feeling. Yet the same caliper in the hand of one not gifted with the sense of touch will indicate a material difference in thickness of the steel. In the inspection of the shells there is allowed a tolerance of a very small fraction, of an inch, possibly not so much as the thickness of a sheet of tissue paper two thousand of which make up the thickness of an inch. After the shell passes final inspection it is stamped with sundry cabalistic readings and marks, all of which tell the history of the shell, including the factory or maker, the man who inspected, and hence is responsible, the metal quality, size, gun or use for which intended, date of manufacture, etc. The man at the gun, if he has been apprised, can know that he is handling good Canadan stuff, who made it, how long it has been on the way, and send the missle over to the Bosche with the compliments of the Canucks behind the gun.

THE FUSES.

As to the fuses. These are of many kinds. Those that are fitted to take ignition from the blazing gasses surrounding the shell as it leaps from the gun and due to explode after flying for a certain period of time. The length of fuse determines the instant of explosion. The time fuse is a much more complicated affair, about as interesting as the inwards of a high-priced watch. And it has a duty beside which that of the watch is just fun. A shell costs much more than a watch and has a heap more of responsibility. Generally lives up to it, too. The time fuses depend, as to the time of ignition of the explosive charge, on the rotation of the shell as it is hurled through the air. The rotative motion brings into activity a mechanism that eventually ignites the train of fulminate that prods the charge of lyddite into its herculean work, that of rending the walls of the shell into fragments. These fuses are also capable of firing the shell on contact, that is when the nose of the shell strikes some object. But as thousands of shells are expended in the work of breaking up the barbed wire entanglements, and are thrust into the ground, the fuses are set to get to work on a time limit.

DISCHARGING SHELL.

The driving charge is generally cordite. A product of gun-cotton. This is exploded behind the shell. Made up in bags for the larger guns and in brass cylinders for small sizes. Explosion is a term that is entirely relative, and applies to the rate at which the charge changes its composition on being ignited. The more powerful explosives detonate on being fired. The charge concealed in the body of the shell is generally, that known as lyddite, a form of picric acid, though there are as many variations as there is names for these compounds. The charge is introduced into the shell when warm, and is of a pasty consistency.

Suffered From Severe Headaches FOR TWO YEARS

Headaches are many and varying; but when the head starts to ache you may be sure there is some chief cause. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but the presence of the headache clearly shows that unless the cause is removed some other baneful disease is liable to assert itself.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for the past forty years, been curing all kinds of headaches and has proved itself to be a remedy that cures where others fail.

Mr. I. N. Petershen, Dnieper, Man writes: "I am only too glad to be able to state that I derived wonderful benefit from Burdock Blood Bitters. I suffered from severe headaches for two years. I was treated by several doctors but received no benefit until by chance I heard of B.B.B., and I at once procured two bottles and in a short time I was completely cured. I am and always will be grateful for what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I am glad to recommend it to all who suffer from headaches."

B.B.B. is the oldest and the best known blood medicine on the market to-day, having been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Nerves Were So Bad Would Lie Awake Nights

And Had to Avoid Crowds or Excitement—When Doctors Gave Up Turned to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food With Good Results

Peterborough, Ont., March 9.—The cure reported in this letter will be best appreciated by persons who know the keen mental anguish caused by inability to sleep. You lie awake and think with alarm of all the dreadful things that might happen to you. You lose confidence and courage, are easily irritated and life is scarcely worth while.

But there is a message of hope in this letter, for it tells of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and the grand work it is accomplishing.

Mrs. Chas. E. Wiley, 136 London street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "About three years ago I was suffering from nervous debility, sleeplessness and loss of appetite. My nerves were so bad that I could not attend church or any place where there was a crowd or excitement. During the night I would lie awake for two or three hours. I had tried several remedies and taken treatments from doctors. The doctor finally said he could not do any more for me, and it was then I started using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I had read in the newspapers of how highly it was recommended, so I secured some and commenced using it. After the third box I noticed an improvement, so I kept on taking them until I had used eight or nine boxes. The results were such that I could sleep and eat well and go to places where there was a crowd or excitement without any difficulty. My health was generally benefitted greatly. Since that, from time to time, when I am not feeling up to the mark, I take a few of the Nerve Food pills, as I usually keep some in the house. I would recommend this treatment to anyone suffering from nervous trouble of any kind."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Get in the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well, what a glorious condition to attain. And yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of inside-bathing before breakfast.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A KISS BY MISTAKE

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

Ned Bartholow and his fiancee Sarah Stevens, were on a railway train entering the city of New York. They were to be married in a month, and Ned having business in the metropolis Sarah had decided to go down with him and spend a few days there on the matter of her trousseau.

Shortly before reaching the Terminal the train ran into a tunnel. It was a short tunnel, and no lights were lit. Most of the passengers, thinking that they were rolling into the station, arose from their seats and crowded into the aisle, Ned and Sarah among the number. When Ned perceived that the train was in the dark he concluded to take a kiss. Drawing Sarah toward him, he pressed his lips upon hers.

Sarah, to his astonishment, broke away from him, at the same time uttering a cry. The train shot out into the light and revealed to Ned a young woman looking at him indignantly. Sarah was standing a yard away from her fiance.

The young woman who had been kissed, seeing the astonished expression on Ned's face, broke into a smile. Ned was in a dilemma. He couldn't apologize without saying that he had kissed the wrong woman. So he said nothing. The smile on the girl's face changed to a frown. Sarah, not understanding what had happened, looked curious.

The train stopped in the station, and the passengers poured out on to the platform. The kissed woman alighted before Ned and Sarah, and Ned kept an eye on her as she walked out of the station a dozen yards ahead of him. When she reached the sidewalk she entered a taxi. Ned made a mental note of its number.

Fate has so many persons' affairs in its hands that it starts things, then leaves the persons themselves to work out the problem, though fate will take a hand at any time in any of the millions of life's real stories. Ned Bartholow felt that he owed the lady he had kissed by mistake an apology. Since he could not well have made one in the presence of Sarah it occurred to him that possibly he might do so when Sarah was not present. At any rate, he fixed in memory the number of the taxicab in which the lady had been driven away and as soon as he had disposed of Sarah went to the cab company's office, asked that the number be called in and when the cab came paid the cabman a dollar to tell him where he had driven the lady.

Another strange thing is that we do things for one reason thinking that we are doing them for another. Ned could have let the matter drop, or he might have sent a brief explanation by mail—that is, after getting the lady's name. He did neither. He called at the address the cabman gave him that very evening and asked for the lady who had arrived during the afternoon on a train.

The truth is that all this part of the story might as well be condensed into a few words. That kiss in the dark was a feast for a god, and he wanted another one from the same lips. He could kiss his fiancee all he liked. Possibly that entered into his reasons for wishing to kiss another woman whom he had no right to kiss.

The lady entered the room wonderingly and, seeing the man who had kissed her, blushed. That was the most unfortunate thing she could have done. It doubled Ned's desire to kiss her again.

"I have taken the liberty to come without permission," he said, "to make an explanation."

The lady dropped her eyes to the floor and waited. Ned had intended to tell her that he was engaged to the lady who had stood near him on the train and to confess that the kiss had been intended for her. But how could he hope for a duplicate kiss after making such an avowal? The scamp changed his tactics, entering instead on a tissue of lies.

"I had noticed you," he said, "sitting in the car not far from me. You will forgive me, won't you?"

"Proceed," said the girl.

"How could I help admiring one to whom admiration is due? Your liquid eyes, your glossy hair, your"— He paused.

"What?"

"Coral lips. They took me up like a whirlwind and made me dizzy. I know not what I did."

He paused. The lady's eyes were still fixed on the rug on which she stood.

"Do not stab me by saying that I am not forgiven."

There was no reply.

"Does this silence mean that I am to be treated as I deserve?"

He made a step toward her. She did not move.

"Have you no reply?"

Still silence.

He turned and went to the door, where he paused and looked back. She stood as if waiting for something. He returned to her and for the second time pressed his lips on hers.

There was a reason for the breaking of the engagement between Ned Bartholow and Sarah Stevens. He said it was financial losses. The real cause was that the train on which he and Sarah entered the city ran through a two minute tunnel.

At any rate, this is the fatalist's reason.

If you can't get all of that you should, it's all the more important that you should have the other tried-and-true remedy for a torpid liver and bowels that don't act freely and naturally.

MADE HIS WORKMEN RIVALS.

How Charles M. Schwab Spurred Them on to Greater Efforts.

In telling how he increased the efficiency of one of his departments Charles M. Schwab, the famous steel man, says in the American Magazine:

"It was near the end of the day; in a few minutes the night force would come on duty. I turned to a workman who was standing beside one of the roaring, mouthed furnaces and asked him for a piece of chalk.

"'How many heats has your shift made today?' I queried.

"'Six,' he replied.

"I chalked a big '6' on the floor and passed along without another word. When the night shift came in they saw the '6' and asked about it.

"'The big boss was in here today,' said the day men. 'He asked us how many heats we had made, and we told him six. He chalked it down.'

"The next morning I passed through the same mill. I saw that the '6' had been rubbed out and a big '7' written instead. The night shift had announced itself. That night I went back. The '7' had been erased, and a '10' swaggered in its place. The day force recognized no superiors. Thus a fine competition was started, and it went on until this mill, formerly the poorest producer, was turning out more than any other mill in the plant."

Exceptional Circumstances.

The sympathetic prison visitor went from cell to cell interviewing the inmates. To one penitent-looking individual she put the usual question: "What brought you here?"

"Borrowing money, lady?" was the reply.

"But, good gracious!" she exclaimed, "they don't put people in prison for borrowing money?"

"Not ordinarily," said the man, "but I had to knock a man down three or four times before he would lend it to me."—Exchange.

Central Powers' Money.

The announcement in a Swiss journal that Austria-Hungary will be obliged to take for the state from one-quarter to one-third of the private fortunes of citizens, to escape repudiation and bankruptcy after the war, is followed up by a similar calculation of a French financial agency regarding Germany. It estimates the cost of the war for Germany alone to the end of June of this year at $30,000,000,000. It will be impossible to meet such obligations by loans. By a measure of confiscation of private wealth similar to that proposed in Austria-Hungary, it would indeed be possible to bring this total down to $15,000,000,000—still an immense sum, but perhaps more amenable to fiscal operations.

As to the position of the Turkish ally of the Teutonic powers, there is of course graver ground for apprehension. Within two years Germany has advanced to Turkey 82,000,000 pounds Turk, plus a new advance for this year of 36,000,000 pounds — in German banknotes. These are to be locked up by the Turkish debt administration as a guarantee of treasury notes to be circulated to the amount of 44,000,000 pounds—redeemable in gold seven years after the war. This does not at all represent Turkey's expense of the war. Her purchases of war material in Germany and Austria-Hungary are not included, and have not received even a beginning of payment.

Rents Out Cleaners.

An Indiana electrical store makes the renting of vacuum cleaners a part of its business, and finds that the service is appreciated by its customers.

"When we put the plan into effect," says the manager, "we advertised the offer in the daily papers and by sending postcards to people whose houses were wired for electric light. These advertisements stated that the charge per day for a cleaner would be 50 cents if the customer called for and returned the machine, or 75 cents a day if our wagon delivered it and called for it.

"Already we have more than paid for the machines and have had additional advantage of getting in touch with hundreds of new customers."—Electrical Merchanising.

England and Japan in China.

Despite all the unkind things that have been said about the Japanese, one must concede that their commercial success in China has been due largely to their perseverance, industry, agility, and frugality. You cannot succeed in business in the Orient by spending four hours a day in a luxurious office, devoting the rest of the time to golfing and dinners and social gatherings, while your Asiatic rivals work fifteen hours or more every day and are satisfied with offices or shops which offer no personal comfort. And this is merely one of the many factors that enter into the reckoning.—K. K. Kawakami, in the February Atlantic.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even colour, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Financing the War By Individual Effort

"AN INVESTMENT OF FIFTEEN CENTS A DAY ON PART OF CANADIANS WOULD HELP."

A concise statement of Canada's war debts is given by Kathleen K. Bowker in "Everywoman's World" for April. At the same time a novel way for the individual to help pay them is suggested. The writer calls this idea "The Fifteen-Cent Investment." She says:

"The war is costing Canada, in round numbers, one million dollars a day. Part of this huge amount is made up from the war taxes, which we pay every time we buy a postage stamp, a patent medicine, a railroad or steamboat ticket, etc., and in the increased price of many articles. But all the revenue received from these sources is not sufficient to entirely meet the heavy expenses of the war.

"Therefore the Government has had to borrow money. The first War Loan was issued in December, 1915; the second in October, 1916; the third on the 12th of March, 1917. All these loans bear interest at 5 per cent., and are for amounts from $100 up. In addition to these, the government issues War Savings Certificates which may be bought at any time and at any post office or bank for $21.50, $43.50, and $86, maturing in three years at $25, $50 and $100. These War Savings Certificates are for those who can invest only in small amounts.

"The huge amount needed to carry on the war must be supplied either by us or borrowed from other countries. If we must borrow from other countries, the heavy interest must be paid out of Canada; if we supply it ourselves, the interest is paid to ourselves and remains in Canada.

"If every man, woman and child saves and invests fifteen cents a day we can supply the money needed to carry on the war ourselves and keep the interest money in Canada.

"A Penny Savings Bank is a good beginning for a real savings account in a real bank. All banks will open accounts for one dollar and upwards, on which interest is paid at the rate of three per cent. Banking may be done by mail just as easily as in person.

A large number of auto thefts, joy rides, "chicken gardens," and cabarets provoked the report.

A New and Distinctive DOMINION TREAD

Anti-skid efficiency and low mileage cost are two outstanding features of this new DOMINION Tread Tire. The illustration shows how admirably it is suited to resist side slip or loss of traction. The moderate price makes its mileage cost very low, and its dependable anti-skid properties fit it for all-round service.

Because there are so many different kinds of cars and roads and drivers, and no one type of tire can possibly suit all needs, we make four distinct types:

DOMINION TREADS—new, but already they have "made good".
PLAIN TREADS—economical and serviceable.
CHAIN TREADS—the famous, efficient anti-skids.
NOBBY TREADS—"the aristocrats of the road"—90% puncture proof.

Choose with judgment the DOMINION Type that suits your needs, and you will get the most satisfactory service you ever had.

PRAYER FOR THE NATIONS

(Written for the Christian Science Monitor.)

There can be no doubt that the prophets as well as the Master himself, conceived of the office of prayer as embracing the needs of the nations as much as of the individual. A man's purpose in praying for the nations will of course be only an amplification of the real motive which animates his prayer for himself. In just the measure, that is to say, that a man conceives of prayer as the means whereby he may himself gain a subjective understanding of and conformity to God's laws, he will be enabled to conceive broadly of the objective efficacy of prayer for the nations.

When Jeremiah voiced the command to the Jews, who because of their disobedience had been carried away captive, to "seek the peace of the city whither I have caused you to be carried away captives, and pray unto the Lord for it: for in the peace thereof shall ye have peace," it was surely not intended that they should regard prayer as a means of securing divine blessing upon anything that was wrong in the Babylonish government. In the midst of their own imperfect sense of God's government, they would best help themselves to regain their allegiance to Truth by a loving rather than by a rebellious attitude toward the nation which for the moment afforded them asylum. According to their own reflection of the love which is the law of God's government, they would increase the manifestation of Principle in their environment, and prepare themselves for liberty according to God's law. So surely does prayer for enemies involve an understanding of Principle that exposes the unreality of enmity, and thus reduces it to nothingness.

Centuries later when Paul wrote to Timothy, "I exhort therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayer, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men, for kings, and for all that are in authority," he gave it as his understanding that God "will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth." That nations shall gain the understanding of Truth is, then, the right motive of prayer for them. This kind of prayer for the nations requires of the individual who prays, obviously enough, that he must himself understand God whom he would invoke for humanity. He must also have a right conception of prayer itself as the means of communing with God.

When Jesus lamented over the materialistic Jerusalem that killed the prophets and stoned them that were sent unto them, saying, "Your house is left unto you desolate. . . . . Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord," he was by no means harboring a retaliatory desire that calamity should overtake his nation. Rather was he declaring the unalterable law of divine Principle, Love; declaring that the failure to understand and to conform to that law, constituted the evil of mortal mind and its own self imposed calamity.

The scientific understanding of God as infinite divine Love, supreme good, is the foundation of righteous, effective prayer. What a man understands of God or what he falsely believes about Him, is unfailingly reflected in his life; that is, a man's character is the answer to his prayer. It indicates whether he intelligently communes with God as divine Principle and reflects it, or whether his false conception of God results in his recognition of evil as a reality and a consequent inability to vanquish it. As a man's concept of God becomes spiritualised, his life becomes correspondingly purified and he comes under the government of divine Mind, the pure democracy of Spirit in which man is self governed, subject only to Principle.

It is true of nations also that the prevalent conception of God is reflected in national ideals. On page 94 of Science and Health, Mrs. Eddy writes: "The eastern empires and nations owe their false government to the misconceptions of deity there prevalent. Tyranny, intolerance, and bloodshed, wherever found, arise from the belief that the infinite is formed after the pattern of mortal personality, passion and impulse." The national or collective conception of God, its mingling of good and evil beliefs, determines the character of the prevailing conception of prayer. The highest forms of human government are therefore inevitably found in those lands where there is the broadest conception of individualistic Christianity—and their permanence will depend upon the preponderance of good in the national ideals. It has been the momentum of gathering individual perception of Principle that, again and again has overthrown the false governments of the world.

Prayer must be seen, then, as the power of understanding which harmonizes the action of the individual with the universal law of God; which will eventually harmonize the action of nations with God's government just so fast as the individual units of the nations conform more and more to Principle. Jesus' prayer was the most tremendous power in the world of his day. By means of it he was enabled to say, "I have overcome the world." The reverberation of that prayer is to-day sounded in the upheaval of long-concealed evils, precedent to their final overthrow. Of this power of spiritual understanding to overthrow evil as an unreality and to establish the reign of good, Ezekiel declared: "Thus said the Lord God; Remove the diadem, and take off the crown. . . . exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn it: and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is."

Those individuals who pray that God's will be done on earth as it is in heaven, can prove the efficacy of their prayer to bring the heavenly kingdom nearer only as they let the Mind of Christ displace for them all of the beliefs of the carnal mind. How can a man pray for the brotherhood of nations if he has not demonstrated brotherliness within the radius of his personal experience? How can he effectually pray that nation shall no more lift up sword against nation if he himself harbours a thought of hate toward even one human being? Individuals must themselves become a Christlike; then their prayers have power to heal the nations. Understanding that individual efficacy precedes collective power, Mrs. Eddy wrote in the Manual of the Mother Church (p. 41.): "It shall be the duty of every member of the Church to pray each day: 'Thy kingdom come; let the reign of divine Truth, Life and Love be established in me, and rule out of me all sin; and may Thy Word enrich the affections of all mankind, and govern them!"

RITUAL MURDER CASE IN RUSSIA REOPENS

FORMER MINISTER WILL BE TRIED FOR FALSELY PROSECUTING JEW.

NEW YORK, April 28. —The new Government of Russia decided this week to try former Minister of Justice Shtcheglovitoff on a charge of having falsely prosecuted Mendel Beilis, the shoemaker of Kiev, for participation in a ritual murder, according to a despatch to the Jewish Daily Forward from its Petrograd correspondent. He will be tried in the same court where the shoemaker's trial took place, the despatch said, which at the time attracted attention throughout the world.

The former Minister of Justice, the correspondent added, was imprisoned in the Fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, Petrograd, after the revolution, and when the decision on his trial was reached he was transferred to the fortress at Kiev.

Suffered With Heart For Ten Years

Would Nearly Smother

There is nothing that brings with it such fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The uncertain and irregular heart action causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, so that it beats strong and regular, and tone up the nervous system so that the cause of so much anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. M. O. McCready, Wapella, Sask., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I feel that it is only right for me to let you know what your wonderful remedy has done for me, and in a very short time, too. I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt so much better that I kept on using them, and can truthfully say I feel like a new woman.

"I would advise anyone with heart trouble to use them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Evolution of The 6 Inch Shell

ency. When ignited the enormous volume of gases generated exert the fearful pressure that tears, rends and destroys men, buildings and demolishes the scenery. The shells mare in Canada are filled in England, and fitted with fuses as determined for the work ahead.

PURPOSE OF INSPECTION

What are the values of the inspection. First to see that the material, as sent to the guns, is practically perfect. This that the enemy will get the benefit of well built ammunition, but primarily that our own men shall not be exposed to the dangers of premature explosion. We don't mind subjecting the enemy all that is good for them but we cannot afford to take any risks of injury to our own boys at and about the gun. Besides it costs just as much to transport and handle a useless shell as one that is perfectly good. That is good for its bad purpose. Second to see that shells made well and truly may not be discarded to the detriment of the manufacture for some trifling excess in weight or other things than can be remedied. Thirdly to keep the manufacture up to the mark. Broadly speaking the makers try to send out perfect goods, but if the inspection were relaxed there would be the opportunity to relax the fidelity of the operations and who knows where it would end.

The finished shell, (without the fuse or loading charge) should weigh nearly eighty-nine pounds four ounces. There is an accurate determined weight beyond which added weight will not be allowed. Again the shell may go below the standard weight some distance and yet pass inspection. But as a rule, standing at the weigh scales of the inspection table, and watching a succession of two hundred shells rolled on and off, the difference was only trifling and the larger number were exactly of the same weight, so accurately are the tools set to trim and bore.

THE SHRAPNEL SHELL.

The shrapnel shell is a form of second gun, and is used against infantry or in attacking. The shell fired from the gun explodes, sending a shower of bullets over a given area. The number of balls in the shell varies from three hundred to as high as seven hundred. The balls are settled in the shell by shaking in a machine. Fill a shell by hand, fill it full. Place it in the machine and over a hundred more may be introduced. Wax or resin is poured into the shell and cooling holds the balls firmly in place. As the explosive, or rending charge, in the shell is encased in a brass tube, great care has to be used in seeing that the resin does not obstruct the firing point at which the charge ignites.

Such is the history of the birth and bringing up of a six inch shell. In the main the successive operations are much the same for all the larger sizes, until the real big fellows are reached, when the handling must be done with appliances devised to reduce the manual labour that would be excessive.

THE INSPECTOR.

A final word may be added as to the requirements looked for in the man who is taking up the work of inspection. It is essential that he have at least such an education that he may read measurements in thousandths of an inch and correctly indicate the variations mathematically, that he can express intelligently what he finds in the work before him, that while manual dexterity is essential other things are equally necessary if the inspection is to be of use and as a safeguard against defective work. And when it is considered that so many of the men who have loyally and nobly hastened to reach the firing lines, and who have returned disabled in the ways they have been disabled, were very many from the labouring class and who have had only limited opportunity to gain knowledge, one can understand how a work that seems to offer a congenial and almost remunerative chance should "as, it often does, prove unsatisfatory. Men try it. They are very patiently directed and taught, are given periods of instruction at the inspection headquarters, but after repeated trials give the duty up. It has been found by experience, that much as the makers would wish, and afford as they have afforded opportunity to returned men, as a class, to take up the work, that men of what we may call the student class make the best inspectors. They start in with the great advantage of the school or college training, so far as it has gone, and grasp the niceties of the operations much quicker. And something of the sense of responsibility rests with them, though one would think that no one could appreciate this to the same extent as the men who have been on the firing line and handled the "stuff to be put across."

Government's Herd Of Buffalos Are An Asset

When Hon. Frank Oliver, then Minister of the Interior, bought for Canada a herd of wild buffalo from Montana and set apart a great area of government and as a home for these creatures, nobody raised any strong objection, but the scheme was quite generally regarded as a bit Quixotic. It was very well to try to preserve the noble bos Americanus from extinction, but nobody could guarantee that rounding up, transportation and subsequent semi-captivity in a great public park would not be the death of the whole herd. But 739 buffalo were bought and were delivered at an appointed spot within Canada. That was eight years ago. To-day there are about 2,500 buffalo in the big park at Wainwright, Alberta, and about 135 in Elk Island Park, in the same province, the animals are in good condition and the increase in their numbers has never been interrupted. In March, 1915, the total number in the Wainwright park was 1,640. Thus it is seen that in the last two years the increase has been considerably greater than the whole original herd.

The buffalo that were bought cost the government about $250 a head, delivered. As the government has a monopoly of these creatures to-day it is not easy to say just what they are worth. But it is certain that they have a very special value even from an economic point of view, for buffalo robes and buffalo heads command very high prices, and buffalo meat is a great delicacy. The living buffalo is in constant demand for zoological collections throughout the world. All persons who take an interest in such matters seem to agree that the price paid in 1909 was no more than a fair one. Even assuming that buffaloes are be one exception to the rule of advancing prices and that they are of the same value as were those of eight years ago. It will be seen that the existing herd is worth well over a million dollars and that at this time the natural increase represents a value of over $150,000 a year.

BRITISH ARE ACTIVE IN THE REGION NORTH OF YPRES

Arras-St. Quentin Front Apparently Not Taking Whole of British Front For General Haig Reports Successful Raid---Positions Are Improved Between Monchy and the Scarpe River--French Preparing For Another Big Offensive.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, April 30.—As an indication that the British offensive isn't taking all the strength of the British army in the Arras to St. Quentin front, Field Marshal Haig staged a strong raid north of Ypres to-day. "At night, north of Ypres, a successful raid was carried out," the British Commander-in-Chief reported. "Eighteen prisoners and a machine gun were captured." Ypres is nearly fifty miles north of the Arras sector where the British push was still powerfully exerted against the remnants of the northernmost end of the Wotan line. "Between Monchey Le Preux and the Scarpe in a small operation, we took a few prisoners and improved our position," Haig reported of the fighting in this sector. The fighting in the rounded sector in front of Gavrelle, Roux, Moncy and Guemappe was apparently in a "clinch" to-day, the armies on both sides more or less deadlocked.

LONDON, April 30.—Repulse of Teutonic attacks on the Doiran-Vardar front, Macedonia, was announced in an official statement from Saloniki to-day. "The enemy heavily bombarded positions gained by us Saturday night," the statement said, "and an attack in strength was beaten off with heavy losses to the attackers."

PARIS, April 30.—Forecasting possibly a resumption of General Nivelle's concerted offensive, the War Office statement to-day detailed violent artillery actions south of St. Quentin, around Troyonne, Craonne and the regions of Hurtebise. The statement reported failure of German attacks in the Hurtebise sector in the French curtain of fire.

BRITISH ADMIRALTY UNDER STRONG FIRE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, April 30.—The British Admiralty was under a furnace blast of heat of public clamour for rehabilitation to-day.

Lord Northcliffe, the man who led the crusade in 1915 which resulted in the great shake-up of the War Office, and Lloyd George's appointment as Minister of War Munitions, was behind to-day's movement for reorganization of the naval branch. Press and public appeared to agree with him in the liveliest fashion.

The Admiralty is under attack from three directions. First, there is widespread criticism of its failure more successfully to combat the German submarine menace—second, the Admiralty is blamed for insufficient coast protection, permitting a number of German destroyer raids on seacoast cities—third, and probably most important, the public is aroused over the suppression of full facts as to the seriousness of the submarine campaign and allied losses.

Lord Northcliffe is leading the way in this criticism.

LONDON, April 30. — The opposition to the Admiralty reached the House of Commons to-day, when questions were asked of the First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Edward Carson. "As the number of German submarines is increasing we must expect a corresponding increase in the danger to shipping," he replied, referring to the statistics of sinkings.

Scarpe a Valley of Death For Prussians

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, April 30. — The Scarpe is fast becoming a valley of death for the Prussians. The slaughtered enemy lies thick among the dandelions on the valley's yellowing slopes. In terms of losses, the Scarpe is a year's defeat for the Germans. With that part of the Siegfreid line known as the "Wotan front," already melting away at its northern end, and the Drocourt to Queant system of German defenses threatened, Hindenburg is throwing division after division into the struggle, with orders to hold at all costs. As the British day by day bite forward—a bit here and a bit there—the Germans counter-attack repeatedly. Always they come in close masses where the British guns reap a horrible harvest in the open country. Sunday I watched the heavy fighting about Oppy and south to Gavrelle. There the Germans attempted to retake the trenches which the British won early Sunday morning. I could clearly see stretcher bearers on both sides carrying back the wounded—under shell fire. Beyond the Oppy-Gavrelle line, over the smoking battlefield, Douai stood out in the sunlight. The city hall, with its magnificent crenalated belfry and the huge tower of St. Pierre Cathedral, glistened in the light dominating the city like the Woolworth and Metropolitan buildings tower over New York. That Hindenburg fears for Douai with its eight railways, is certain. Of his reserve troops available before the Franco-British offensives of this month many divisions have now been completely knocked out, and whatever plan he may have had in mind before these great "pushes" he must now at least modify.

PETROGRAD, April 30.—From the Czar's winter palace on the eve of May Day, until recently the seat of the most autocratic of all modern governments, a huge sign to-day proclaimed the rising tide of world democracy. It reads: "The proletariat of all countries unite." The orders issued by Minister Gutchkoff to-day say: "Hereafter all soldiers are to be considered citizens of Russia. Hereafter privates shall say merely "yes" or "no", without the "Sir," in answering officers. Also soldiers hereafter need not salute their officers "unless the soldier wishes." Privates, however, must come "to attention" when commanded to do so. Corporal punishment in the army completely abolished."

Gunner Jos. Teabeau Peterboro' Soldier Returns From the Front Wearing an Empty Sleeve That Testifies to the Sacrifice He Has Made for Empire

ENLISTED IN THE 52nd

Gunner Jos. N. Teabeau, who enlisted in Peterborough, last year, with the 52nd Battery, C.F.A., arrived home on Saturday night from the front, with an empty left sleeve in his tunic, testifying to the sacrifice he has made for the Empire. Gunner Teabeau is one of three Peterborough brothers who have been wounded fighting for Canada overseas, an older brother, Pte. William Teabeau, of the Canadian Mounted Rifles having arrived home some time ago, badly wounded in the leg.

Gunner Teabeau enlisted in the 52nd Battery, was transferred to the Ammunition Column and went overseas with the first draft last year, going to the 5th Battery at the front. In October a fuse cap from a German shell which burst some distance away, struck him on the left arm above the elbow, shattering it so badly that amputation was necessary a short time afterwards.

Gunner Teabeau will spend a short leave at his home here and then go to Toronto to be provided with an artificial arm.

Pte. E. Cook, nephew of Mr. Chas. Noyes, of Peterborough, who enlisted here with the 93rd Battalion and was transferred to another Canadian Battalion at the front, was wounded on April 9th. Pte. Cook came from Cavan to enlist. His parents live in Hampshire, England.

PTE. CHAS. ARMSTRONG.

Mrs. M. E. Armstrong, of Lakefield, has been officially notified that her son, Pte. Charles R. Armstrong was admitted to No. 1 Convalescence Depot, Boulogne, on April 16th, with a gun-shot wound in the eye-lid. Pte. Armstrong was severely wounded last fall and after his recovery had only been in France a short time when he was again wounded. He enlisted in the 21st Battalion and has seen considerable service in France.

PTE. HAYLOCK.

Mrs. Haylock, 47 Ware street, received a cable on the 25th inst., saying that Pte. F. Haylock, 412478, of the 21st Battalion, late of the 39th, who had a gun-shot wound in the face and fractured jaw, and was dangerously ill besides, and was admitted to No. 2 General Hospital, Havre, on April 22, 1917, is over his illness, but is still suffering from his wounds.

The Examiner is informed by the Federal member of West Peterborough that on account of the increasing number of wounded and the continued duration of the war, a new policy has for some months past been adopted by the Dominion Government, which will not open hospitals for the returned wounded except in buildings which will accommodate two hundred beds or more, besides ample room for administration quarters, medical offices, nurses, etc., and room for exercise in suitable grounds for the convalescent.

Mrs. Silas Bullied, 231 Princess St., has received the following letter from her son, Pte. Percy Bullied, with the 46th Battalion in France:

Somewhere in France,
March 4th, 1917.

Dear Mother, Sisters and Brothers,—I am fine, hoping you are all the same. I received two letters from you this week, and I was glad to hear you were all well.

I had four letters and two birthday boxes from Lina this week, and she was well.

Joe was up to see me on Sunday night with Victor, and they are both fine. Joe and Victor came the night the two parcels came, and we had some feed I tell you.

Victor and I have been out together nearly every night for the last two weeks, and he is in the best of health now. The battalion is out for rest now. Victor and I night before last went over to see the 21st Battalion, and Frank is getting better. He is out of the hospital now. We were with young Hardwick, and he said he was getting along fine, and he expected that Frank would be back to the battalion this week, so we are going over again the end of the week to see him. We saw George Moore, and he is fine, and Mr. Haw, he is fine also.

Who do you think we saw also with the 21st Battalion, Dick Bullied, son of Tom Bullied, Apsley. I think he is Levi Bullied wife's brother. He has been over here five months. He is a Lance-Corporal, and wants to be remembered to you. It is the first time I have seen him. He seems to be a nice fellow. He was out West for three years he said. I expected Victor up to-night, and if he don't come I am going to go to see him to-morrow night.

I hope you, Eva and Ethel and the two boys are all fine. I will tell you how Frank is as soon as I see him, that I expect this week-end.

Don't worry about Victor, for he is all right. You would think so, if you saw Joe, Victor and I together the other night, and when we were crossing a road one would go ahead to see how deep the mud was, and if it wasn't over our head, the rest of us would follow. We had some time. It was certainly nice to get together, I tell you. Joe is certainly fine. He is in the trenches. Expect they will be out on Thursday night, and we will see him again. You should of seen us into the pie, that Lena sent me in the box, and it was as good as when it was sent.

I will have to close, mother, hoping you don't worry about us, for, we are fine and in the best of health.

I haven't had a letter from Tom and Eve since I came over.

Haven't heard from father for two weeks. He was fine then.

ARLEUX IS CAPTURED BY CANADIAN TROOPS

PTE. DAVID STARKE, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Starke, Norwood, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion and has been in France since November.

Drive Picked German Troops From Carefully Prepared Positions and Hold Ground Gained in Spite of Huns' Heavy Counter Attacks.

MANY PRISONERS TAKEN

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS, April 29.—Once again the Canadians have driven German picked troops from carefully prepared positions which they were confident of holding, and are now in possession of Arleux.

The bite taken out by the Canadians Saturday morning was about 2,500 yards in length, with the penetration of the enemy's line at the deepest point of 1,800 yards. A feature of the action was a procession of our stretcher cases across the open plain, borne by German prisoners. They came across the fire-swept zone carrying either our wounded, who, even when badly hit, enjoyed the triumph of being thus served by the enemy, or their own seriously wounded. The number of prisoners who have already passed through as wounded is about 200, while over one hundred wounded enemies are being cared for by our surgeons. These figures are liable to be increased.

Attacked at Dawn.

In the grey dawn of Saturday morning, after an artillery bombardment of great intensity, the troops advanced under the protection of a barrage which swept the ground through which they had to pass with a hail of steel, and attacked the village of Arleux.

Going forward in steady waves, each, like an incoming tide, encroaching on the defences of the Germans further than that preceding, our men passed through the remains of what a few days ago were exceedingly strong wire entanglements erected or strengthened since the Battle of Vimy by the continual labour of thousands of the enemy.

New Trenches Dug.

Many new trenches were dug and the wire along the front was increased to an average width of 80 feet. Guns, especially heavies, were brought up to make good the losses through capture. A reserve division of the Prussian Guard was introduced to take the place of the destroyed Bavarians.

These preparations went on while our men were busy making a way for their guns over the pathless ridge. Captured German guns turned against their former owners were at this stage an effective means of offence. After our own guns were in their positions, a systematic bombardment was resumed. The enemy's works were crumbled. Shelter was no longer possible in the villages, for houses were destroyed. Even cellars were not proof against the huge shells. The result was that anything like industry was crushed as soon as it was visible.

The first attempt to penetrate the German wire on the northern end of our front was not successful because of the network of houses at Avion as

NEW BY-LAW DOES NOT ALLOW DOGS AT LARGE TO BE ON LEASH

Expressly States That All Must Be Locked Up During the Quarantine Period—What About Dogs Outside the City

SHOULD GET THEM ALL

Dog owners who fancy that the emergency restrictions on dogs permits their presence on the streets in charge of some person and secured by a leash are likely to discover that their interpretation of the measure has been more than free. The intention, it is understood, is to keep the dogs locked up, and that is the emphatic term, for a period of at least ninety days. Dr. Amys states that Dr. McCullough of Toronto recommends six months. A dog quarantine in Genesee County, New York, State has just closed after 100 days' duration.

The public expects that the new by-law will be put into operation just as soon as possible. The matter is of too serious a nature to permit inaction. A few dogs are seen on the streets these days and, apparently these are wanderers that subsist on their foragings. They should be the first victims of the official "catcher," and if not claimed from the pound, that is to be built, will be despatched.

A weak point in the city's preventive measure is the fact that it applies only to dogs within this municipality. In Byersville and in the Exhibition Park districts, where the animals are quite numerous, there are no restrictions. It is believed, however, that if the Township Council was asked to co-operate with the city in the present precautions they would respond at once. In fact the city dog catcher might be able to cover all the territory adjacent to the city if the municipalities joined forces in this work.

286 TAGS ISSUED.

But Many Dogs Have Yet to be Provided With Licenses.

This morning Police Sergt. Reid issued the 286th dog tag, and the number should be considerably increased during the day. Beginning May 1st, the delinquents are liable to an appearance in police court for the failure to secure the necessary tags. Last year over 600 tags were issued, and unless many dogs have gone the hangman way, there will be quite a number of them unprovided to-morrow.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

MONDAY, APRIL 30, 1917

A GOOD BIT OF GOOD WORK

The despatches told us yesterday and to-day that the Canadians on the battle front were, and are, at it again. We know what that means; that the Canadians are winning, and to win there must be sacrifice made—lives lost and wounds received. This means that wounds must be attended to. A battle means increased work for the Red Cross. It seems a grand coincidence that while Peterborough was holding its very creditable motor show in the interest of the Red Cross, our gallant Canadians were preparing to make call upon its work. The motor show, it is pleasant to note, realized about $1,500 for Red Cross work—a very substantial addition to the local funds. It may not seem much in view of the great and growing needs which our Canadian boys, by their pluck, are creating; but if every 20,000 of our total population had done as much the last three days of last week, as was done in Peterborough, more than half a million would have been added to the Red Cross fund. The promoters of the Auto Show, and those who co-operated with them, deserve unstinted credit for its splendid success, both as an exposition and as a substantial promotion of the interests of Red Cross work.

AS TO DOGS AND RABIES.

If, as there is reason to believe, the city is menaced with the danger of hydrophobia infection through dogs; if, as there is reason to believe, the danger is real; if, as there is reason to believe, the unfortunate lad Saxby died from rabies communicated by the bite of a dog; if, as is easily possible, the offending dog had opportunity to bite other dogs; in a word, if the authorities think, by their action in passing a stringent by-law, the city needs the protection the by-law is intended to provide, then the by-law should be rigidly enforced—enforced without fear or favour. If, as we must conclude from the action of the City Council, the danger is real, there should be no hesitation, no respect of persons, no regard for the value of a dog; there must be nothing of relaxation or delay to save some of our citizens from the possibility of infection with canine rabies, and death from a most dreadful, and to be dreaded; disease, hydrophobia.

These suggestions, which commend themselves to all considerations of prudence and reason, are not made in an alarmist spirit; but in view of the fact that there is real danger, judging from the action of the Council and Health authorities; local and government. There may be no real danger. That is a bare possibility; but the fact that there is more than a bare possibility that there is danger, warrants not only the adoption, but demands the rigid enforcement, of the by-law. There is need for vigilance. Those are some dog owners who allow them to think that their dogs, and their children, can do no wrong, and who do not sympathise with the precautionary measures decided upon. These persons let their dogs run at large in spite of all that has happened, and is possible of happening. Yesterday there were many dogs running at large; not nearly so many as usual, but enough to do harm, if there is a possibility of some of these dogs being infected, and liable to develop rabies at any moment, say when children are going to school. Some of the dogs seen abroad yesterday were of the half-starved, tagless, mongrel kind, that make their rounds in search of stray food visiting one back yard after another.

If there is even possibility of danger from dogs running at large, the new dog by-law should be enforced to the letter and not put to keep the company with the hundreds of neglected and forgotten by-laws gathering dust at the City Hall.

COST OF FOOD RISING.

Potatoes quoted at $6 a bag, and sucking pigs at $18 a pair, on the market, Saturday, brings the high cost of living to a new high level, and has a corresponding bull movement to bear on our purses. We don't seem to get a satisfactory explanation of the causes of these high prices for food. It may be that combines to hold stores of food and combinations to maintain or mount prices—as claimed by some—is the cause.

If this be so, the cause is likely to remain in operation. The Minister of Labour, or Minister of Leisure, as circumstances suggest as the more proper title, seems to think the situation no concern of his. True, and doubtless at this suggestion, an Order-in-Council was passed professing to deal with the condition, or crime, of raising food prices. This order, however, instead of helping the situation, complicates it. The City Solicitor of Montreal, a K.C. lawyer, who doubtless knows his law, claims that the Order-in-Council annuls section 498 of the Criminal Code, which gave the ordinary consumer the privilege of taking action against dealers guilty or suspected of raising prices. The Order-in-Council, he says, nullifies the section mentioned and complicates the situation to such a point that only the Minister of Labour can take action to discipline combine dealers. But the Minister of Labour does not consider it his duty to take action, and thinks that his duties under the Order-in-Council is simply to let private parties take the necessary action to protect the general public. So that the public is shut out from such relief as prosecution of combines, as others would bring. The Minister won't act; others interested can't act, because the Order-in-Council of the Government has nullified the section of the Criminal Code under which private persons were given the power to take action. So that the consumer is between the devil and the deep sea, and has to grin and bear it.

This Order-in-Council aimed, no doubt, to help the law and protect the consumer, has in the five months since it was passed, done nothing to relieve the consumer; instead, in the interval, the prices of provisions have mounted steadily and are still rising. Yet in spite of all this, not a single prosecution has been made under it in five months since the Order was made.

Meanwhile, the prices of all food products are mounting, and the people get no relief from the government, which has the power, if it had the will, to deal with the situation, and bring relief to the public suffering under almost intolerable conditions of high food cost.

THE NEED OF HOUSES FOR RENTAL.

Has the Greater Peterborough Association, in taking count of the needs of the city, considered the matter of residence accommodation? One element in making this a greater city is increase of population, which, in addition to the enlargement of citizenship, brings with it a greater commercial activity in the distribution of income and wages, due to increased population. We are anxious to increase our manufacturing industries. New industries and the expansion of existing ones mean increase of population. To accommodate greater population we must have enlarged housing facilities.

It is a noticeable and embarassing fact that there is a great scarcity of houses for rental in Peterborough at the present time. Recently local industries have added to the pay roll—men with families; and they have been compelled to store their household goods and take lodgings, or go boarding—it being almost impossible to secure vacant houses of a kind suitable for the newcomers. This condition is a very undesirable and detrimental one. We want to keep the good industries and wage-earning people who come to us, and make them good and profitable and permanent citizens. Desirability as a place of residence is one potent factor in attracting population. No place will be so regarded by new or intending comers if they cannot reside—if they are no houses for them.

To overcome this condition is a problem. There is a large area of good vacant building lots in the chief factory district, convenient in location and otherwise desirable. But builders, it is said, argue the unprofitableness of putting up houses at the present, on account of the increased cost of all sorts of building material; and the scarcity of labour. Of course there is force in this, but is at an objection that will make building of dwelling houses unprofitable? The law of supply and demand enters in this case, as in everything, and tenants will expect to pay fair and profitable rents. People are used to paying high prices for almost everything, and paying rent is something that must be done if people are to have homes.

There also seems to be a feeling that after the war is over, prices will take a drop. Of course that is a matter of opinion, and a good deal of thoughtful opinion thinks that high prices of living commodities, high wages, and building materials will not change much for the less for some time to come.

Anyway we need, and must have, more houses. If they cost more, users of them must expect to pay rentals in proportion. A grocer does not refuse to lay in food stocks because prices are high. He knows that people must eat, as they must sleep; and there must be places to both eat and sleep in. If the proper section of the Greater Peterborough Association, or the building fraternity would get into touch with the management of our large factories, and get first-hand information as to prospects of the incoming or outgoing of employees, they would have reliable information that would be a guide in estimating the profitableness of sufficient construction of new dwellings. Of course building materials have advanced, but so have wages, and so has demand for labour, and more than all this, the demand for houses has increased. It is a demand that effort should be made to meet, in the interests of our industrie, whose prosperity involves the general prosperity, and has a very direct relation to the progress of the city, the whole situation involving the success of the idea and aim of a Greater Peterborough.

"THE RED, RED ROAD TO HOOGE"

Pte. S. Curtis, a Peterborough boy overseas with the Canadian Mounted Rifles, sends the following verses to his wife:

"You're on parade, go get your spade;
Fall in, the pick and shovel brigade.
There's a carrying fatigue for half a league,
And work to be done with the spade.

Through the dust and ruins of Ypres town
Comes the 8th Brigade battering down
Delivering death with a fiery breath
On the red, red road to Hooge.

There are some whose time has come
Who won't return when the work is done,
Who will leave their bones on the blood-stained stones,
On the red, red road to Hooge.

Onward the Canadians, never to stop,
To the sand-bag trenches and over the top;
Over the top of a bullet you stop,
On the red, red road to Hooge.

There's the burst and the road of the hand grenade,
Welcoming the Huns to death's parade;
There's a bit of gloom in the valley of doom;
In the crater down at Hooge.

Full many a soldier from the Rhine
Must sleep to-night on a bed of slime;
It's a pitiless grave for brave and knave,
In the crater down at Hooge.

Hark to the "stand to" fusilade;
Sling your rifles, go get your spade,
And spade away till the break of day.
On a hole you will fill at Hooge.

Call the role and another name
Is sent to swell the roll of fame;
So we carried a cross to mark the loss
Of a chum who fell at Hooge.

Not a deed for a paper man to write,
No glorious charge in the dawning light.
The Daily Mail won't tell the tale
Of the night work done at Hooge.

But our General knows and his praise we've won;
He is proud of the work the Canadians have done,
'Mid shot and shell, at the mouth of hell,
On the red, red road to Hooge.

RESPONSIBILITY OF THE KAISER IN SHAPING TERMS OF PEACE

Mr. Gerard's statement that there will be no revolution in Germany, whatever riots there may be, is based on a better understanding of the German nature than the average. For some time past there has been correspondence in the British papers proposing that the Allies should attempt to foster a revolution by announcing to the Germans that they will make no terms with the Hohenzollern. Undoubtedly it would be a good thing if the Hohenzollerns and all the other kinglets and princelets of the German Empire were to be made to follow the Romanoffs, but doubt has been expressed as to whether the intervention of the Entente Powers would not be more likely to retard than to accelerate that most desirable consummation.

Sir Roland Knyvet Wilson, writing in the London Chronicle, holds that as in the long run the decision as to their form of government must rest with the Germans themselves, they would only be prejudiced as to any form forced on them as the price of peace. He holds, therefore, that it would be better to leave this to the Germans themselves, remarking that if the Kaiser, this year or next year, finds himself compelled to conclude a peace on such terms as utterly to falsify the hopes held out at the commencement of the war, it is extremely likely that his disillusioned people will of their own accord turn and rend him. "That," he says, "is what might well have happened to the First Napoleon, had he been left on the throne with a country forced back on its old frontiers, and nothing but misery and disgrace to show for the waste of millions of lives; instead of which the course actually adopted made him a national idol and a name to conjure with for the next half century."

This, of course, is true, but it leaves out of count what Napoleon might have done if permitted his freedom and allowed to remain on the throne. The fact remains that the course adopted in regard to Napoleon achieved the ends it was intended to achieve, and never left those ends for a moment in doubt. When events so shape themselves as to bring peace within sight will be the time to talk about what shall be the attitude of the Entente Allies towards the criminal, blood-stained, and treacherous Hohenzollerns. We can never forget that the guilt for this war, and for many of the most horrible crimes which have been associated with it, rests above all on the Kaiser, with his blasphemous claims of being "the instrument of the Almighty."

Only recently the truth has leaked out that it was the Kaiser himself who ordered the murder of Edith Cavell. This is made plain in the Berlin Tageblatt, which in speaking of the death of Governor-General von Bissing, said that the latter disapproved both of the order for the execution of Edith Cavell and of the deportation of the Belgians. Both these measures, says the Tageblatt, were ordered "from the Kaiser's headquarters." Who would have the temerity to send out such orders "from the Kaiser's headquarters," if it were not the Kaiser himself? In a country like Germany the Tageblatt would not have dared associate the Kaiser's name with this crime, unless it was true that the Kaiser did order it, and was rather proud of his work. As the New York Times says, "one of the shocking things about the Cavell execution was the manner of it, the haughty, autocratic refusal to hear a word, to give a moment's time, the contemptuous treatment of the efforts of neutral diplomats for delay. Whoever caused the death that brave woman was some one who considered himself superior to all others, even to other nations as represented by their envoys. The bruequeness and haughtiness of the manner was that of some one accustomed to think, 'I have said it; it is final; I am above all question.' Whom does the cap fit, von Bissing or the Kaiser? However, the question is not one of guesswork. The words 'from the Kaiser's headquarters' must be regarded as direct and identifying."

When we come to deal with him at the final accounting we shall not be able to forget that the Kaiser is the man responsible for the most colossal burden of tragedy and sorrow under which the human race has ever staggered. And it seems hardly believeable that the Allies will leave it to the German people to say whether or not the Kaiser shall continue to remain in a position in which he can be of so much danger to mankind.

Receipts From The Motor Show

Gross Receipts Amounted to About $2,000

Well over one thousand dollars will be added to the funds of the Red Cross Society as a result of the three-day Motor Show that was held in the city last week. The gross receipts were in the neighbourhood of two thousand dollars and when everything is paid it is expected there will be about fifteen hundred dollars left for the Society.

Among the exhibits that attracted quite a lot of interest was that shown by the Roy Studio. It consisted of a number of scenes pertaining to automobiles. Each picture was shown in its original as well as an enlarged size.

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

I will close, lots of love and kisses to all. From your loving son and brother,

PERCY,
46th Battalion,
France.

Mrs. Isadore Darrah has received the following letter from her son, Pte. D. H. Darrah, who went overseas with the 8th C.M.R. and is now with the 8th Canadian Machine Gun Company:

My Dear Mother—As this is Sunday and I've finished my work in the mess, I thought I would write you once again to let you know I am still alive hoping these few lines will find you all in the same condition.

Well, mother, this is the 25th day of March, the day of our Lord's annunciation, and it is certainly a lovely day. The sun is hidden behind the clouds, but it is warm and a lovely afternoon for walking, but where we are there is nothing to walk for, nothing to see and no parks or anything to walk through. The guns are very quiet on the front that we hold, but on our right and left they are making a terrible racket; some one is getting iron rations. The aeroplanes must be having a rest, for there are very few up to-day. Everything is quiet with the exception of the noise of motor lorries and waggons which are passing along the road in great haste, but the time is drawing near when everything won't be so quiet.

I received a lovely letter from Mrs. Butcher and also a lovely parcel. She says that George writes cheerfully, but I would rather be where I am than where he is, although he is lucky, and can thank the Lord for being alive after what he went through. I asked her to send me his address so I could write him. I received a letter from Anna this p.m. and one from Francis. Very pleased indeed to hear from them and to know they are keeping well. I also received the papers you sent me, and thank you very much for the same. How is Teresa getting along? I have not heard from John or Thomas for a long time. I wrote to Arthur Peters last night, and I expect a letter from George pretty soon.

I hear that the 247th Battalion are having a hard time trying to recruit, and if that is the case they should have conscription in Canada this summer, which would mean that the slackers would have no chance of escaping. If they are so cold-footed as all that, just imagine that they have to be forced to fight, not only for their own lives and their parents', but for freedom that we have so long had, and to keep the old Union Jack flying; and if they won't enlist and don't have conscription, "why we can do without them," and when the fighting men go back why you will see them with the women and children cheering, but what for? Why should they cheer? What have they done to make so much noise over? Have they done their bit? No. But if you ask them they will say, well I was in the militia, but that don't count in war time. I am not referring to those who are medically unfit or those who have been discharged, but to those who are fit for the army and won't enlist.

Well, my dear mother, I must close as it is time for dinner. Kindly remember me to father and to all the rest, and with kind regards and best wishes for the future, I remain,

Your loving son,
DAVE.

MINISTER KILLED.

The Norwood Register says:

GUNNER JOS. N. TEABEAU, who has returned from the front after being seriously wounded. He suffered amputation of his left arm.

An official message from the Militia Department brought to Mrs. (Rev.) Douglas Dickson the sad news that her husband, Corp. Douglas Dickson, had died of wounds at No. 6 Casualty Clearing Station on April 14th. The late Corporal Dickson, prior to his enlistment, was stationed at Coe Hill, in charge of the Methodist Church there. He resigned his pastorate in the fall of 1915, entered the ranks as a private, and trained at Belleville. His wife is a daughter of Mr. Jas. H. Buck, Hastings Road, and has one child.

The Norwood Register says:

Our 93rd boys have been doing things without being hit. Roy Killingeck has won a M. C. and Arthur Searight has recently been promoted on the battlefield. The new men have larger traditions to live up to but we all believe that they will prove good.

Capt. W. Rose Cameron, formerly of Norwood, reports with dangerous gun-shot wounds and a compound fracture received in the Vimy Ridge fighting is in number seven hospital, Boulogne. Capt. Cameron had only been in the trenches five weeks when he was wounded. He reverted to the rank of Lieutenant in order to go overseas. At Crowborough Military College he was again promoted to Captain.

Is voluntary military service on its last trial in Canada?

All the people who love their country for its free institutions should look at this question and face it squarely. They should remember that a volunteer has always been considered worth several conscripts and take the lesson therefrom.

The British Empire is at the present time engaged in the greatest of wars, the fight is, broadly, democracy against autocracy, Canada as part of the Empire is in the war, and the deeds of her sons have shed much lustre on her name.

But are we all satisfied with the part we ourselves have been playing in the great game? The time is here when every man should put that question to himself and decide to a decision. If each fully appreciates the needs of the times he will come to but one conclusion.

The Canadian divisions at the front need to be kept up to strength. If possible new divisions should be sent from this country to the firing line. But this cannot be done unless the manhood of the Dominion responds more freely to the appeals which are being made for recruits.

It is understood, however, that everyone cannot go overseas. Business or family reasons make this impossible in some cases. But if a man cannot go overseas there is perhaps no reason why he should not take the place of someone who can.

The last 50,000 men in overseas units in this country have left or are leaving for England. Men are needed to take up the burden of the defence of Canada which these men have performed during their training here. Every country must have a force ready trained to handle thoroughly any emergency which may arise, and these may come at any moment in time of war.

The Government, recognizing this, and wishing to be prepared for any contingency, has issued a call for 50,000 men to be known as the Canadian Defence Force. The men in this force will be drilled two nights and one afternoon a week until such time as they go to summer camp. The force will be kept under arms continually from that time until the conclusion of the war and for six months afterwards.

The militia regiments throughout the country have already made a start in recruiting men for this force, and as men understand what it means they are likely to come forward. The service is particularly attractive. Terms of enlistment, pay subsistence, clothing and equipment are the same as for overseas service, and separation allowances are given in the case of married men. Further information can be secured by reference to the orderly room of any militia regiment, or to the advertisements the government is having inserted in the press.

Gunners Barrie and Turnbull, of the Cobourg Heavy Battery spent the week end in the city.

Mr. Edward Wade, London street has received word that his son Stanley who went overseas with the 39th Battalion has been admitted to hospital in London suffering from an attack of pleurisy.

The Kingston Whig says: As a result of the recent outflow of both infantry and artillery from the city there are now very few soldiers in training for overseas service in the city. Each of the units that have gone left depots here, however, and if more recruits sign up all will again be represented.

The artillery units are now practically depleted of men, but already the officers are co-operating with Major G. I. Campbell, C.R.O., in devising a scheme to bring each well up to strength. Places like Ottawa, Smith's Falls, Brockville and Peterborough will be worked to the very best possible limit, and as many men as possible signed up. The smaller places will also receive due attention.

A would-be recruit has now a wider selection of units to go to than at any time during the war, showing that practically every branch of the service cries out for more men. The infantry and artillery are of course, the most important branches. The Army Medical Corps, Forestry Service Corps, Dental Corps, Railway Construction Corps will also put forward their best efforts to round up some of the many hundreds of men who should be in khaki.

Pte. Fred H. Orde, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, who was last week reported killed in action, leaves to mourn his loss his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Orde of Otonabee, also two brothers and a sister, all residing at home. He had many friends who will be very sorry to hear of his death, but proud that he has died for the love and honour of his country.

The Vacant Lot Production Movement Appears Inactive

Mr. T. Hurley Has a Number of Lots Which He Will Give to Help Further the Greater Production Movement

There is a decided lack of activity in the vacant lot production movement so far as the Peterborough Garden Club is concerned. After numerous meetings and several weeks' hard work on the part of a few, a fairly substantial list of properties have been secured for cultivation. What is wanted now is people who will cultivate the lots and help further the greater production movement. Among the largest contributors of lots for the purpose named is Mr. T. Hurley, 292 Hunter street. Mr. Hurley has a large block of property bounded by Chamberlain street, Western avenue, Cottesmore street and Ford avenue, which he will give to anyone who will cultivate it and produce a crop. If you can't carry a gun get a hoe, is one way of expressing the situation.

Meatless Days For Canadians

Packers Ask Government to Take Drastic Action

Authorities Plan to Start Campaign to Increase Production, with View Eventually of Raising More Bacon Hogs for the British Market.

GUELPH, April 30.—The leading packers of Canada are already in touch with the Government, urging that steps be taken to cope with the serious shortage of live stock. Prof. George Day of the Live Stock Department of the Ontario Agricultural College, told your correspondent tonight that he was informed by the manager of one company that they were advocating two meatless days a week for Canada. "When the packers are doing that you may imagine what conditions are," commented Professor Day.

It was learned also that the authorities are planning a campaign with a view first to increase the production of live hogs, and, second, after sufficient numbers have been obtained to meet the present emergency, to encourage the farmers to produce bacon hogs suitable for the British market.

"While there is a general shortage of live stock," said Prof. Day, "the most serious feature perhaps is the scarcity of hogs. Owing to the shortage of feed for hogs, last season the farmers were compelled to dispose of their swine. There was a good hay crop last year, but hogs won't eat hay, and the grain crop was poor."

Lower Prices Unlikely.

Asked what the effect on prices would be, Prof. Day said these were now at high record levels, and it will be nearly a year before you will see much lowering of prices. If we have a good grain crop this year there is no doubt the farmers will stock up with hogs."

The proposed campaign for increased production of hogs will include the dissemination of accurate information regarding the swine industry and the relation of the hog to farm operations. "We do not propose to preach to the farmers merely to show them where the production of hogs that will command a premium on the British market will put money in their pockets. The hog is the most economical animal on the farm so far as the amount of food he consumes is concerned, and he provides more edible meat per hundred pounds, than any other animal raised on the farm.

Sheep are Scarce.

"Cattle are more plentiful on Ontario farms to-day than hogs, though sheep are scarce," said Prof. Day. "You can hardly buy decent mutton nowadays," he added.

Referring to horses, he thought the market was improving, especially for draught horses. "Good horses are going to be good property," said he, "but unfortunately we have in the Province a number of culls also."

THE SUNDAY SERVICES AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH WERE LARGELY ATTENDED

Formal Dedication Service Was Conducted by Rev. S. D. Chown, D.D., L.L.D., Assisted by a Number of Local Ministers—Dr. Chown Disapproves of "Theological Twilights."

THE EVENING SERVICE

The formal dedication of the new edifice erected by the people of St. James Methodist Church, took place yesterday and was attended by large congregations. At the the morning service the beautiful new church was filled to overflowing, equally so were the hearts of those who for the past year have directed their energies to the erection of a more substantial and adequate building for the propagration of the Christian faith. The floral decorations around the base of the pulpit were numerous and beautiful, while over the organ loft hung a large Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes. A well trained choir rendered appropriate music for the occasion. The dedication service was conducted by the Rev. S. D. Chown, D.D., LL.D., General Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada. Rev. Dr. Chown was assisted by the Rev. R. G. Peever, pastor of George St. Methodist Church, Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, Rev. R. A. Whattam, pastor of Mark Street Methodist Church, Rev. Benjamin Greatrix, pastor of St. James' Methodist Church, and the Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, B.A., L.L.B., President of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

The Service.

Mr. A. W. Cressman, as a member of the Trustee Board of St. James' Church, delivered the keys of the new church to the Rev. Dr. Chown, who pronounced the simple but expressive form of service dedicating the new edifice to the service of God. The members of the Trustee Board, who by their zealous devotion to the task allotted them, were able to record the realization of their endeavour, ranged themselves around the pulpit as the church was formally dedicated by Dr. Chown. The latter complimented the pastor, Rev. Benjamin Greatrix and his co-workers for the efforts they had put forth to bring such a worthy task to a successful conclusion. The text of Dr. Chown's sermon was taken from the last part of the sixty-third verse, sixth chapter of the gospel according to St. John: —"The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life."

Primal Object.

"The church we are dedicating this morning," said the speaker, "has for its primal object the propagation of the truth not based on opinion but on conviction. You can feed a man for life on the chaff of opinion but you cannot sustain his spiritual life on anything but spiritual conviction. Christ's words stand for the life as well as the spirit. Though Jesus only spoke for three years, he answered every great question that ever came up. It was no wonder that when the officers of the Pharisees went out to apprehend Chirst, they returned saying—"Never man spake like this man."

One Hundred and Fifty Years Ahead.

The speaker emphasized the necessity of living a Christian life irrespective of any church that a man might be allied with. It is not sufficient for a man to belong to one particular kind of church. A man can be a church-goer and not a Christian. "You needn't be afraid to follow John Wesley," said the speaker. "If you do," he added, "you will have to jump about one hundred and fifty years ahead because if John Wesley were alive to-day he would be about one hundred and fifty years ahead of the most of us in leading the hosts to God."

Theological Twilights.

Rev. Dr. Chown discouraged what he termed "Theological twilights" and emphasized the need for a more practical exposition of Christianity.

"The world is in the re-making," said the speaker, "and my heart would break if I thought we would not benefit by the new forces that have been brought into play. The meaning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ only half appears in the civilization of our life. How many believe in the true principles of Christianity? Not half of us. Christianity is only one half out of its shell."

In conclusion the speaker condemned the "land sharks" whose work he had witnessed in the Northwest. Dr. Chown complimented the Rev. Benjamin Greatrix upon the result of his untiring zeal and energy.

Evening Service.

The evening service was very largely attended, the congregation overflowing the entire capacity of the church. Rev. Dr. Chown preached from the text Psalm 4:1 "Thau hast enlarged me when I was in distress," in which he showed the effects of the war in enlarging the visions of nations, the church and individuals. Prior to 1914, national ideals were deteriorating. The pursuit of wealt and pleasure had become widespread, a condition that was apparent in Canada as well as in most of the countries of the world. But with the first call Britain though unprepared responded immediately to the first call of the smaller nation and has proved herself true to the highest and best of British ideals. The Dominions overseas have given themselves unsparingly to the same cause in which the people are enlarging their visions, their service, and their lives.

Rev. Dr. Chown spoke of the sacrifices of the men and women who are giving all they hold dear to the great cause. Fathers, husbands and sons have gone forth ennobling themselves, and in the separation and loss women were discovering themselves in the broader vision this sacrifice involved. In the church the war was disclosing the essentials of service, casting aside the small and petty things and minimizing denominational differences. Rev. Dr. Chown mentioned the example of the Jewish Rabbi who comforted a dying Catholic soldier by presenting a cross to him, and also the similar incident related by Ralph Connor. Thus in this present hour of distress God was enlarging and broadening the vision and the ideals of His people.

The mass meeting of children in the afternoon was largely attended, and a number of the children were received into full membership of the church. Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, spoke on the subject "Building and Builders."

The music under the direction of Mr. Harry Hill, organist and choirmaster, was deserving of a special tribute. The anthems by the choir were splendidly rendered and the offertory solos were also notable. Mr. Tom Ward sang "Like As the Heart Desireth," in the morning, and at the evening service Miss E. Worth sang "The Lord Is My Light." .. ..

Mrs. David Hartley, 144 Hunter street, has received the following letter from her son, Private C. Hartley, a former member of the 93rd Battalion, now in France with the 2nd Battalion. The letter in part reads as follows:

France, April 4th.

Dear Mother,—Received your letter all O.K. and glad to say I am well and doing my bit. Your box was a great treat; anything from home goes good. Do not send me any money, as it is not much good to us. Better send some of your home-made baking. I suppose you see in the papers the retreat of old Fritz on the Somme front. I would like to get the Weekly Examiner, as we boys at the front enjoy reading it. I am sorry to tell you one of my old chums, Harold Coons, is dead. He is one of the 93rd, but he did his bit before he went and I hope I shall have it to say I did mine. God forbid I should be a slacker or see my home-land before I do my share to save old Canada. Now good-bye, dear mother. Don't fret, I am all O. K. From your loving son,

S. C. HARTLEY.

His wife predeceased him about four years ago, while on a visit here with his two sons, Mr. Thomas Anthony, fruit dealer in East City, and Mr. Louis Anthony, expressman, 322 Water street.

The late Mr. Anthony frequently acted as interpreter in the local courts. He was widely known and will be recalled by the older citizens.

Mr. Thomas Anthony is closing his fruit store to-day.

North Monaghan Council In Regular Session

The North Monaghan Council met at the Court House, April 26th, with all the members present and Reeve Rye in the chair.

After the reading of the minutes, communications were read from Mrs. Knowles and Mrs. Smith re errors in back taxes of 1914. On motion of Councillors Bell and Williams Mrs. Knowles was voted a refund of $5.51 on the 1914 taxes paid twice.

Messrs. J. Quinn de Laplante and Alex. Gordon were present to ask for the opening of the East end of Braidwood avenue to the full width of the street. At the present time the road allowances between the fences is only 38 feet wide. They asked that the township engage the services of an engineer to determine where the proper street line is and have the thoroughfare opened to the proper width.

On motion of Councillors Bell and Henry it was decided to have the township engineer establish the east end proper street line between the Brinton Carpet Co. and the property of Mr. Alex Gordon.

A communication was received from J. H. Burnham, M.P., with regard to the high water in the river and asking the Council to appoint a representative to meet the superintendent of the Trent Canal with a view of investigating the height of the water here and at Hastings.

Councillors Bell and Dobbin moved that Clerk Johnston be instructed to write Mr. Burnham and state that owing to the dearth of labour and the demand for greater production the farmers will not have time at present to take the matter up, but will be pleased to do so at some time in the near future.

Assessor Bert Sanderson sent in a communication re the assessment of Lot 94, Plan 56, and on motion of Councillors Dobbin and Williams this lot was changed to Lot 94, Plan 8, and the assessor was instructed to so notify the present owner.

Other communications received and fyled were one from the Ontario Department of Public Highways re the appointment of a road superintendent, and another from the National Sanitarium Association asking for a grant.

The Council, on motion of Councillors Dobbin and Bell, adjourned to meet at the Court House on Saturday, May 5th, at 2 p.m.

PEASANTS SEIZE LANDS IN RUSSIA

LONDON, April 28. — Dispatches from Petrograd report that the revolutionary spirit is manifesting itself in the rural districts of Russia, bringing the long-standing agrarian troubles to a head. Notwithstanding the organization of food committees, which are doing their best to make the peasants understand that the land question cannot be wisely settled until the Constituent Assembly is elected, the peasants are inclined to take the matter into their own hands.

Soldiers visiting their rural homes, with or without leave, spread the news of the revolution and lead the peasants against the landowners. This is chiefly the case in the Saratov Government, where the people are often inclined to be turbulent. The peasants here, after passing resolutions of confiscation, have proceeded to take possession of the lands and drive the landowners away.

The peasants announced that they would undertake the Spring sowing themselves, but owing to lack of seed this is said to be impossible. In consequence the sowing is likely to be much delayed and a serious shortage of crops is feared. The authorities are taking the matter in hand and hope to prevent such a misfortune.

Peasants' conferences, to which delegates are sent from even the smallest communes, are being organized in every province of Russia to discuss peasant needs. Those already held have insisted on a proper distribution of land. One characteristic resolution demands that all land which private landowners cannot sow must immediately be surrendered temporarily to the peasants, soldiers' wives to receive shares free, and others at moderate rent, to be fixed by the local community.

Considerable ill-feeling is shown in some districts toward landowners. Bessarabian peasants in one instance sacked a hountry house and estates belonging to a rich family. The peasants of the Tamboy Government surrounded the houses of the landowners and compelled them to sign documents surrendering their lands. In many districts the peasants have taken no action, waiting for the authorities to act. In some parts of Bessarabia the country people are highly reactionary and in one district especially the Odessa military authorities have taken strong measures to suppress a counter-revolutionary movement. The Grand Committee of the Alliance of Peasants has addressed the following petition to the peasants at the front:

"Do your duty. Do not fear that the lands will be divided without you. This division cannot be made by isolated villages, for that would provoke internal quarrels by which the enemy might profit. Only the Constituent Assembly, wherein you will be represented, will decide this important question."

At a conference held at the offices of the Minister of Commerce to discuss the question of a Government coal monopoly, it was proposed to place all mineral combustibles at the disposal of the Government and regularize their distribution. No objection was made by coal representatives at the conference, and it is believed that the scheme will be put into effect about the middle of May.

Food before munitions is the policy in Britain just now. There are many skilled ploughmen engaged in munition making, and it is intended to release these for agricultural work. Our great shortage of munitions, which handicapped the British armies heretofore, is now remedied, and the Government has now an opportunity to place each man where his training will produce the best results, and just now the food problem is the most acute.

CHAMPAGNE A WAR DRINK

Exemption of Makers of It Causes Caustic Comment in Germany.

Classification of the champagne industry as a "war occupation" and the exemption of the persons engaged in the production of that beverage from the provisions of the new auxiliary service law in Germany have aroused considerable caustic comment in German papers recently received in London.

This fact was brought out at a meeting held the last week in March at Cologne, at which the War Bureau officials conferred with the local authorities and representatives of industry regarding the problem of recruiting for the "home army." Some of the Cologne employers expressed their indignation at hearing that Deinhart & Co., of Coblenz, makers of German champagne, had been put on the list of concerns "important for the war," and that their staff had been exempted from national service. The Colonel representing the War Bureau upheld the decision on the ground that the production of champagne was "beyond doubt important for the feeding of the people and the provision of the army."

Under the new service law all male persons between 17 and 60 years of age are required to register, with the exception of men engaged in a very small number of specified employments. The question now is what policy the authorities will actually adopt concerning exemptions. According to their statements at the Cologne conference, one of the chief reasons why they demand universal registration is that they may give the necessary exemptions without unnecessary overloading of the card register.

Various Burgomasters and other representatives insisted that it would be better to extend at once the list of exempted occupants. They pressed for example, the cases of bakers, butchers and other persons concerned with the food supply, cobblers and smiths. The War Bureau representatives promised that they would give every consideration to local demands.

Any man who lets his wife get up on a cold morning and light the kitchen fire will never set the world ablaze.

LOSSES OF THE CANADIANS WILL BE HEAVY

Arleux Was Only Captured After a Very Hard Fight

Special to the Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., April 30.—Nothing has yet been received at the Militia Department indicating the extent of the Canadian losses in connection with the brilliant capture of Arleux by forces on Saturday. The expectation is, however, that the losses will be fairly heavy. The place was taken only after hard fighting, and it is expected that heavy counter attacks have been made by the Kaiser's forces.

NEW ZEALAND'S RECORD.

LONDON—Some interesting figures have just been published showing the extent of New Zealand's contribution in men and money to the war. Including the personnel of all forces enrolled, her contribution in men has been 80,598, equal to one in thirteen of the total population. Of these, 62,716 have come over to Europe. The Maories, now utilized as a pioneer unit, number 1,978. New Zealand has also sent over 10,000 horses to the front.

The following are other New Zealand war figures to date:

War expenditure, £28,000,000; patriotic funds, £2,500,000; Government subsidy for Belgian relief, £219,000; war pension payments, £198,800; liability on all pensions to date, £842,000

Retail food prices in New Zealand have increased 20 per cent. compared with July, 1914. The increase in Australia is about the same.

Three Killed By Explosion

Special to The Examiner:

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—Three men were killed and six others injured when a sixteen inch main air pipe in the Port Richmond plant of Wm. Cramp and Sons, ship and engine builders, exploded to-day.

New Potatoes From Cuba at $1.75 a Pk.

New Cuban potatoes are offered to consumers to-day, at least to those who are prepared to pay a fancy price for them. They are of the new crop, and have come all the way from the tropics, two of the factors that account for the price of 50c. for a "small measure." Mr. G. A. O'Brien, Charlotte street, is displaying these rarities. The small measure he mentioned was one-quarter of a peck. If you buy a peckfull you receive the advantage of a slight reduction, paying only $1.75. At that rate it is easy to determine the cost of a bag. These potatoes are sold for the most part in small measures. It is not unlikely that these potatoes are the crop from the Canadian stocks that left Canada in quantities of thousands of bags last winter and at a comparatively low rate, compared with fancy price of $1.75 a peck.

Alimony For Mrs. Mulock

Special to The Examiner:

OSGOODE HALL, Toronto, April 30.—Mr. Justice Middleton, to-day decided that Mrs. Cawthra Mulock, daughter of Chief Justice Falconbridge, was entitled to alimony from her husband, the millionaire son of Chief Justice Mulock. The amount was not settled. Mrs. Mulock asked for three thousand per month.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Mission Circle of Trinity Church will be held in the Sunday School Room, Tuesday evening, May 1st, commencing at 8 o'clock. Important business and election of officers. Every member should be present.

YOUTHFUL.

(Southern Lumberman.)

Not all the young cities are in America. New York was nearly a hundred years old when St. Petersburg—or Petrograd, as it is called now—was founded by Peter the Great, after he had fought his way to the Baltic Sea and won a seaboard for Russia.

Murray St. Choir Was Entertained

Singers Were the Guests of the Officers of the Church on Friday Night

The officers of the Murray Street Church and their wives entertained the choir Friday night at the close of the weekly rehearsal to a dainty luncheon in the Sunday school room. Mr. Joseph Wearing, chairman of the choir committee, presided over the gathering and interspersed the speeches with several clever anecdotes and worthy stories. Rev. J. R. Webb spoke in terms of highest appreciation of the work of the choir and took everyone completely by surprise by displaying a remarkable knowledge of musical terms which was most learned and highly informative.

Brief sympathetic speeches were made by Mr. Chas. Parsons, Dr. Scott, Mr. Carl Brown, Chief Thompson, Miss Sanderson, Mr. Moule and Mr. Harding. Mr. Asa Hnycke, choirmaster, on behalf of his assistants, thanked those responsible for the luncheon and for the kind and appreciative words spoken of the choir's work. There were about fifty at the table.

The Murray Street Baptist Church choir is one of the largest and most efficient in the city. They will give a concert in the near future, and at this entertainment the songs our mothers sang will be a feature.

Sudden Death Of John Godfrey

John Godfrey died suddenly on Sunday morning at his home, 344 Aylmer street. Mr. Godfrey was down town on Saturday night and retired apparently in his usual good health. On Sunday morning he rose at six o'clock and on coming downstairs complained of a severe pain about his heart. His landlady persuaded him to return to his bed and medical aid was summoned, but all efforts to save him proved in vain and he died at 7.30.

Deceased was born in Canada seventy-four years ago and has resided in and about Peterborough for about fifteen years. He was a faithful member of the Methodist church.

His wife and six children, David and Lemuel of this city, Mrs. W. J. Clancy, Plainfield, N.J., Mrs. Donald Frood, South Porcupine, Mrs. Elliott Robinson, Lindsay, and Mrs. Morris Hynes of this city, mourn his loss. Two brothers and three sisters, namely, Charles, Young's Point, George of this city, Mrs. David Curtain and Mrs. John Allan of Peterborough, and Mrs. Jewell, Midland, also survive.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday morning from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Morris Hynes, 307 Bethune street, to Rae's cemetery, Lakefield.

Eloped With Man's Wife And Money

Pte. Chapman, who is believed to have eloped with the wife of David Collier, an employee of the Oshawa Canning Factory, and $250, which Collier had given his wife to put in the bank, has had some matrimonial experience. It is said that the woman who is supposed to be his wife and has been drawing a separation allowance as such, is the wife of another man. However, she believed her first husband died when she married Chapman, and after several letters had been written to the Department, explaining the case, she was allowed to retain her standing as Chapman's wife and receive her separation allowance. While Chapman and the woman in question have been gone over a week, it is not known positively that they eloped. Each went away from Oshawa at different times, though it is suspected they met in Toronto. The 182nd Bn., authorities are making an effort to locate Chapman, as he is a deserter and if successful the whole matter may yet be cleared up.—Oshawa Reformer.

MR. SLICE O' BREAD

I am a slice of Bread.

I measure three inches by two and a half, and my thickness is half an inch.

My weight is exactly an ounce.

I am wasted once a day by 48,000,000 people of Britain.

I am "the bit left over"; the slice eaten absent-mindedly when really I wasn't needed; I am the waste crust.

If you collected me and my companions for a whole week you would find that we amounted to 9,380 tons of good bread—WASTED!

Two ship loads of good bread!

Almost as much—striking an average—as twenty German submarines could sink—even if they had good luck.

When you throw me away or waste me you are adding twenty submarines to the German Navy. Weekly Dispatch.

SIR SAM HUGHES AT ST. ANDREW'S

LINDSAY, April 28.—Only a fair sized audience heard Major-General Sir Sam Hughes at St. Andrew's Church Friday evening. The lecture was under the auspices of the Bona Fide Class of the Sunday School. Mr. Kieth Swayze, President, occupied the chair most acceptably during the evening. Major-General Hughes' address was in the nature of a description of the organization of the Canadian forces for overseas as well as a reference to the glorious record they have achieved in the sanguinary fighting on the western front.

During the evening Miss Helen McLaren, an accomplished soprano from Peterborough, and who was heard with delight on a former occasion, rendered a solo in splendid voice. Corp. Hopkins was the efficient accompanist.

During the evening the Wilgar Cup, donated by Mr. W. D. Wilgar, emblematic of the Church Hockey League, championship, was presented to the Baptist Church hockey team.

Arleux Is Captured By Canadian Troops

well as the heaps of shale around the pit mouths which sheltered nests of machine guns, the fire from which made an advance too costly.

The first breach in the wire was made at Gavrelle early in the week.

The capture of Gavrelle was followed by frantic counter-attacks lasting over two days and two nights. The only result was the thousands of German dead who cumber the ground.

Now in co-operation with the victors of Gavrelle the Canadians have taken Arleux, the spearhead pointing to Vimy, and have broken the defensive line erected there by the Germans, thus performing an important part in disrupting the enemy's plans to prevent the invasion of the plain of Cambrai.

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, April 30.—When dawn broke over the battlefield Sunday it found the Canadians holding tenaciously to Arleux-en-Gohelle, which they had captured Saturday in a thrilling battle. Their night had not been a restful one, for the Germans threw a heavy counter-attack against them, which required hard work to put down with their rifle and machine-gun fire—a task which, however, they successfully accomplished, and during which heavy casualties were inflicted upon the Germans.

Music & Drama

THE MAKING OVER OF MRS. MATT.

That charming comedienne, Miss May Robson who has appeared in Peterborough in a number of delightful roles has never appeared to better advantage here than in "The Making Over of Mrs. Matt," a comedy by James Forbes in which she and her clever company scored a triumph at the Grand on Saturday. As Mrs. Matt Lamson, the warm-hearted Western woman, whose ambitious husband is trying to make her a shining light in society, Miss Robson had the kind of a part that she has done her best work in, and she holds the audience from start to finish, sometimes hysterical with laughter and the next moment almost ready to weep. Miss Robson's art is of the highest order and her work on Saturday increased her hold on the affections of her local admirers. She was supported by a cast of uniform excellence. James I. Mitchell was delightful and Junior Lamson. Miss Elisabeth Warren brought charm and grace to the role of the private secretary. Burr Caruth gave a splendid delineation of the part of Matthew Lamson and Marie Pate scored with a clever bit as the waitress in a country inn.

ANAEMIC PEOPLE

Need More Iron in the Blood

If you are anaemic, you need more iron in your blood, and the tell-tale symptoms are a pale face,—colorless lips, sallow finger nails, poor circulation and short breath, and more serious diseases are easily contracted when in this condition.

M. L. Trotter of Toronto, Ont., says: "For nearly three years I suffered from anaemia, and doctored most of that time, but did not gain as I would like to. I had no ambition for anything and was afraid to go out alone as I had such dizzy spells and would almost fall on the street. My mother wanted me to try Vinol and three bottles built me up so I felt like a new creature, and I am gladly recommending Vinol to others because of the good it has done me."

The bad effects of poor, devitalized blood cannot be overestimated, and it is the beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates contained in Vinol that enriches the blood, improves the circulation and in this natural manner builds up health and strength. Try it on our guarantee. McDermid and Jury, Druggists; R. L. Payne, Druggist, Peterborough also at the best druggist in all Ontario towns.

TRENTON, N. J., April 30.—Assassination plots against President Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt, W. H. Taft and Senator "Tom" Taggart, or Indiana are believed to have been revealed to-day through the death of Charles G. A loaded revolver was discovered in Mueller's hip pocket and two double barrelled guns in cases were found in his trunk. The assassination memoranda was written in pencil in his note book. It had no details of how the murders were to be committed or who was to make the attacks.

A violin and song recital was recently given in New York, the programme of about twenty numbers, consisting entirely of Mr. Stoeving's compositions. These included seven or eight solo violin pieces and one concerted piece for four violins—Capriccio in moto perpetuo, and five songs, in some of which both the music and the words were by the composer himself. Mr. Stoeving himself played one violin group and the others were performed by distinguished artists.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements must as a condition of insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—The following statement appears in to-day's Globe, over the signature of J. J. Kelso, Government Superintendent of Childrens Aid Societies and it may help the local society to decide matters now under consideration.

READER.

The Unfortunate Child

To the Editor of The Globe: We cannot solve a problem by ignoring it, and yet many good people follow this policy with regard to the illegitimate child. The problem is one, however, that cannot be ignored—it forces itself upon Health Departments, Children's Aid Societies and social workers generally, and the only wise thing to do is to face it squarely and work out the best possible plan of dealing with it. Following are some suggestions along that line, and the writer would be pleased to hear from any who have made a study of the problem.

First — That the separation of mother and child for at least six months should not be permitted.

Second — That the mother should nurse the child.

Third —That all unmarried mothers should be placed under the legal supervision of health officers with the right to see that both mother and child are properly nourished and cared for.

Fourth — That prompt measures should be taken to locate the reputed father and compel him to meet all financial obligations.

Fifth—That when in due time it is decided that adoption should be permitted, all necessary information should be furnished the Children's Aid Society and adequate facilities provided for getting such children into good homes as speedily as possible.

Sixth—The giving away of babies by irresponsible parties, either with or without payment, should be prohibited.

Seventh —Only authorized societies should be allowed to advertise babies for adoption.

Eighth—Public sentiment should be educated to recognize these children as entitled to the fullest protection, and not necessarily as children to be ill-treated, despised and neglected because of circumstances for which they are in no way responsible.

J. J. KELSO.

Peterborough, Ont., April 30, 1917.

Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—One of the most outrageous and unnecessary instances of inefficiency in the Borden Government permitting all the potatoes to be cornered and shipped to Bermuda and New York, while people in Peterborough are paying $1.00 per peck for potatoes that are worth in fact $1.00 per bag. The crop of potatoes was not large in Ontario, but quite sufficient to provide for and take care of every person who needed them, but the Borden Government permitting potatoes to go out of the country and being cornered up shows inefficiency, and if a wartime election is not forced on to drive the Government out of po... the people in the country will s...er more starvation than they do in Germany. Potatoes sold Saturday for $6.00 per bag and some sales were made of potatoes at $1.00 per peck. Surely it is time for the Government to find what potatoes there are and how they can be sold at moderate prices to people who need them.

Yours truly,
HOUSEHOLDER.

Conscription For the Home Defence Force

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, April 30.—Adoption by United States of the selective draft system of recruiting has made a profound impression upon official Ottawa, it is conceivable that to render conscription effective in the United States, Canada will be asked to approximate the system now provided for here. The failure of the government's home defence scheme may in view of the United States decision, force the government to take some action in the matter.

WOMEN WORKING TRACTORS.

Two in England Do Four-Fifths Acres a Day.

LONDON—Two ladies began last January to drive a tractor plough, which was lying idle because the ironmonger to whom it belonged had no men to spare to send out with it. They had experience in motor driving, but none in ploughing. One day last month a letter was received from one of them in which she said:

"We have just done 38 acres, and have come to do 20 acres, and this morning there is an inch of snow, but we mean to go out and try to work. Now either of us can work the tractor and plough, and can turn into and out of the furrow without blowing up very much. Screws and bolts are always working loose, and pliers and wire are often needed. "It is very dirty work, as the engine has to filled twice a day, and paraffin lifted to the top of the tank. We pull a ten-gallon drum of paraffin up in slow stages. The final bit is done by one being on top and lifting while the other pushes with her head! The mixture of oil, paraffin and soil is very adhesive and our drill overalls must be a sore trial to washerwomen."

These two women, we are told, now plough 4-3 acres a day with a three-furrow plough. They have a school for training drivers, and have already taught twelve other girls.

NEW S. A. BUILDING HAS BEEN OPENED

And Officers Have Been Appointed To Take Charge

The opening of the new corps of the Salvation Army at Byersville which took place yesterday was an evolution from a very small beginning, indeed. The young people's work at the Simcoe Street Temple so increased the first year of the command of Adjutant and Mrs. McElhiney that the attendance went from 170 to 465. There was no room at the Temple for them all so a small Sunday School was started to relieve the situation at the Orange Hall near May's school house, with a very small attendance.

The work in that end of the city has developed and the opportunity so inviting it was decided to put up a building. Hence about two years ago the corner stone of the new building was laid by Mrs. Hugh Waddell and a very creditable building indeed, went up, under the supervision of Mr. R. C. Braund, who was superintendent of the Simcoe Street Temple Sunday School.

The work demanded more and more attention, until this week end has seen the opening of the outpost to a new corps with officers of some experience taking charge, which will relieve the burden, to some extent, on Adjutant and Mrs. McElhiney and give them more time for the work at the Temple together with the other outpost at Brailey's school house which was another development of about two years ago.

The new Byersville corps will have a number of transfers from the mother corps and a Sunday School all thoroughly organized together with Scouts and Guards, etc.

The welcome meeting to the new officers, Captain Hargraves and Lieut. Kent took place at the Simcoe Street Temple on Saturday at the Simcoe Street Temple on Saturday night and the united meeting on Sunday morning both led by Adjutants Burton, were profitable times.

A nice crowd attended Sunday school in the afternoon and a splendid open air meeting preceeding, a Salvation meeting all led by Adj. Burton of Montreal were productive, in this six men and women sought the forgiveness of their sin at the mercy seat.

A united meeting will be held tonight at the new corps led by Adjutant Burton and new officers who will live in the district and will take charge and forge ahead with the work. Their singing together and their splendid talks yesterday were much enjoyed by all.

PARK A GARDEN PLOT.

Geneva Mayor Offers Free Use of Land to Vegetable Growers.

GENEVA.—Geneva is in line for additional food production, as Mayor Gulvin announces that Loomis park will be given free to householders who will grow vegetables on it this summer, and the Geneva Preserving company announces a bonus system as encouragement to farmers to raise more produce.

Loomis park, a tract of more than ten acres, was given the city by the late Henry Loomis. It has never been developed. Mayor Gulvin proposes to subdivide it into plots which will be allotted free for the season to persons applying for them.

The Geneva Preserving company offers its bonus upon the goods canned in excess of the normal output of the plant. The normal pack of the local plant is 300,000 cases and if the pack exceeds this amount by 25,000 cases the farmers will receive a bonus of 10 per cent., and an additional bonus of 5 per cent., will be paid for each additional 25,000 cases packed. This bonus will be figured on the net amount of the farmers' contracts with the company for vegetables production.
